LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Almost cold enough to snow.
Garden-making is all the rage.
Read H. A. Reitz's new "ad" in this issue.

Len Brown is the boss garden-maker of the town.

Henry Loebel has broken ground for his new hotel.

D. I. Hay has established another grocery in this city.

P. S. Hay's special cash sale, May 5th, was a great success.

Berkley is the name of the post-office just established at Berkley's Mills.

E. S. Bowlin orders THE STAR sent to his address at Somersfield, this county.

S. R. McKinley has laid a new oak plank pavement in front of his residence.

Frank Peiry has gone to Lonaconing, where he has secured employment at his trade.

H. Yost, of Garrett county, Md., was a welcome caller at THE STAR office on Tuesday.

J. L. Barchus sold his property on the corner of Union and Gay streets to R. B. Sheppard.

Piney run is fished by about a dozen fishermen, every day, yet no big catches are reported.

The American house has a bran new front porch, which improves its appearance very much.

C. F. Critchfield and Irvin Shoemaker, of Berkley's Mills, were visiting in Salisbury last Sunday.

W. H. Fair orders THE STAR sent to his brother E. E., at McKeesport, Pa., for a birthday present.

Read Geo. K. Walker's new standing "ad" in this issue, also his notice of free portraits, which appears on 4th page.

Salisbury is the only town in Somerset county where the rumbling of manufacturing machinery can be heard day and night.

Mrs. M. J. Livengood went to Sand Patch, Monday, to visit her parents. Wonder how Marshall likes to keep "hach."

Jolly Josh Carpenter, of Carpenter's liniment fame, was in our city last week. He got off his usual number of good stories and funny sayings.

Mrs. Henry Swanger, of New Germany, Md., recently received a paralytic stroke, says the New Germany correspondent to the Oakland Republican.

J. D. Livengood has added much to the beauty of his residence property by having Geo. Robison build a handsome new fence along the front of it.

Patronize the liberal and progressive men who advertise, because it pays. A business that isn't worth advertising isn't worthy of any patronage.

Froebing has a new paper called the Fly. We hope the Fly will keep off of the other Froebing papers, as there are too many flies on them now.

A. P. Beachy is having a handsome new fence built along the front of his fine residence property. Peter Vogel is doing the work in his usual artistic style.

David Enos is one of our citizens who likes to have everything neat and cozy about his home. That new front fence helps the looks of his place wonderfully.

Read W. H. Clouse's "ad" in this issue addressed to wool growers. We have examined Mr. Clouse's agent's stock of goods and found it a very fine assortment of wools.

W. R. Riley, who always knows a good thing when he sees it, orders THE STAR sent to Michael Murray, at Elk Garden, W. Va., also to Miss Kate Riley, at Cratzeville, Pa.

The bridge viewers and surveyor looked the ground over at the foot of Union street, Wednesday, and it is reported to THE STAR that they will hand in a favorable report for the bridge.

C. C. Welley, who is now holding down a clerkship in Connellsville, orders THE STAR sent to his address, stating that he feels lonesome without it and that he must have it to get the news from home.

Some of the butchers who come to this vicinity from other places to buy calves and sheep ought to be arrested and fined for cruelty to animals. It is a shame the way they torture some of these animals.

If you have chapped hands, face, or rough or red skin, from any cause, use Stewart's Almond Cream. It will please you and bring quick relief. Only 10 and 25 cents a bottle. Sold by J. L. Barchus.

Charles Keim, a driver in Shaw Mines, while coming out with a trip last Saturday morning, in attempting to pass between the cars and the props was caught and severely squeezed.—Meyersdale Register.

F. P. Beachy's implement business has increased to such an extent that he found it necessary to enlarge his warehouse, and consequently he built an addition to it on the east side, this week.—Carlton (Neb.) Reporter.

S. W. Bender orders THE STAR sent to his address at Amish, Iowa. THE STAR has a great many subscribers in some of the western states, especially in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. The home list is also rapidly increasing.

Our Grantsville and State Line correspondents, would do us a great favor by sending in their items no later than Tuesday evening. Both of these scribers are good ones, but they sometimes send in their items a little too late.

Dr. G. C. Keller, the genial dentist and telegraph operator, of Grantsville, Md., made THE STAR a pleasant visit on Tuesday. He remarked that he considers THE STAR an excellent paper and backed up the assertion by subscribing for it.

