TOPICS AND COMMENT.

The Senatorial mills are grinding slowly and surely, but the output varies from that predicted.

If Hawaii is bound to belong to some nation, its owner had better be the United States than Great Britain.

If all matter relating to prize-fighters were paid, even at a rate of one cent a line, some newspapers would soon be rich.

THERE may be a silver lining to that Congressional cloud, but it is very slow in making itself visible to the naked eye.

The Maryland man who named his triplets Grover, Frances and Ruth is evidently desirous of finding out what's in a name?

The New York Sun's old time saying, "He is a good man, and weighs 300 pounds," is applicable to the new Senator from Kentucky.

BROTHER CARNEGIE evidently believes in discretion. He remained away from Homestead until it was no longer dangerous to go there.

HAD Mr. Blaine's friends shown the unity during his life that they have displayed since his death, he would have been President years ago.

"THE world do move." The Philadelphia school of design for women has two foot ball teams. One kicking woman is quite enough for the average man.

MISS HAWAII to Uncle Sam: "Will you have me?" Uncle Sam to Miss Hawaii: "Well, er—really, this is so sudden that I must have time to think before deciding."

MME. DIAZ, the wife of the Mexican President, will, at her own expense, send to the World's fair a woman's band of forty-five musicians. It will comprise the most expert musicians in Mexico.

THERE is something wrong about the make-up of the American who is not proud to have been a fellow citizen of James G. Blaine, whose fame as a statesman will outlive the political opinions of his time.

MORE money is lost to the farmer in a single season by bad roads, than would cost to rebuild them in the most approved fashion, so that crops could be marketed during any part of the year.—Manchester, (N. H.) Mirror.

HURON, South Dakota, advertises for a carload of marriageable girls. Salisbury has some to spare. Not that our girls are worthless, however, but because there are so few young men in town that are worthy of a good wife.

THE Pennsylvania Railroad Company has openly declared war against organized labor, and is discharging all who do not renounce their allegiance to the different unions. Fifteen were discharged in one bunch at Indianapolis, recently.—Ex.

REMEMBER the idea of March. Not only does the country get a new administration, but it gets rid of a grasping monopoly. The principal patents on the Bell telephone will expire in March, throwing the telephone business open to all.

MR. ANDREW CARNEGIE used a column in the newspapers of the country to administer copious doses of "taffy" to himself and Frick; but he never said a word about the blood spilled at Homestead, or of the more recent antics of the hunger demon at the same place.

"NOTICE! Having devoted several months to listening, I am now desirous of devoting a little time to digesting what has been said to me. Those who do not take this hint may regret it, as my retreat is guarded by savage dogs and spring-guns." G. C.

TO IMPROVE the roads increases the value of farm lands and facilitates the marketing of produce. As civilization advances, the roads improve. You can always judge pretty correctly the people of any community by the condition of their roads.—Vincennes (Md.) Commercial.

CONGRESSMAN HARTER, of Ohio, has evolved a scheme to save himself from being worried to death by the would-be postmasters in his district. He will only recommend those who have received a majority of the votes of their townsmen at a public meeting held for the purpose. The idea is good enough to be passed around.

THERE seems to be a disposition to "call out the troops" on very small provocations, these days. Some people are playing with fire, and seem to forget that soldiers have always been the main dependence of the great tyrants of the world. Every time the militia is called out in this country the European monarchists shout with ghastly glee.

You can always judge a town and its people by its newspaper. Never buy town lots or lands where a poor, half-starved newspaper is published. Newspapers these days are a necessity, not a luxury. They are so cheap that the poorest man can have them—unless he is running a bill at the saloon. It matters not how many city papers a man may take, he should give an honest support to his home paper.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE Chicago Inter Ocean, in an editorial on the woman's vote in that city for trustees of the state university, says:

"The women who voted yesterday will be ready to vote again when opportunity offers, and to assure their stay-at-home sisters that at the polling places a lady is treated as courteously as in a first class store. Election day witnessed quite a creditable beginning of the era of woman suffrage in Chicago. Let us hope that the limit of the right will be extended, and that the number of women availing themselves of it will be increased."

Of course it is none of our business whether a new county is formed or not out of parts of Allegany and Garrett counties, Md. In fact we are not interested in the project and do not care a straw what is done in the matter. But if a new county is formed, Loucaoning, it seems to us, has the best claims for the county-seat. It claims a larger population than Frostburg, and aside from that, it is more centrally located, has better railroad facilities, and more all-around hustling qualities than any other town in the Georges Creek section.

BEDFORD county has a hot spot. The Piney Creek correspondent of the Bedford Gazette is authority for the statement that for some time past steam and hot air have been issuing from the ground near the Fairchance burying ground on Green Ridge, near the Fulton county line at Barnes Gap. A woman who attempted to cross the hot spot during the cold snap was glad to get away with scalded legs. The phenomenon appeared unexpectedly and cannot be explained by any of the residents.

