

BRIDAL OUTFITS.
 "Bridal Outfits on Hire" is the legend over a bright looking bjuon of a shop in one of the fashionable Parisian streets. A little Frenchwoman is the proprietor, and although the business is new as well as novel, she says she is doing nicely. Outfits from the satin shoe to the wreath and veil, may be obtained there at a nominal cost.—Chicago Times.

LEARN TO CARRY A TRAIN.
 Few devotees of the fashion of long trains know how to carry them so that the streets may be left untouched by the long, graceful curves of the figure are preserved unspotted. Watch the promenade of a popular thoroughfare for an hour, and you may bet that not more than two of the train-carrying gauds will perform their tasks gracefully. A bright girl, a long mirror and faithful practices will go far towards discovering a satisfactory method.—New York World.

SHORTER AND WIDER SKIRTS.
 There are many rumors in the air that skirts in the near future will be less clinging and considerably shorter. The latter report may prove true, but there is little doubt that slenderness of outline will be preserved for some time to come. It is noticeable that the changes and modifications which fashions have undergone have brought them very closely to the styles of the time of Louis Philippe, the chief characteristics of which are a moderately full and very dressy corseage, with full sleeves, and a plain, close skirt, with a ruche or frill at the foot. This particular style remained in vogue for many years, with but little change. Modistes are making up very pretty house dresses of dark silk, with gray stripes in various colors. These have a bell skirt, with tiny ruffles at the hem, matching the stripes in shade, and a fancy jacket of velvet, open at the soft plastron of colored silk, like that forming the frills. These striped silks were left over from last spring's sale, and really elegant qualities are sold for much less than they cost the importers.—New York Post.

THE NEW COLORS.
 French color cards of millinery fabrics for the coming season display much lighter shades than those usually worn in winter. The leading series of six shades gradually darkens from pale rose to deep Provence red, through azalea pink, rose geranium and peony, followed by three metallic gray shades, familiarly known as argent, nickel and platina, while, as a matter of fact, steel grays are much more largely represented in the new importations. Next there is a new pale green shade called angelique, which combines charmingly with dark murier, or mulberry leaf green, and the still deeper rosons, or brier green. The shades that experienced buyers mark as most popular in Paris are eminecne or bishop a purple with a reddish tint, and a lighter shade, called pale purple, not unlike the pinkish hues of mauve and of the violet now so fashionable. New dahlia shades are almost as bright as cherry red or magenta. The brown series begins with a pale amber hue, aptly called champagne, and deepens through tobacco and chestnut to tawny, which is next and older brown. Beige and castor, the light browns of last season, promise to remain in favor. All the old blues reappear, and to these are added a dark gray blue marked Iceland, a pale tint called petit duck, and the well known peacock blue, which is almost green. Diavolo is a dull yellowish red, while Mephisto is a glowing, brilliant tint. An observer looking over large importations of selected fabrics finds the preference given to eminecne purple, pinkish tan or apricot, reseda, emerald and myrtle green, then beige, castor, maroon brown, cardinal and black.—Harper's Bazar.

WOMEN AS DRUMMERS.
 It has come to pass that women now dispute the possession of the field with man as a drummer. Women travel for everything and sell everything. They are found mostly in small business, where the orders for goods are confined to a few dollars, but occasionally there is one who vies with her fussy brothers, and takes orders for thousands of dollars. One of the most successful of these female drummers who has visited Denver and who travels extensively over the west is Miss Green, who represents the Mound City Paint Company. She is a large, masculine woman, and she seldom enters a drug, paint or hardware store without effecting a sale. She can show orders for the past few years aggregating $200,000 worth of paint. There is one familiar drummer in all the western cities. She sells satin advertising banners, which are printed with the rules and hung upon the door of every room in the hotel. You have noticed them with their little bangle fringe. She is a most voluble talker and usually gains her point. There is another and very handsome young lady who travels for a lace factory. She sells to all of the wholesalers and is a good authority on the subject. She knows more about laces than most of her male competitors. One lady who has been registered in a Denver hotel sells draperies, and she is a most artistic draper, selling often large bills. She handles only the smaller stores. Another travels with dress straps, which she claims are un-

SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 16
 "Peter's Vision" Acts x. 1-20—Golden Text: Acts x. 24—Commentary.

A long lesson and brief space for comments again compels me to omit the text and ask the student to read with Bible in hand.

1. Other leaders of hundreds in the Roman army are mentioned in Math. viii. 5-13; xvii. 24, and elsewhere in the Acts. Jesus said of the one mentioned in Math. viii. 5: "He had not seen such faith in Israel as in him."

