EDITORIAL REMARKS.

Congress did one thing for which it deserves the praise of everybody—it adjourned.

Up to the present time Adlai has made the speeches, while Grover has written the letters.

The work of the Pittsburg newspaper man who is nearly seven feet tall must be "away up."

Gen. E. BURD GRUBB says it will make the country pure to give women the ballot. The general is right.

Congress made that World's Fair appropriation in a sort of here-I-am-you-take-it spirit, which deserves no commendation.

"CLEVELAND will certainly lose South Carolina and probably other Southern states"—Congressman William M. Springer.

The fellow who wrote that "nine out of every ten summer girls become old maids" had evidently just been snubbed by one of them.

The Pinkertons are going to appeal to law for vengeance. What they ought to get from law is justice, and justice would put the whole crowd of them in the penitentiary.—St. Louis Republic.

If we are a poverty-ridden people, why is ours the one country on earth to which the flood of immigration turns? If Free-Trade England is blessed with greater prosperity than ours, why do not immigrants flock thither?

The Medical Record says ordinary household work is better exercise and will benefit a woman's complexion more than all the games ever invented or all the lotions ever manufactured. This may be strictly true, but it will not be believed by the average young lady of the period.

For a man who claims to be a pauper, Ferdinand Ward, ex-convict and ex-Napoleon of finance, appears to be living pretty well. The latest report is that he has married a young and pretty girl. Perhaps some of the men he might have had for prison companions are "putting up" for him.

PRESIDENT HARRISON certainly cannot be accused of having shown the Silver men too much favor when he selected the United States Commissioners to the International monetary conference, as only one, Senator Jones, of Nevada, of the eye is friendly to the white metal, although Representative McCreary once voted for free coinage.

Some time ago the Ninth regiment, National Guards of Pennsylvania, started a subscription for the Homestead strikers. This shows plainly that the strikers have the sympathy of the National Guards, and there is nothing strange about it, owing to the fact that the soldiers are nearly all laboring men themselves. It is safe to say that at least nine-tenths of the National Guards have no use for H. O. Frick. Actions speak louder than words.

The New York World is doing valiant service in the cause of Protection. Witness the following paragraph intended to illustrate the workings of the Tariff: "The illustration concerns steel rails, which are now $4 a ton higher than they were in 1885, although the cost of production and the Tariff tax are less and the demand is slight." The truth or falsity of this statement we will not discuss. All we desire to ask is: Does the World wish us to infer that lowering duties causes higher prices?—Ex.

The Democratic party in the States may rest assured that if England's sympathy could carry the election of Grover Cleveland in November the White House would be theirs. We shall watch the development of the struggle with the keenest interest, and even if the triumph be not attained all at once, there is indeed reason for congratulation that one of the great American parties has made free trade, pure and simple, the great battle cry of the future.—Liverpool (Eng.) Courier.

The great Free-Trade Congress has adjourned. Its members, immediately before and after their election, boasted high and loud of the wonders they were about to accomplish in the way of extirpating the McKinley Tariff tree. They have contented themselves with five feeble little attempts to pick a twig from its proud branches. They put through the House a Free Wool bill, a Free Cotton Tie, Cotton Bagging and Binding Twine bill, a Free Silver-Lend Ore bill, and a bill reducing to $100 the amount of personal effects a person can bring into the United States without paying duty on them and then went home. And the McKinley tree rustled its luxuriant green leaves in suppressed laughter as the Free-Trade mob dispersed.—Ex.

On page 893 of the report of the State Inspector of Mines for the Bloomington district of Illinois, we find the following paragraph under the heading "Strikes": "There have been only two strikes in this district during the last year. The first was by the miners employed by the McLean County Coal Company at Bloomington. The company having discharged a few of their employes for taking a leading part in forming a union, the miners, as a body came out on strike to have those who had been thus discharged reinstated." This is the coal company of which Adlai E. Stevenson, tall-end of the Free-Trade ticket, is President. Yet this same Stevenson, coming to the city to be notified of his nomination, was one of the loudest howlers against the Tariff as a cause of strikes.—American Economist.

PARTISAN papers are endeavoring to make political capital out of the terrible scenes which took place at Homestead. The Democratic papers are vehement in their denunciation of the Republican party for enacting a Tariff law under which Protection was afforded to manufacturers. There is no love for workmen in the hearts of these editors; a desire to serve party interests alone actuates them. The McKinley bill reduced the duty on the articles manufactured at Homestead, and the Democratic papers in asserting that the trouble at that point is due to the McKinley bill are but condemning the very thing that they themselves advocate and on which they base their claim to power—a reduction of the Tariff.—Terrence V. Powderly in E. of L. Journal.

CHAIRMAN CARTER, of the Republican Committee, held an office under the Federal Government when he was chosen chairman. He immediately resigned it, holding that he had no right to draw a salary from the government when his time was occupied in doing work for his party.

Mr. Harry, Chairman of the Democratic Committee, holds a valuable office under the State government of Pennsylvania. He does not resign, but clings to it as tenaciously as ever since he was chosen Democratic Chairman.

Everybody who knows anything about politics knows that a Chairman of a National Committee has no time for other duties. His whole mind and energies must be given up to that position.—Herald.

