A child hurs itself and cries, but the mother's touch and soothing voice calm the pain.

Secretary J. B. Harrison of the New Hampshire Forestry Commission in an address to the people of that state offers to speak wherever a meeting can be arranged on the subject of the waste of New Hampshire's natural resources, by which he means the destruction of its forests. He hopes by arousing the people to the danger of losing eventually their "summer business" to evert a pressure on the Legislature that will result in the passage of laws for the protection and preservation of the woodlands. "It is time." he declares, "for some advance in the methods of discussion of forestry and related subjects. The course hitherto generally followed in this country by writers and speakers on these topics is inadequate for our situation here. We shall have to get down from our rhetorical stills pretty soon and face the facts in the case, or we shall not have much grand and beautiful scenery to talk about." Mr. Harrison is not actuated, maintains the New York Post, merely by sentimental term his love for the scenic beauties of New Hampshire. He also points out that with the devastation of the forests the watercourses must dwindle and dry up and the manufac turing interests of the State suffer incalculable loss. Mr. Harrison's appeal is reinforced by a speech of Dr. William Everett of Massachusetts on the same subject at the Hingham Fair, in which he said: "We claim to be far ahead of Europe in the arts that concern the glory of a nation. Yet we are far behind some of the least progressive of the European nations in the noble art of forestry, the art which watches the woodlands like sheep or cattle, almost like children-thinning out, planting, preserving, fencingusing under reasonble restrictions, the natural increase for every one of the million uses to which luxury or necessity can turn the tree, yet preserving the patriarchs of the forest, their sturdy children, their sapling grandchildren and descendants, so that without crowding, without gaps, without untimely decay, without premature and self-obstructive growth, a noble country can point with pride on hillside and plain, by rivers and in parks, to its magnificent and primeval woodlands.

THE MODERN GOLDEN CALF

DR. TALMAGE DENOUNCES

HUMAN SACRIFICES ON THE GORGEOUS ALTER OF MAMMON.

HE subject of discourse chosen by Rev. course chosen by Rev.

Dr. Talmage of Brooklyn, N. Y., for Brooklyn, N.Y., for his first sermon after national election, was one peculiarly appropriate to the moneymaking spirit of the times. It was "The Golden Calf." (the text selected being Exodus west) 20, "Mad he took the calf which dus xxxii, 20. "And he took the calf which they had made and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder and strewed it upon the water and made the children of Israel drink of it."

People will have a god of some kind, and they prefer one of their own making. Here come the Israelites, breaking off their polden earrings, the mon as well as the women, for in those times they were masculine as well as feminine decorations. Where did they get these beautiful gold earrings, com-ing up as they did from the desert? Oh, they borrowed them of the Egyptians when they left Egypt.

Put aside this curtain and you see the golden calf of modern idolatry. It is not like other idols, made out of stocks or stone, but it has an ear so sensitive that it can hear the whispers on Wall street and Third street and State street, and the footfalls in the Bank of England, and the flutter of a Frenchman's heart on the Bourse. It has an eye so keen that it can see the rust on the farm of Michigan wheat and the insect in the Maryland peach-orchard, and the trampled grain under the hoof of the Russian war charger. It is so mighty that it swings any way it will the world's shipping. It has its foot on all the merchantmen and the steamers. It started the American Civil War, and under God stopped it.

This golden calf of the text has its right front foot in New York, its left front foo in Chicago, its right back foot in Charleston, its let back foot in New Orleans, and when it shakes itself it shakes the world.

usinares used it shakes the world.
But every god must have its temple, and the golden calf of the text is no exception.
Its temple is vaster than St. Paul's. Standing at the head of the temple, as the presiding deity, are the hoofs and shoulders and eyes and ears and nostrils of the calf of gold.

Further; every god must not only have its Further, every god must not only have its temple, but its altar of sacrifice, and this golden calf of the text is no exception. Its altar is not made out of stone as other altars, but out of counting room desks and fire-proof safes, and it is a broad, a lone, a high, tar. The victims sacrificed on it are incumerable. What does this god care about the greans and struggles of the victims before it? With cold, metallic eye it looks on and vot lets them suffer. Oh! heart and earth, what an altar! what a sacrifice of body, mind and soul! The physical health of a great multitude is flumg on this sacrificial nitar. They cannot sleep, and they take chloral and morphine and intoxicants.

ical neath of a great multitude is think carrical altar. They cannot sleep, and they take chloral and morphine and intoxicans.

Their nerves gone, their digestion gone, their brain gone, they die. The clergy man comes in and reads the funeral services: "Hessead are the dead who die in the Lord." Mistake. They did not "die in the Lord." Mistake was alled to the did not not only sacrifice themselves, but they sacrifice their families. If a man by an ill course is determined to go to perdition, I suppose you will have to let him go; but he puts his wife and chi dren into an equipage that is the amazement of the avenues, and the driver lashes the horses into two whirlwinds, and the spokes fia-h in the sun, and the golden headgear of the harness gleams, until Blaek Calsmity takes the bits of the horses and stops them.