2. Note the goodness of this centurion, and yet we must conclude from chapter xi. 14, that he was not a saved man. He was devout, feared God, gave alms and prayed always, but none of these however good can give salvation. Prove this from Rom. iv. 5; Eph. ii. 8, 9; I Cor. xiii. 1-3. He was, however, an earnest seeker, and did as well as he knew, and God gave him light.

3. God gave dreams and visions to Abimelech, Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar and others who were Gentiles, but there was a special reason for this revelation to this Gentile, namely because he so honestly lived up to the light he had. "If any man will do His will he shall know of the doctrine" (John vi. 17).

4. He recognized in the angel a superior person, and with awe and reverence asked, "What is it, Lord?" He was immediately assured that God had heard his prayers and observed his devotion. If this was Cornelius, how much more of all who are saved by Jesus' blood and ask things according to His will. What confidences we should have! (John vi. 14, 19).

5. God knows where to put His hand upon a man whom He can use. He knows the town we live in and the house in which we dwell or sojourn. He recognizes all our occupation and the people whom we entertain in our house. He notices the location of our house. In fact, "All things are naked and opened to the eyes of Him with whom we have to do" (Heb. iv. 13).

6. Observe his promptness. He delayed not to do as he was told, but calling two servants and a soldier he hastened to obey orders. The soldier also is called a devout man. The example of such a centurion would tell upon all about him and upon some with marked effect.

7. They were then whom he could rely upon; he told them all that the angel had told him, and sent them to Joppa. He had perfect confidence in the angel, and cheerfully did as he was told. "Willing and obedient, will always obtain blessing" (Isa. i. 19).

8. Caesarea was probably not less than fifty miles from Joppa, and yet the servants left the same evening that Cornelius received the vision they would reach Joppa some time the next day. Now notice how God prepares Peter for his work. When they are not far from Joppa Peter is led by the Spirit to go upon the housetops for prayer. Cornelius was a praying man, Peter was a praying man, and it is to such that God reveals Himself.

9. While waiting for food for his body God lays His hand upon him, he falls into a trance, and the words of the vision which he received the vision they would reach Joppa some time the next day. Now notice how God prepares Peter for his work. When they are not far from Joppa Peter is led by the Spirit to go upon the housetops for prayer. Cornelius was a praying man, Peter was a praying man, and it is to such that God reveals Himself.

DELAMATER HELD GUILTY.
 A VERDICT AGAINST THE EX-SENATOR FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.
 The jury in the Delamater case on trial at Meadville agreed upon a verdict, finding ex-Senator G. W. Delamater guilty of embezzlement as charged and acquitting G. B. Delamater, his father, and T. A. Delamater, his brother. A. B. Richmond, one of the counsels for the defense, gave notice that a motion would be presented for a new trial. If the motion should be refused the case will be appealed to the Supreme Court. If a new trial is not granted by Judge Henderson, there will no doubt be an arrest of execution of judgment while appeal is pending. The penalty in the case just tried is a fine not less than the sum embezzled, and imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one nor more than six years, in solitary confinement and at hard labor.

FOUR HUNDRED TONS OF PAPER.
 IT WILL TAKE ALL THAT TO PRINT THE BAKER BALLOTS.
 Superintendent of Public Printing Grier at Harrisburg, said that 14,000 reams of white and tinted paper, in equal quantities, would be required to print the ballots under the Baker law, which in the aggregate would weigh between 350 and 400 tons. He added that very few presses in the State were adapted to the printing of the tickets. The State Printer had two presses large enough to print the big ballots, but he would not take the contract for printing more than 280,000, which would be about enough for three counties like Lancaster.

PERISHED IN A CHRISTENING TUB.
 While the guests who attended the christening of John Pastula's child, at Centralia, were enjoying themselves, somebody gave the baby, which was a year and a half old, a drink of whiskey. The little toddler became very happy, and, wandering into an adjoining room, fell into the tub of water from which it had been christened and was drowned.

COMMITTEES MAY BUY FOLL TAXES.
 Common Pleas No. 1, Judges Biddle and Breyer, at Philadelphia rendered a decision to the effect that it was not improper for a political organization to pay poll taxes of voters unable or unwilling to pay for themselves, and that neither the Receiver of Taxes nor the Court had a right to question whether the money tendered was the money of the taxpayer himself.

COUNTY POOR FARM BURNED.
 The large barn on the County Poor Farm at Franklin was totally destroyed by fire, with 900 bushels of oats, 500 bushels of wheat, 70 tons of hay, other crops of late harvest, farming machinery, etc. Loss, $7,000; insured for $3,000. The fire was caused by incendiaries.