Born, last week, to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Easton, a daughter, "Scottie" looks pleasant, but he thinks it ought to have been a boy, this time. He says three girls in succession is booming the feminine population a little too much to suit him.

The stump of the pole that was raised a few years ago at the corner of Grant and Union streets ought to be removed, and the persons who erected the pole ought to remove the stump. All that stump is good for is to wreck vehicles on a dark night.

Our old friend Major Alex. Stutzman is in town this week selling a handsome book called "Sheep's Photographs of the World." It contains views of art and natural scenery in all parts of the world. It is an elegant volume and should find a place in every home.

The street that runs through the school ground was opened, Tuesday night. Somebody removed the fence that closed it. Whoever opened it did a good act, for the street is needed. Now let those assessed to pay for the street pay their assessments and keep it open.

A man from Dunbar, Pa., was in our town this week looking up a site for a drug store and jewelry establishment. We understand that one of our citizens will erect a building to answer the purpose for both, if terms can be agreed up, on that will be mutually satisfactory.

L. Morrell, who recently put a little wall paper notice in THE STAR, writes as follows: "You can drop the wall paper 'ad,' as I only wanted it for two weeks. It brought lots of people in and I sold lots of paper through it." All those who advertise in THE STAR find that it pays them.

THE STAR is creditably informed that Mr. Clarence Getty, of Grantsville, is to be married this evening to a daughter of Hon. Thomas H. Bittinger, of the same town. The couple is a very popular one in Grantsville, and if the report of their marriage is true, THE STAR sends its congratulations.

The marriage of our genial friend Sam Kretschman and Miss Lizzie Mühlenberg, one of our Grantsville schoolmates, is recorded this week in the Grantsville items. Both of the contracting parties are highly respected and THE STAR most heartily congratulates them. May a long and happy life be theirs.

The dead body of the four-year-old child of Samuel Mosser was found in a small glade about three-quarters of a mile from his home, Sunday. It will be remembered this child became lost some time early last fall, and although every effort was put forth to find it, nothing could be learned.—Oakland Republican.

The Divelvs in Berlin are evidently doomed to be unfortunate. Mrs. Albert Divelv, recently fell through a defective cellar door, while carrying a child in her arms, seriously injuring both herself and the child. Mrs. Chas. Divelv was also recently injured, while taking a tub to the cellar. She fell and broke two ribs.

And now the Commercial says that Salisbury would fill up with Meyersdale residents, if the electric road were in operation, it being a pleasant town to live in. Now then, with a great inducement like that staring us in the face, let the road be built at once. Put THE STAR down for about nine thousand shares to start with.

The following are the newly elected officials of the Salisbury railroad: President, J. B. Washington; Directors, E. Holbrook, J. B. Jackson, John McCleave, C. S. Wight, Chas. Donnelly and J. M. Shoemaker, of Pittsburg; A. J. Hill, of Vanderbilt, Pa., and Francis Burns, of Baltimore. Secretary, A. W. Black; Treasurer, W. H. Hams.

The Pritts still has been captured, and is supposed to be the largest moonshine still ever captured in the United States. Pritts, however, is still breathing free air. The still was found concealed in the mountains and is now in the hands of Officer Gilbert, in Somerset. A new clue has recently been discovered that Pritts did not go west but is still hiding in the mountains.

The Meyersdale Commercial says Salisbury is practically a unit 'for the electric road. Well, if that is the case, why isn't the road being built? Surely, if Salisbury and Meyersdale both want the road, it ought to be under course of construction now. But the fact is that the Commercial doesn't know half of the time what it is talking about. Electric road! Bah!

Somebody must have been stuffing Lou Smith again.

What's the matter with Berlin? The Record has a great deal to say from time to time about the drunkenness that the town is cursed with, and a newspaper correspondent in that town publishes in the Meyersdale Register that a great many fights occur there, also that slanderous talk is afloat in the town to such an extent that a respectable person's character isn't safe. It beats the mischief if Berlin is really as bad as she is painted.

J. B. Miller, of Grantsville, Md., called at our sanctum this morning and informed us of the death of Mrs. S. J. Miller, which occurred last night about 10 o'clock. Mrs. Miller was a most estimable Christian lady and a zealous member of the Amish church. Her death will be greatly lamented, for by her departure this locality has lost one of its noblest and best women. THE STAR extends its sympathy to the bereaved family and relatives.

