

THE MEN WHO WORE THE SHIELD

(The following beautiful poem by Kate Brownlee Sherwood, was first published in the National Era, Washington, D. C., the soldiers' paper of America, in a recent issue. The poem will be read and recited by all Grand Army men, and hosts of others, at the celebration of the Revolution Twenty-third Army Corps, Grand Army Plaza, Washington, Sept. 21, 1892, Gen. J. M. Schofield, U. S. A., presiding, and recited by Elizabeth Woodfield Irving.)

ALL heroes of the battle! Hail, men who wore the shield!
Who bore the flag to glory on many a sanguine field!
We celebrate your victories and twine you greener bays,
For peace has wound her olive 'round the crown of sterner days,
The splendor of your conquests casts a halo o'er the land,
And the hopes of lagging ages quicken as they wonder stand;
Though the slogan sounds no longer and the brazen tongues are sealed,
There is proud acclaim to shout your name, O men who wore the shield!

O, I see the boyish faces kindling with the breath of Spring,
Turning from the nestling cottage with the sturdy rifle swing,
From the orchards pink with blossoms to the long and dusty way,
Where the monster guns are growling and the dead are in the way,
And the boyish eyes are glowing and the boyish steps are light,
And the Colonel wheels his horse to gaze, for 'tis a splendid sight;
And with uniforms like heaven's blue with heaven's stars revealed,
They mark the measure with their steps, the men who wore the shield.

THEY are marching, proudly marching, but there's danger in the way,
And the fever springs as stealthily as a wolf upon his prey,
And the sudden shot is flying where the lurking demons hide,
And the dogs of war are growling and their reeking maws are wide,
Lo, the videttes warn the pickets and the pickets warn the lines,
And the long roll roars and rumbles through the sounding sennet pipes,
But the boyish lips are fast and firm, their fealty is sealed,
For heaven's fight whose cause is right, the men who wore the shield.

ROUND the Tennessee mountains, through the famine and the snow,
Round the slender lines of figures see the shivering heroes go,
And with frenzied eyes they're gazing for relief that never comes,
For the Camberlands encamp and there's a death in Longstreet's gums
On the Clinch and on the Holstein Burnside cheers his valiant men,
(Heads uncover, for you loved him; he was proud to lead you then!)
And as oaks defy the tempest when the stormy trumpets are pealed,
So they hold their heads to heaven, the men who wore the shield!

FROM Lenoir and Campbell's Station, with their bare and bleeding feet,
They are falling back on Knoxville in the snow and in the sleet,
And the foe's hand plucks a column as a lion plucks the fold,
And they languish in the prison and they perish in the cold;
They are fighting in the trenches with the fiery Cleburne's men,
And he's riding to destruction while his columns cheer again;
Through the siege and through the sorrow of the long-contested field,
They are conquerors triumphant, the men who wore the shield.

THEY are battering on Atlanta, and their boyish faces wear
All the grim determination of the men who do and dare;
They have shared the bold baptisms, they've received the crimson seal
Given on each furrowed forehead with the styligraph of steel;
Down the ridges of Resaca, on the heights of Kenesaw,
On the monoliths of ages they have writ the Golden Law,
And the bells in all the steeples have the glorious peans pealed,
And the victor crowns are many for the men who wore the shield.

ALL heroes under Foster! Hail, men who wore the shield!
Hail, conquerors who fought with Cox on many a sanguine field!
Hail, victors under Thomas, with the Stars and Stripes ahead!
Hail, to the honored living, hail to the valiant dead!
Hail, royal ranks who rallied to the ringing reveille,
To keep the Union grand and great and free from sea to sea!
Though the slogan sounds no longer and the brazen tongues are sealed,
There is proud acclaim to shout your name, O men who wore the shield!

CABLE CARS' AWFUL WORK.

Two are Dead and Seven Injured. A Gripman Has to Escap a Mob.

As the Eleventh Ward Republican Club was marching down Wythe avenue Saturday night, at Pittsburgh, it was run into by Central traction car No. 64, as a result of which Henry Abel, aged 16, and Ward Ruffner, age 18, are dead, and seven others are injured. The accident occurred between Fulton and Townsend streets, where the street is very steep. The car had stopped at Arthur street and the marchers had commenced getting off the track, when it started again and plowed into their ranks. Abel and Ruffner were caught under it and many others were knocked aside.

