Militia sent to the Scene and Order Restored. The Homestead Mill Running Nearly Full.

There were riotous scenes at Duquesne Thursday morning when about 30 of the old hands attempted to enter the Carnegie steel plant to make repairs and get that mill in readiness for operation on Monday. The strikers, assisted by a body of Homestead men, prevented them entering the gates, and as the dozen deputy sheriffs on duty there could not handle the crowd, six companies of the Sixteeuth Regiment were sent up from Homestead and all is peaceful at Duquesne now.

of the Sixteeuth Regiment were sent up from Homestead and all is peaceful at Duquesne now.

It was reported Wednesday night that an attempt would be made to start the Duquesne mill yesterday, and as the Homestead men feared, and as the Homestead men feared are all there, a number went of to assist the Juquesne strikers in preventing a stamp for the places of fearer than the places of the preventing a stamp for the places of the preventing a stamp for the places of the place

Milsiagle said he was going to work in spite of all the men there. A big steel worker brushed up against him, and he said.

"Keep your hands off me. I'm going to work and you can't stop me."

A blow from the steel wher's fist landed on the search of the steel of the your and he work and you can't stop me."

A blow from the steel wher's fist landed on the search of the your and he was a broken nose, he arose and a crowd made for him and chased him up the hill. He man-speed to escape without serious injury.

Hugh Boyce, a boss carpenter, and a former well-known deputy sheriff also protested against the barring of his way by the strikers. After much trouble he was rescued by a half dozen deputies before he was burt, and then he went to his home. The only man who succeeded in getting within the fence was a tall machinist whose name could not be learned. He came down on a Riverton street car, and the conductor and motorman, whose sympathies are with the strikers, tried to signal the men that he was aboard. There was too much excitement just then and nobody noticed the signals. Then the motorman ran the car at full speed past the gate to prevent the man getting off if possible, but he alighted without trouble, and, before the strikers could prevent it, was inside of the gate. A shout of disappointment wentup, but they made no attempt to get the man out of the mill yard.

When asked by the strikers why they wanted to go to work some said they had large families to support and had no income. Others said that they had just bought a home and did not want to lose it, but no excuses would be accepted and all were turned away from the gate.

THE MILITIA CALLED ON.

Deputy Sheriff Young finally grew tired of protesting, which was the only thing he could do, and he went to Home stead, where he laid the case before Chief Deputy Gray. Colonel Gray asked General Wiley for assistance, and Colonel Hulings was ordered to get the like the six hear him he way was refered to get the six hear him he was the only wis companies were take pany expects to be ready to resume work on Monday.

Treasurer H, M. Curry, of the Carnegie Company, was at Duquesne during the day and he is the authority for the statement that 510 of the 800 men formerly employed at the mill have applied for positions again. He said the company had not the slightest intention of starting the mill before Monday, and then work will be resumed in full. There are enough applications how from old and new men, he said, to completely man the mill, and many of the old men will not be taken back under any circumstances. "If the Homestead men would stay away from Desqueene," said Mr. Curry, we would have no trouble there. They intimidate the men and force them to remain idle when they really wish to work. We will have no trouble from that source now, and the mill will be running in full on Monday."

Speaking at Homestead, Mr. Curry said

and the mill will be running in full on Monday."

Speaking at Homestead, Mr. Curry said that only a few new men had been received at the mill yesterday, as there are none needed just now. When they are ready for more, Mr. Curry says, they will have no trouble in getting them. Mr. Curry falls to see what some people expect to accomplish by their efforts to compromise or arbitrate the trouble. The company, he says, has nothing to arbitrate, as the mills are open to any acceptable workman to go back to work.

The break at Duquesne has not caused any uneasiness for the men, who are making the tireless fight at Homestead. They have been nneasiness for the men, who are making the tireless fight at Homestead. They have been expecting it, as the Duquesne men have been wavering ever since the mill closed down. The Advisory Committee thinks it will mot be long before the new workmen will rebel against being kept in the mill all the time. Circulars the Advisory Committee dropped from the railroad tressle and threw over the fence, they say, are having the desired effect, as a few of the men at work have come out. Following is a copy of the circular:

CIRCUlar:

A STATEMENT!