The affair between E. Statler and the men he had arrested for conspiracy was settled last week by arbitration. The arbitration board consisted of Joseph Williams, chosen by the miners, Levi Lichter, chosen by E. Statler, and W. F. Garlitz, chosen by Messrs. Williams and Lichter. It was decided that Mr. Statler should lay half of the costs and the miners the other half, and thus the matter was settled. That was much better than going to law.

Last week the Meyersdale Commercial made a big ado about its circulation rating in Rowell's American Newspaper Directory, and tries hard to make it appear that its circulation exceeds that of all other county papers, except the Herald. It admits, however, that the only paper that gives figures in the directory is the Standard, and that's just where the rub comes in. The circulation of the Standard was rated in the directory as per the publisher's report, which may be correct and may not be correct, as a newspaper man is just as liable to make a misstatement to the publisher of a newspaper directory as to anyone else. We believe, however, that most newspapers make correct reports, and we do not in the least doubt that the Standard has a circulation of 1,100, as the directory gives it. That is a very small circulation for a County paper as old and as good as the Standard. We would have adjudged it to exceed that, but we will bet a four-dollar dog that the Commercial doesn't have that large a circulation. As no figures appear in the directory for any of the other papers, it is a plain case that their circulation ratings had to be guessed at, and guesses are not reliable. The Commercial, as we are led to believe on good authority, takes about 4th place in circulation among the Somerset county papers. It is true, as the Commercial says, that THE STAR wasn't established soon enough to get a rating in this year's directory, and so far as its editor is concerned, he will never go to the trouble of having his paper rated in Rowell's directory. The average newspaper directory is a delusion and a humbug, as thousands of publishers can testify to, and we have had all the dealings with Geo. P. Rowell & Co. that we desire. We can get along very well without him or his so-called directory. If the Commercial can get any consolation out of the Rowell directory, it is welcome to it, but we know one thing, and that is that no other publisher in Somerset county would trade business with the Commercial for a good deal to boot. But as Bro. Smith says, may we all prosper.

UNDER THE WHEELS.
A sad accident on the Salisbury Railroad.
On Tuesday a sad accident occurred on the Salisbury railroad, which resulted in the death of Thomas Morgan, a son of Benjamin Morgan, the coal operator who has a mine near Boynton.

The affair as reported to THE STAR is as follows: The unfortunate young man was riding from Meyersdale to the mine on one of the empty gondolas, which were ahead of the engine and being pushed up to the various mines of the upper end of this region. He was sitting or leaning up against the side of the car, near its end, and when the train was a little on this side of Keystone mines, the front brakeman noticed some cattle on the track ahead of the train and signaled to the engineer to slack up. The signal was obeyed and the cattle got off the track; but as the engineer went to increase the speed of his engine again, the cars received a sudden bump, and young Morgan was thrown forward and fell down between the cars with fatal result, part of the train passing over him, cutting his body in two parts and severing his right arm from the body.

His mangled body presented a shocking appearance, and the affair is much regretted. The accident took place near the spot where Mr. Smalley was ground to death some years ago.

The deceased was informed, was about seventeen years old and an excellent young man. THE STAR extends its sympathy to Mr. Morgan and family.

Geo. Lowry's House Burglarized.
Last Friday night burglars entered Geo. Lowry's house and ransacked the place pretty thoroughly, but did not make as big a haul as they probably expected. They entered the house through a basement window, and as the family all slept upstairs, they made the entrance without being discovered.

The next morning, when Mr. Lowry arose, he found a window and door open, and supposing that he was the first one up, he naturally inquired whether anyone else about the house arose from bed before he did. After being answered in the negative he at once suspected burglars and began to look about the premises to see if anything was missing, and after making a search he found that his best suit of clothes, his watch and several pairs of shoes were missing. Some of the shoes taken belonged to the women of the house. A part of a ham of meat was also stolen, and altogether the thing looks as though some one not far away did the stealing, judging from the article taken.

However, the stealing of such things as ham and ladies' shoes may have been done in order to make it appear that some one in the vicinity committed the theft, and some of the plunder may have been cast away after the burglars left the premises. From the fact that during the day a stranger stopped at the house and secured a meal, which was kindly given to him for the asking, it is likely that he was one of the gang sent in advance to size things up about the place in order to make the robbery easy to commit. It is therefore more than likely that the theft was committed by strangers.

It is also reported that S. S. Miller's house was broken open and a few articles of small value stolen therefrom, just a day or two before the Lowry robbery. There is no clue, we are informed, to any of these robberies.