There was an immense crowd, and when they realized what was done, there was a perfect storm of rage against the gripman and threats of lynching him were made. He broke through the crowd and escaped and the people turned their attention to the youths under the car. They would have been saved alive had not car 61 come on down the track, striking 64 and driving it over them. Abel was instantly killed, and both of Ruffner's legs were cut off. He died soon after.

The others injured are Henry Switzer, Frank W. Zillmer, Joseph Magold, Jr., John McIlwain, Joseph McIlwain, Robert K. Ginniff, and Albert Kirk. They will all recover.

A Great Naval Demonstration.

On Tuesday war ships and vessels of commerce representing all nations, came to pay tribute to Columbus. Business was practically suspended, and more than 300 steamers and tugboats dropped their ordinary vocations, and formed in holiday parade.

The parade started at noon from Gravesend Bay. There were three columns in the parade, and the distance between each column was 300 yards. The foreign ships occupied the center, the United States vessels on either side as an escort. As the line entered the harbor the salute was fired from either shore. One of the great sights of the parade was a series of gigantic floats illustrating the remarkable progress in the art of ship building since the time Columbus discovered America.

The parade centered and revolved round the foreign naval visitors, the war ships of France, Italy and Spain, amid a roar of cannon which seemed to make the very island of Manhattan tremble.

A fitting climax to this most successful pageant was the scene at the turning point Gravesend. It was nearly noon, and the Philadelphia, preceded by a cloud of tugs and pleasure boats, slowed down in front of Riverside with the foreign warships in the rear. The salute was then fired. The tide was beginning to turn and the gaily bedecked vessels swung around at will and indulged in all kinds of naval "horse play" while waiting the appointed signal for the parting salute.

At 3:35 p. m. the Naval Committee's boat with the Vice President, Governor Flower and the other distinguished guests aboard, turned the buoy and passed the warships on its homeward trip. Then the signal to salute was given, and the Columbian naval regatta closed with the firing of a salute reverberating around the tomb of the silent Grant.

A sight fully as interesting as that of the regatta in line was presented by the immense crowd of spectators, at least a million being present. There were 10 miles of humanity on the shores. From the battery to Harlem was one solid mass of people. After the parade the parks and squares were illuminated with Chinese lanterns and colored lights, and there was another great pyrotechnic display on the Brooklyn bridge.

THE CROWNING PAGEANT.

WO MILLION PEOPLE WITNESSED THE CLIMAX OF THE COLUMBUS CELEBRATION.—GREATEST MILITARY PARADE SINCE THE WAR ENDED.

Wednesday was the greatest day of the Columbus celebration in New York. The city was never so crowded in all its history, and the greatest military parade known on the continent since the Union armies disbanded in 1865 was witnessed by nearly 2,000,000 people.

The procession, which marched from the battery to the great arch at Fifty-ninth street, was 50,000 strong. It was six hours passing a given point, and the United States Regulars who led the column had marched over the entire route and reached the arch before the last four divisions had even got the word to start. The scene along the line of march was wonderful beyond all imagination. The sidewalks were one mass of people, and the buildings were packed from basement to roof with teeming lines of humanity. There was a sea of faces on every side. The sky alone remained unobscured by the vast mass of people. The decorations lent their brilliant colors to the scene, and the constant motion of the militia gave it a kaleidoscopic aspect, bewildering and enchanting in the extreme. It was a sight that no other celebration in American history has ever presented. There was a crowd that no other city in the Western hemisphere could accommodate.

The parade ended at Fifty-ninth street, where the monument to Columbus was unveiled in the presence of an immense crowd of spectators. Among those who took part in the exercises were Vice President Morton, Senator Eliot, Senator Hill, Senator Brewster, the Italian Minister, and the officers of the Italian cruiser Bausan. Little Annie Barstow, the daughter of the president of the monument association, pulled the cords which raised the canopy to fall from the monument, and the heroic marble statue of Columbus was discovered by 100,000 people.

The monument has a square base of granite from which a shaft of the same stone, 27 feet in height, arises. On top stands a majestic statue of Columbus 14 feet in height. It is of Carrara marble and an exact copy of the work of Donatello. Gaetano, a leading sculptor of Rome. It represents the great navigator gazing out into the vista which his prophetic mind has already grasped, and the mighty lands. At one side of the base is a marble figure of the Genius of Geography, and at the other is a bronze eagle, six feet high, which symbolizes the United States and the city of Genoa. Two bronze base reliefs on the other sides of the base show the sighting of land and the landing of Columbus. After the unveiling Archbishop Corrigan blessed the monument.