To Non-Union Men in Homeslead Steel-Works: To Non-Union Men in Homestead Steel-Works:

Several men have come to us in the last few days for assistance in getting a way from the Homesterd Steel Works. They stated that they had not been told where they were to work or the circumstances, and after arriving were not satisfied to stay. They also stated that it was almost impossible to get permission to leave the works; that the men are practically in a prison; and the greater part of them are very auxious to get away if they were sure they would not meet with violence outside the ferice.

In view of these reports, which we believe to be true, the men of Homestead and viccinity feel it to be their duty to communicate with you. If possible, and inform you that you have nothing to fear from them, and that the statements of the foremen to you in regard to viclence are wholly untrue. Your late comfactes who have called on us were not molested in the least, and we made it our business to look after their comfort as far as possible, and we cheerfully prommise to do, the same for every man who comes to us from inside the mill enclosure. We feel that the most of you have comhere had they known they would not have comhere he was the same and treated like slaves.

A NOVEL CONGREGATION.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning, when Rey, Ken. C. Hayes, chaplain of the Fifteenth Regiment, walked into the new beam mill at Homestead, he was treated to a genuine surprise. Instead of a congregation of menger proportions he was confronted by one which in more ways than one was remarkable, it consisted of more than a score of military dignitaries in full uniform, a dozen smartly dressed young women and 1,400 workingmen of all sorts and conditions, from the skilled steelworker to the laborer. The mill had been filled with benches, and all of them were occupied. At the eastern end of the building was a small platform furnished with a couple of chairs and a small table. On the table lay a bible, and beside it a bunch of wild flowers. Directly in front of their improvised pulpit asi General Wiley and the members of his staff. To the left of them was an orchestra of 12 pieces. Back to the soldiers and musicians were massed the civilians.

Mr. Hayes was evidently impressed with

A MURDERER'S TRAGIC END.

He Resists Arrest, Shoots an Officer and Then Kills Himself.

Washingtons, Pa., Aug. 8.—Martin Reed, the murderer of Alexander Chappel, who on June 9 last escaped from the Washington county jail, was cornered in an ice-house at Noblestown on Saturday. There he killed one officer instantly, fatally wounded another and was himself burned up in the ice-house.

other and was himself burned up in the icehouse.

Officers McBride and Orr of this place have been hunting for Reed ever since the murderer fled and at last they found him to-day concealed in the ice-house at Noblestown.

When discovered Reed refused to surrender,
whereupon an attempt was made to force
the door of the ice-house and take him by force. Reed had evidently determined not to be taken alive, for he opened fire on the officers and dangerously wounded Officer
Orr,

officers and dangerously wounded Officer Orr.

The two policemen, seeing that they could not capture the desperado unaided, called for help. A large number of citizens responded and a second attack on the building was commenced. Shot after shot came from Reed's revolver, and his firing was so rapid that no one dared to venture close to thesice-house.

At this time Canstable Coyle of McDonald placed himself at the head of a number of others and led an assault on the murderer's atronghold. The beseigers were met with a volley from Reed's pistol and Constable Coyle was instantly killed. The death of this officer spread consternation among the citizens, but they quickly rallied and determined to set fire to the los-house and thus force Reed to surrender.

Been selfrey restored he will proceed against taem.

THE SANTAMARIA'S VOYAGE

Spain's Celebration of the Sailing of Columbus.

The Little Caravel Starts From-- the Port of Palos.

A cablegram from Palos, Spain, says:
On the four hundredth anniversary of the day on which Columbus set sail from Palos westward on his voyage of discovery the festivities arranged here for celebrating the day were carried out with great sclat.

The view from the town, however, was obscured by a thick mist which hung over the river and rendered it impossible to see more than a dun outline of the hulls of the vessels lying at annon.

At 6 o'clock, the hour at which Columbus
began his voyage, the caravel Santa Maris, constructed in initiation of the wessels of that name belonging to the Columbus expedition, which had been lying off shore all night, set her sails for her passage through the lines of warships anchored outside the bar, but owing to the dead caim a line was run to her from a gunboat, and she was towed down stream, followed by the Spanish flottills in single file. Minister of Marins Montigo was on board the warship Legsspl.

The voyage down the river past the Monsatery of La Rabida, on which the flags of all the American States were flying, to the bar occupied about an hour.