The Democrats are still laboring under the delusion that they are following old Andrew Jackson, but Jackson had some vigorous language for the men who declared the collection of tariff duties unconstitutional. There was a group of Democrats down in South Carolina who adopted a resolution in 1822 very similar to the resolution of the Chicago convention. It read as follows:

Whereas, the Congress of the United States, by various acts, purporting to be acts laying duties and imposing foreign imports, but in reality, intended for the protection of domestic manufacturers, etc., hath exceeded its just powers under the Constitution. We, therefore, the people of the State of South Carolina, in convention assembled, do declare and ordain, and it is hereby declared and ordained, that the several acts and parts of acts of the Congress of the United States purporting to be laws for the imposing of duties and imposing on the importation of foreign commodities, etc., are unauthorized by the Constitution of the United States, and violate the true meaning and intent thereof, and are null, void, and so law.

Jackson then promised the South Carolinians a hanging tree if they were not more careful.—Ex.

Now that our home elections are over, the great conflict which is proceeding in the United States of America naturally begins to attract a little more attention. The discussion of the question at issue, from the English point of view, has only one effect in the States, and that injurious and paralyzing to those who are fighting the battle of Free-Trade. Every public expression of opinion in this country hostile to the McKinley Tariff, from a British point of view, is telegraphed across the Atlantic and eagerly reproduced in the Republican papers throughout the country. As we said before, the apostles of Free-Trade, if they wish to further the principles they are so proud of, should rigidly hold their tongues during the present Presidential campaign.

Their utterances do incalculable harm to the Democratic cause, and if Mr. Cleveland is after all defeated it will be largely owing to the too loudly and indiscreetly expressed sympathy proceeding from these shores.—Liverpool Echo of July 31st.

How do you like fighting under the British flag, Democrats?

Who is the More Popular?

Lieutenant-Colonel Streater has been unanimously re-elected for a term of five years by the officers of the Tenth Regiment, and the election was ratified with great enthusiasm by the rank and file of the command. The laws incident have only served to make the officer more popular.—Meyersdale Register.

Colonel Streater may be quite popular, apparently, with the officers of the Pennsylvania National Guards, for the reason that some of the other officers are more or less implicated in the barbarous torture of Iams, and they are in such a position that they must at least pretend to sanction Streater's outrageous cruelty.

Streater and Snowden were both burned in effigy, recently, which shows that their popularity is not to be envied. On Monday the Second Regiment of the Illinois Guards clad two effigies in the uniforms of a General and Colonel of Pennsylvania militia, labeled them "General Snowden" and "Colonel Streater," then burned them in token of their indignation of the cruelty recently inflicted on ex-Private Iams.

MINERS ATTACK STEVENSON.

They Charge Him With Inhumanity and Driving Union Mine from His Mine.

STREASON, ILL., Aug. 8.—In a letter to a local paper, Mr. Patrick M. McCall, a well-known Irishman, says: "I worked for Adlai Stevenson's company from the time the bottom vein was reached in 1870 until Mr. Stevenson pulled the union out root and branch in 1878.

"I can truly say I never met a greater tyrant, nor a man with less humanity during all my life as a coal miner. In 1873 a contract was agreed to between Adlai and the miners. He prepared it, and one clause provided that it should remain in force one year and no one should be discharged without good cause. Not many weeks after the contract was agreed to one of the ropes broke in the shaft, leaving but one to hold the shaft also in a very dangerous condition. The ladders were bulging and breaking and the free passage of the cage was frequently obstructed.

"One afternoon the remaining cage, loaded with men, stuck in the shaft. From 4 o'clock until 10 at night it was suspended in the most perilous position between top and bottom, while the men below, having no other means of escape, became alarmed for their own safety. There was no escapement shaft, no means of egress, and coming from the bowels of the earth, 850 feet below, could be heard the execrations of the men and the pleadings for prompt relief. At any moment the unusual strain upon the ropes might have precipitated the cage of human cupents to the bottom of the shaft, several hundred feet below. Women and children gathered around the top, screaming and praying for the safety of their husbands and fathers. Next morning, yielding to the prayers of their families, the men refused to work until the shaft was put in a safe condition. Adlai gave orders to discharge every man who did not report for duty. "Realizing their extreme danger, no man reported, and all were discharged in face of a contract drawn up for one year. Adlai would listen to no reason, but said he had done with the union and would get new men. In a short time the company's agent brought in 80 strikers, only one of whom could speak a word of English. Union miners were defeated in that inhuman lockout in 1878 for simply demanding that their lives be not unnecessarily jeopardized. Such is the character of Adlai Stevenson, the scab employer and boss political headman."

Mr. McCall is vouched for by many prominent citizens. He is a leading representative of the miners of the state.

At the Democratic county convention, on Monday, A. L. G. Hay and I. M. Hoover were nominated for the Legislature; John O. Kimmel for District Attorney; N. B. Poorbaugh for Poor House Director; Abram Wilson, Charles Hefley and Jonas McClintock for Congressional Congresses. Frank John, of Meyersdale, was re-elected County Chairman. It is claimed that the Congressional Congresses will support L. D. Woodruff, editor of the Johnstown Democrat.