Still the degrading worship goes on, and the devotees kneel and kiss the dust and cro-s themselves with the bloo I of their own sacrifice. The music rolls on under the arches; it is madé of clinking silver and clinking gold and the rattling specie of the banks and brokers' shops and the voices of all the exchanges. The sonrano of the worship is carried by the timid voices of men who have just begun to speculate; while the deep bass rolls out from those wno for ten years of iniquity have been doubly damned. Chorus of voices rejocing over what they have lost. This temple of which I speak stands open day and night, and there is the glittering god with his four feet on broken hearts and there is the smoking altar of sacrifice, new victims every moment on it and there are the kneeling devotees; and the doxology of the worship rolls on, while death stands with mouldy and skeleton arm b Morel morel morel solutions that this worship must be broken up, at the behavoir of Moses in my next text indicated. So, my hearers, you may depend upon it that God will burn and he will grind to pieces the golden calf of modern idolatry, and he will compel the people in their agony to drink it. If not before, it will be so on the last day. I know not where the fire will begin, but it will be a hot blaze. All the Government securities of the Unified States and Oreat Britain will curl up in the first blast. What then will become of your golden calf? Who then so poor as to worship if? Melted, or between the upper and the nether mill-stone of falling mountains ground to pow.

or between the upper and the nether millstone of falling mountains ground to powder. Dagon down. Moloch nown. Juggernaut down. Golden caif down.

But, my friends, every day is a day of judgment, and God is all the time grinding to pieces the golden caif. Merchants of Brooklyn and New York and London, what is the characteristic of the time in which we live? "Bad," you say. Professional men, what is the characteristic of the time in which we live? "Bad," you say. Though I should be in a minority of one, I venture the opinion that these are the best times we have had for the reason that God is teaching the world, as never before, that oldfastioned bonesty is the only thing that will stand.

We have learned as never before that for ing the world, as never before, that old-fashioned honesty is the only thing that will stand.

We have learned as never before that forgeries will not pay; that the spending of $50,000 no conny sears and a palatial city residence, when there are only $30,000 income, will not pay; that the appropriation of trust funds to our own private speculation will not pay. We had a great national tumor, in the shape of fictitious prosperity.

We called the automal enlargement; instead of calling it an enlargement we might better have called it as welling. It has been a tumor and God is cutting it out—has cut it out, and the nation will get well and will count shaped to the principles of our fathers and grandfathers when twice three made six instead of 60, and when the apples at the bottom of the barrel were just as good as the apples at the top of the barrel, and a silk handkerchief was not half cotton, and a man who wore a $5 coat paid for was more honored than a man who wore a $50 coat not paid for.

The golden calf of our day, like the one of

and the drygoods seller. Then the retailer borrows of the wholecale dealer.

After a while the capitalist wants his money and he rushes upon the wholesale dealer, and the who sale dealer wants his money and the rushes upon the retailer, and the retailer wants his money and he rushes upon the retailer, and the retailer wants his money and he rushes upon the consumer and we all go down together. It is this temptation to borrow, and borrow, that keeps the people everiasingly praying to the golden calf for help, and just at he minute they expect help the calf treads on them. The judgments of tool, like the Moses in my text, will rush in and break up this worship; and I say, let the work go on until every man shail learn to speak the truth with his neighbor, and themselves bound to keep them, and when a man who will not repent of his business iniquity, but goes on wishing to satiate his iannibal appetite by devouring widow's souses, shall, ry the law of the land, be souses, shall, ry the law of the land, be soused to the cour idol demolished. Ah, my, friends! I we have made the world our god, when we come to die we will see our idol ground to pieces sy our people, and we will have to drink it in bitter regrets for the wasted opportunities of a lifetime.

A Salesman's Regret.

'I see that some distinguished anthropologist has figured out that Adam was 128 feet tall," said Dick Godwin, a cloth salesman, to a Globe-Democrat reporter. 'I am sorry the old man is dead. I would like to sell him a car load of cloth for a pair of trousers. Eve. according to this believer in Edenic Brobdignaggians, was 118 feet from her dainty pink toes to the top fluff of her blonce bangs. And this pair of gigantic epicures divided an apple between them! It were equal to Mrs. Parvenue making two bites of a cherry. Eve's neck must have been at least six feet long, and her mouth an opening of a linear yaro! She could carry a Saratoga trunk in each check with as much ease as her degenerate daughters transport a wad of spruce gum. Think of poor Adam trying to fill that mouth with caramels at $1 a pound. The prectous pair must have stripped every fig tree in Paradise to make them aprons. But I am inclined to believe that the Industrious theory builder is mistaken. Our first parents were far more likely to have been pigmies than giants. Instead of man degenerating physically he is stendily improving. Reverse the process of reasoning by which the conclusion is reached that Adam was 128 feet tall—apply the true theory of progression—and we have for our primal progenitor a gentleman who might, without removing his tall hat, walk beneath the huge legs of the late Tom Thunh."