Outside the bar were moored the vessels of the foreign squadrons which had come to take part in the celebration. These vessels were formed in lines, between which the caravel paised and the thundering salutes

The mind the smoke from the guns
made it impossible to watch the maneaurres of the caravel, which followed for some distance the route taken by Columbus 400 years ago. At 9 o'clock the little vessel returned and re-entered the river.

The town of Huelva is crowded with visitors and all the building, both private and public, are gayly descorated.

Fifteen of the Spanish flotilla conveyed the Santa Maria several milles to sea, and when the signal was given by the Spanish dinister of Marine for the vessel or teturn
the caravel was given a farewell salute.

The President:

To-day four hundred years ago Columbus
sailed from Paica, discovering America,
Paica, Caravel, which followed for some distance than ministry day:

Husband and Wife Murdered.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 6.—Andrew J. Borden, a wealthy real estate owner and mill man, and his wife were found dead at their home. Both had been mutilated about the head and face with an ax, cleaver or razor.

There is hardly a doubt that both were murdered. The police are looking after a Portuguese who runs the Borden farm at Gardiners Neck, and who was in the house a few minutes before the bodies were dis-

a few minutes before the bodies were discovered.

Who the murderer was, why he committed the crime, or where he went, is not known. The police have arrested three persons on suspicion, but the only stupied out of the hour of the murder.

Mr. Borden was a very large owner of real estate in Fall River. Charles C. Cook was his agent collecting his rents, and yesterday paid to the old gentleman a large sum of money from his rentals. He made regular deposits in the Union Bank, and never paid any accounts except by check. He left home as usual, about 9 o'clock his morning, to take his deposit so the bank. About 10:30 o'clock his deposit was received at the Union Bank, and he went from there to his home, arriving about 10:40 o'clock and going into the sitting room to recline upon the lounge and read the newspaper. Mrs. Borden went up stairs to make the bed in the bedroom in the front of the house. No one except the murder saw them afterward until the dead bodies were found.

sponded and a second attack on the building was commenced. Shot after shot came from Meed's revolver, and his firing was so rapid that no one dared to venture close to the dee-house.

At this time Censtable Coyle of McDonald placed hinself at the head of a number of others and led an assault on the murderer's stronghold. The beseigers were met with a volley from Reed's pistol and Constable Coyle was instantly kiled. The death of this officer spread consternation among the dizeas, but they quickly ralled and determined to set first to the chouse and thus the dead of the second of the building to the other, but Reed did not rive himself ap. On the contrary, as the fiames mounted higher and he saw that he had the choice of burning to death, surrenedring or shooting him self, he chose the latter. The report of his revolver rang out, and his body was recovered soon afterward, burned to a crisp, but showing the builet hole in his head.

The crime for which Reed was convicted and sentenced to hang was the murder of Alexander Chappel. Chappel's wife was a most attractive woman and Reed, falling in love with her, planned and executed the crime in order to marry her. Reed's plan of murder was to place a bottle of poisoned whiskey in the way of Chappel at the Burgettstown fair in the fall of 1891.

As a result of Saturday night's awful work, a number of arrests will be made of persous whe are known to have aided in liring the ice house, and shooting into the burning building. Constable Bell, of Noblestown, claims to have seen certain persons fire Winchesters and revolvers into the building, and says that after quiet has been entirely restored he will proceed against them.

"In the Cheering-up Business" contains the brave conclusion reached by a young girl who so persistently tries to bring sunshine into the lives of others that she finally becomes known as the "joy-giver."

"If there is only one thing in life which is bright and pleasant," she said, "that I mean to hold fast; and if there isn't such a thing, I'll make it. I'll be it myself!"

Perhaps she was helped in her, hearty and healthy way of taking life by the remark of an old doctor, who had called to see another member of the family and asked:

"What's the matter with her, now?"

"Oh," said the young girl, "I suppose it's her nerves."

"Nervesi nerves." cried the Doctor, seemingly in an alarming rage. "My dear young lady, I adjure you by all your hopes of happiness, don't let that word get into your vocabulary. There's no such thing! Indigestion, dyspepsia, if you like, but not nerves!"

That he was fond of exaggeration, no one can doubt; still, the lesson he would have taught was a sensible one. When we allow ourselves moods of ill-temper or weakness because we are "nervous," then we need to remember that the soul is stronger than the body. We need to look about us and see whether or not we can make some one else happy. "For," says the little heroine who became a joy-giver, "if one is really disposed to bring people good cheer