The civic pageant Wednesday night was a fitting climax to the day's splendors. It started from the Battery shortly after 6 o'clock, headed by several thousand bicyclists bearing colored lanterns. Magnificent floats were in the procession, representing the various American colonies to Columbus, the Puritans, William Penn, George Washington, Indian Tribes, the Press, Poetry and Romance, Music, Science, and Columbus's Car of St. Ste. The Car of Science represented the ship of State, rowed by the Presidents of the United States, with Washington amidship and Columbus at the helm. The costumes of those taking part were of the most beautiful and varied. The colored lights and fireworks which blazed along the entire route of the procession lit up a scene of grandeur never before witnessed in the history of the city. The crowd was on the streets, and great enthusiasm was displayed.

COLUMBIAN CHAP.

New Haven, Conn., had a Columbus celebration, 6,000 being in the line of procession.

At Philadelphia, 8,000 Catholic boys, uniformed, paraded and were reviewed by Archbishop Ryan.

COLUMBUS CELEBRATION IN SPAIN.

Madrid the scene of a Continual Round of Festivities.

Cannons, bells and music from all the military bands announced at daybreak the beginning of the Columbus celebration in Madrid. The city is profusely decorated. Early mass was said in all the churches. Military bands were playing all day long in the different parts of the city and the public squares were turned into dancing platforms by the jubilant populace. The statue of Columbus was almost hidden under the load of wreaths and flowers deposited there.

A great procession, formed by the learned professions, students and scientists, marched before the statue, where orations were delivered and poems recited in honor of the discoverer. Numerous public-spirited citizens made large appropriations of food and drink for the needy, and everybody was given a chance at the merry making. The American colony here celebrated the day by speeches. The Queen was represented by one of her chamberlains.

Two Children Die From Snake Bites. A little child of Farmer Askmore of Cleburne county, Ala., a boy and a girl, while playing in the woods uncovered a rattlesnake, which, quick as a flash, buried its fangs in the leg of the girl. While defending his sister the boy was bitten twice. Both children died from the effects of the bite.

FIGURING THE RESULTS.

Forecast of the Presidential Election Made By Both Sides.

There will be 444 votes in the next Electoral College, and 223 will be necessary to a choice. At National Democratic Headquarters, New York, they estimate that the Democratic National ticket will get not less than 245 electoral votes. This is counting on the 15 votes of Indiana. If that state goes Republican the Democrats will have 230 votes according to their calculations, seven more than required.

A table based on the reports received at the Democratic headquarters gives the following as their expected result of the election:

STATES.	Democrat.	Republican.	Waiver.
Alabama	11	11	11
Arkansas	8	8	8
California	9	9	9
Colorado	4	4	4
Connecticut	6	6	6

Wisconsin	12	12	12
Wyoming	3	3	3
Totals	245	172	27

To take the 36 votes of New York from the Cleveland column and give them to Harrison would leave the former 309 and give the latter 308. This would throw the balance into the House of Representatives.

At the Republican National headquarters, figures, based on the claims they are making, show the following:

A Homestead Paper Admits Defeat for the Strikers.

Editor Schooley of the Homestead, Pa., Local News, which paper had been considered the organ of the advisory board, surprised the strikers by publishing the following opinion:

"The Homestead situation to-day is a peculiar one. On one hand the spectacle is presented of over 2,000 workmen in the mill, among who are about 200 of the former Homestead employees. A number of skilled workmen from Braddock, Duquesne, Pittsburg and other places are among the non-union workmen. The non-union workmen now live in and about the works, and within the borough of Homestead. Nobody denies these facts. If they do they are blind. That the company has won is admitted by many business men and citizens, large numbers of mechanics, prominent Amalgamated men and certain members of the advisory board. These admissions are, as a rule, confidential, but none the less true. On the other hand the spectacle is presented of between two and three thousand idle workmen walking the streets of Homestead, keeping up the expectation that sooner or later they will win the strike. The only result the strikers can show is that they are keeping themselves well in line, and are causing the steel firm loss and trouble. The candid observer can come to the following conclusions only:

"First—The Carnegie Steel Company is gradually succeeding in its strike.

"Second—The great Homestead strike is dying out."

Colorado's Big Snow Storm.