It is now high time for the Bedford county Democratic editors to repent. We always had an idea that hades was somewhere in Bedford county.

NEWSPAPERS nearly always reflect the opinions of the majority of their readers, and as at least three-fourths of the newspapers of the United States are opposed to closing the gates of the World's fair on Sunday, it is very plain that the great majority of the people are in favor of the great fair being open on that day. And if the majority are in favor of Sunday opening, that ought to settle it. There is nothing to compel anyone to attend the fair on Sunday, and those who are too conscientious to attend on that day can stay away. The majority should rule in matters where the minority is not coerced into taking a hand in any alleged wickedness. About all that Sunday closing of the World's fair would accomplish would be a big boom for the beer gardens and the "scolled dove" fraternity. That being the case, and it certainly would be the case, what would be gained for morality?

Why Many Editors are Skeptics.

In the following the Rev. T. D. Tallmage undertakes to explain why so many newspaper men are skeptics: "One of the greatest trials of the newspaper profession is that its members are compelled to see more of the shams of the world than any other profession. Through every newspaper office passes day after day all the wickedness of the world, all vanities that want to be repaid; all the mistakes that want to be corrected; all the dull speakers who want to be thought eloquent; all the meanness that wants to get its wares noticed gratis in its editorial columns, in order to save the tax of the advertising columns; all the men who want to be set right, who were never right; all the cracked brain philosophers with stories as long as their hair and as gloomy as their finger nails in mourning because bereft of soap; all the bores who come to stay a few minutes, but stay hours. Through the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shams of the world are seen day after day, and temptation is to believe neither God, man nor woman. It is no surprise to me that in this profession there are some skeptical men: I only wonder that journalists believe anything."

SOME REFORMS.

Under the heading of "Old Crank's Serial Sermon," published in the Sacramento Record-Union, we find lots of good hard sense. From a late one we clip the following "reforms," which are put before our readers for them to think over:

First—Abolish all oaths which are required in law, and administer legal mandates instead, with the same penalty for disregard of a mandate that is fixed to the violation of an oath. Administering an oath is a barbarous ceremony, fit only for a superstitious people who lack the common sense of civilization.

Second—Abolish all official bonds, and also all bonds required of those accused of being criminals; because it is unjust to require the innocent to suffer for the guilty. Substitute legal penalties to be borne by the guilty only.

Third—as our jury system is a flagrant and despotical infringement on the liberties of the people, without one redeeming feature, abolish that, and substitute a common sense system, from which some benefit can be derived. Think of the inconsistency! In a country where freedom and liberty are the watchwords, law-abiding citizens are hauled away from their business, without having any voice or choice in the matter, ostensibly to make them serve the public; and, to add to the injustice, oaths are imposed upon them which no conscientious man could take without a mental substitution of sense, which ought to—but does not—exist in the oath itself.

Men are made to swear to decided according to law and the evidence produced, when they do not know the law, and many of whom are incompetent to separate the legally admissible from the inadmissible evidence. The consequences are well known. Decisions are rendered which surprise common sense, and sometimes common-sense decisions are rendered which surprised the lawyers, because they do not conform to the law.

Does any man who is ordinarily intelligent doubt the assertion that if men were selected and elected because of their fitness for such office, instead of being drawn by lottery, regardless of their right to liberty (of choice, at least) or fitness for such service, justice would be administered more in accordance with its dictionary definition than it is now?

My plan would be to elect two or more justices of the peace in every township, liable to serve as jurors whenever called upon by the courts.

Abolish the pernicious practice of permitting lawyers to object to jurors for frivolous reasons, but give power to the courts to change jurors for bias, or proved prejudice.

Abolish juries in courts when only trivial cases are adjudicated.

Our present practice of permitting any accused individual to require a jury often imposes a greater punishment on law-abiding citizens who are compelled to serve as jurors than the law imposes on the accused when convicted.

The Pennsylvania exhibit at the World's Fair will be one of the most unique that will appear at the great exposition. The preparation of the exhibit is under the direction of Dr. Warren, of Chester, of Bird Book fame, who has well under way a representation of a mountain that will be covered with foliage interspersed with birds and mammals in life attitudes. Our two hundred and fifty species of birds will be mounted and nearly all the kinds of animals in the state will also be mounted in life attitudes about the mountain.—Ex.

The Commissioners of Somerset county are after the South Penn railroad again. Two years ago they had all the South Penn rights-of-way in this county returned as taxable for county and local purposes. The returned valuation of the company's property was put at $175,000, and the tax levied was $3,600. The officers of the railroad company were notified of the Commissioners' action, but paid no attention to it. Now the Commissioners have determined to have all the South Penn's property in the county exposed to public sale by the County Treasurer as unseated lands.

Those merchants whose advertisements do not appear in the columns of the Republican have not gone out of business. They are still with us and they still have some of the goods on their shelves they had "befo' de wah."—Oakland Republican.