A NEW BAKER BALLOT.
 BEING PREPARED TO ACCOMMODATE THE DEMAND FOR POLITICAL SHOWS OF POLITICS.
 At the State Department at Harrisburg, there is being prepared a new form of ballot which is to be used under the Baker law. In counties where the People's party and the Prohibitionists have a right to nominate voters, and the method of nominating two additional columns will be added to the form issued from the department a few days ago under the regular party headings. This will make the tickets 22 1/2 inches in size and six columns wide. In some counties where neither the Prohibitionists nor People's party poll 3 per cent. of the whole number of valid votes, the ballots will be four columns wide, while in a few they will be five and in several six.

GROUND TO PIECES BY A TRAIN.
 The horribly mutilated remains of an unknown man were discovered on the Lake Shore track at Wildcat Hollow, just west of Stoneboro. The body was ground to pieces and could not be identified. It is thought that the man fell off the excursion train returning from Stoneboro fair. He wore a straw hat and had gray hair.

WHILE SHOOTING IN THE WOODS NEAR WASHINGTON, Frederick Schou was held up by two men who robbed a gun and his money. The footpads got away with the plunder.
 GEORGE KREPKAN, proprietor of a shooting gallery at Shenandoah, shot himself through the heart accidentally, while raising a rifle to shoot at a mark.
 GEORGE HODEL, of Conneville, a brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was instantly killed at Port Perry by being struck by an overhead bridge.
 The Erie Presbytery at Meadville found Prof. Cooper of Edinboro guilty of falsehood and unchristian conduct, the latter in calling a fellow church member a liar. He was not found guilty of false swearing. Cooper's counsel will appeal to synod.
 The Kuhn school in Unity township, Westmoreland county, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,500; no insurance. The smaller pupils had a narrow escape.
 PETER WHACKER'S barn and six horses at Nobletown were destroyed by fire.
 JOHNSTOWN will celebrate Columbus Day with a grand parade and bicycle tournament.
 JAMES MCKAY, while sitting on a chair against an iron post, in Callow's grocery store in Eppryville, was struck by lightning and killed.
 The coroner's jury at Beaver Falls, in their verdict on the death of George Wilton, who was accidentally killed last Thursday by being crushed between a box car and a building, censured the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.
 Two burglars attempted to rob S. Morgan's dry goods store at Freedom. One was captured and gave his name as George Myers of Chicago. His pal escaped.
 TONY SPORATTI, boss of a gang of Italian laborers at Bradford, was blown to pieces by a can of dynamite, placed under his bunk by enemies among the laborers.
 The black diphtheria has broken out among the Polanders at Avonville, a mining village near Nantcooke. In one family three children died within three days, their sickness lasting but a few hours. It is feared the disease may spread unless steps are taken to prevent it.
 LEWIS SARVEY of Monongahela city, accidentally upset a coffee pot, and so badly scalded a 4-months old child that it died.
 At Washington W. W. Lyons, of Frankfort Springs, was probably fatally hurt while playing ball. Four players fell on top of him and he has been unconscious ever since.
 WHEELMAN LUMSDEN, of Chicago, broke the five-mile world bicycle record at Evansville, Ind., by covering the distance in 12:38:5. The track was perfect.

when you see the camera fiend hove in sight but not so in fall days when you hunt the sunshine on exposed highways. There is no escape. She snaps her camera at you, and you are fixed forever, like a butterfly, pinned against the wall, or some unfortunate tadpole or lizard in alcohol. It is too bad that we should be made to leave such lasting impressions against our will. However, possibly there are young men who would not object to be snapped at by such a charming-looking fiend as is presented in the illustration. Her gown is made up of a striped and embroidered zephyr, the stripes being cream and mauve and the flowers black. The skirt is cut bias and grazes the ground, and may be left quite plain or be ornamented with a ruffe fashioned from a double fold of the material. Inside the bottom of the skirt you put a satinetta flounce. The blouse is made of fitted lining and hooks in the middle. The jabot-like ruffle falls almost to the waist, and is made from strips cut straight as are also the puffed sleeves. For rough usage at the country club, such as nutting parties, mountain climbing, and the like, you need a gray or tan tweed, with which you wear no undershirts, but in place of them a pair of tweed knickerbockers made pretty full, and well under the skirt, a sort of divided garment which, however dress-reform-like it may sound when described, is admirably adapted for walking. The skirt itself should be made very plainly and should be finished all around to a depth of four inches with tan leather. Thus gowned you need not fear wind or weather.

The illustration shows the front and back view of a very pretty dress for a child, the material being a pale rose pongee, with ash of the same shade with figured design in green, and deep lace drapery around the neck and bottom of the skirt.

—BARON BATHORI, a degenerate descendant of a Polish king, amused himself in Riga the other day by firing beer bottles at the people during a fête in the park, many of whom he seriously wounded. He wound up by caning and shooting an editor.