In the big snowstorm that raged through Colorado along the line of the Union Pacific last week, two fatalities are reported. At Central City Ratso Ebille, blinded by the snow, walked into a five-foot shaft and was instantly killed. An unknown man was found dead beside the railroad track, near Greeley, to-day. He had died from the effects of the storm. Many thousands of dollars worth of cattle and horses perished on the ranges. Several trains are overdue, and their whereabouts are unknown.

INDICTED FOR TREASON.

True Bills Returned Against the Advisory Committee. The Carnegie and Pinkerton Officials Were Also Indicted for Murder, Aggravated Riot and Conspiracy.

The Grand Jury at Pittsburgh returned true bills in the treason cases against the Homestead strikers, and also in the murder, conspiracy and aggravated riot cases against the Carnegie officials and Pinkerton detectives.

The indictments for treason involve 31 defendants, all of whom are strikers or members of the advisory board.

The charges of murder against H. C. Frick and other Carnegie officials are for the killing of George W. Rutter, John E. Morris, Joseph Sobel and Elias Wayne, whose deaths resulted from the riot. The true bills are against H. C. Frick, F. T. F. Lovejoy, Robert Pinkerton, William Pinkerton, J. Edgar Hoover, G. A. Leishman, J. Edgar Hoover, C. W. Bedell, W. H. Burr, John Cooper, F. W. Hinde, Nevill McCannell and James Dovey.

In the conspiracy cases Frick, George Lauder, H. M. Curry, Leishman, Otis Chilis, Lovejoy, L. C. Phipps, G. A. Corey, J. A. Potter, J. C. Dovey, McCannell, the Pinkertons, Cooper, Bedell, Frick, Leishman, Primer, Burr and Hinde are the defendants.

In the aggravated riot cases true bills are returned against Frick, Curry, Leishman, Lovejoy, L. C. Phipps, Dovey, McCannell, Cooper, Bedell, Primer, Burr and Hinde.

The indictment in the treason cases, after reciting the names of the defendants and referring to their responsible offenses, says:

"And in order to fulfill and to bring into effect the said traitorous compassings, imaginings and intentions of them, the said defendants, each and every one of them, and on divers other days and times between the 1st day of June and on the said 5th day of September, at the borough of Homestead, in the county of Allegheny, in the State of Pennsylvania, the said defendants, each and every one of them, did unlawfully, maliciously and traitorously assemble and gathered together, did feloniously and traitorously join and assemble themselves together against the said Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and then and there, with force and arms, feloniously, unlawfully, falsely and traitorously, and in a hostile, war-like manner, did array and dispose themselves against the said Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and did unlawfully, maliciously and traitorously, and in a hostile, war-like manner, did array and dispose themselves against the said Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to the end that its Constitution, laws, rights and authority might be and were defied, resisted and subverted by the said defendants and their armed allies, to wit, the said persons whose names are to the said indictment unknown, contrary to the duty of allegiance and fidelity of the said defendants, to the evil example of all others in like cases offending, contrary to the form of the act of the General Assembly in such cases made and provided, and against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania."

The indictment against H. C. Frick and others in the murder cases are separate, making four in all.

The indictment against the Carnegie officials in the conspiracy cases is a lengthy document. Among other things it sets forth concerning H. C. Frick and the others named:

"That they did unlawfully, falsely and maliciously conspire, combine, confederate and agree together to deprive, lessen and diminish wages, price and compensation of labor of divers persons employed by the Carnegie Steel Company, Limited, to then and there close up the said steel mill, factory, and to cease work and operations therein, and thereupon to convey, and cause to be sent 200 men and upwards, armed with guns, revolvers, pistols, knives and other deadly weapons, to overawe, intimidate and frighten divers persons in the said township of Millfin, who were then lately before employed by the said Carnegie Steel Company, to invade the said township of Millfin and to attack the said persons who were then lately before employed, and to shoot off and discharge the said guns and other deadly weapons, against the bodies of the said persons who were then lately before employed by the said Carnegie Steel Company, Limited."

In regard to the fight on the morning of July 6th, the bill says, the defendants "did counsel and advise the shooting."

The bill in the cases against the Carnegie officials differ very little from that in the conspiracy act, except that it specifies that, in pursuance to the alleged conspiracy, the alleged unlawful and riotous acts were committed.

THE LAST OF THE CHOLERA.

Quarantines Raised. But few Cases in Hamburg.
