CORRESPONDENCE.

Grantsville.
Mr. Alvin Getty and wife, of Cumberland, spent a week with their parents.
From here they went to Meyersdale.

H. M. Lichty and Harvey Reitz, both of Salisbury, were in town last Sunday; they seemed to be very much interested in one of our citizen's crop of grapes.

But probably this was the cloak under which they managed to converse with the young daughter.

Miss Annie Smith, of Salisbury, canvassed the town one day last week with a book and lace curtains; she reports fair success, something we are glad to note.
Bertwin Ryland and Mrs. Zimmerman, both of Meyersdale, visited his parents over Sunday.

The picnic in the town of Bittering, last Saturday, was a grand success; many young folks from this place attended.
But it wound up in the usual way—with a fight. It seems some people can't go away from home, not even to a Sunday school picnic, without creating a disturbance. A little horse sense knocked into such people would be serving them about right.

Rev. Michaels and wife are visiting at Mr. Muhlenberg's for a few days.

Jeremiah Wagner's family, from Baltimore, is here rusticating for a few days.
Mrs. Ross Compton and Miss Jennie Miller will start today for the World's Fair; an enjoyable trip is anticipated.

Rev. Enlow preached his farewell address in the Methodist church, last Sunday evening. He don't expect to return to this charge after Conference, for which we feel truly sorry, as we regret very much to lose so estimable a citizen.
Sept. 5th, 1893. ENLOW.

If you can afford to be annoyed by sick headache and constipation, don't use De Witt's Little Early Risers for these little pills will cure them.

A. F. SPEICHER.

Savage.
N. B. Christner and A. J. Folk have already threshed about 150 bushels of buckwheat. N. B. was so hungry for buckwheat cakes that he hammered a pint of the grain on A. J.'s anvil, but going only enough flour for one cake.

We had a heavy frost, last week, which cut some of the buckwheat crop short.
"The Rocky Mountain 'Coon gang" has made a raid on the 'coons. They killed four 'coons and a half-dozen skunks.

All that honesty, experience and skill can do to produce a perfect pill, has been employed in making De Witt's Little Early Risers. The result is a specific for sick headache, biliousness and constipation.
A. F. SPEICHER.

Rockwood.
Messrs. George and Harvey Schilling and Miss Lucy Peaga, of Cumberland, Md., were the guests of their uncle, L. H.
Ward.

Rev. Dr. Bergstresser, of the Lutheran church, delivered his introductory sermon in the Lutheran church, Sunday morning, at 10:30 o'clock. He also preached a very interesting and instructive sermon in the evening, upon the subject of—"Upon this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Dr. Bergstresser was formerly of Middletown, Md. He has accepted the call for the Rockwood charge and seems to be quite acceptable to the people.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hetzel and family, of Conneville, Pa., have been visiting relatives and friends here for the past week.

Mr. Edwin E. Bach, formerly of this place, but now of Indiana, Pa., is visiting friends here.

Mr. John Cooper and Miss Jennie L.
Brendel were married on Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Growall, Rev. Woods, of Meyersdale, officiating. Her brothers Franklin and William, Miss Heffley, of Berlin, and Miss Ella Werner witnessed the ceremony.
The couple started on a wedding tour, Wednesday. Their friends wish them a happy voyage on the sea of Matrimony.

Our public school opens on Monday next, with O. O. Saylor as principal. A good attendance is expected.

John W. Porter is visiting the World's Fair.

J. C. F. Miller's dwelling is nearing completion.

S. A. Kendall is one of our many friends visiting the World's Fair.

Penrose Wolf's dwelling, on the corner of White Oak and Broadway, looms up with a fine coat of paint.

J. W. Miller, Foster Walter and Harry Benford contemplate viewing the sights at the World's Fair, in the future.

Army of the Potomac on the Move.
On the 26th of Nov., 1863, we again made a general forward movement, our corps crossing the Rapidan river at Germania Ford and going into camp on a hill along the river. Next morning the ground was white with snow and everything was wet. We were so benumbed that it was with great difficulty that we were able at all to kindle a fire to cook our breakfast and dry our wet clothes.
It was Thanksgiving day, and I thought of home more than ever and wished that this cruel war was over. But with all our hardships, trials and privations, I still felt thankful that the God of battles had caused victory to perch upon our banner, for many were the victories won during the year of 1863.

After a hearty breakfast, the bugle sounded attention and we were again pushing forward into an unknown country, principally woodland and underbrush. About 2 p. m. word came back to us to "uncap our pieces and double-quick." We all knew what that meant, and if there ever was a time when men's knees weakened, it was when that order came back along the line. The meaning of the order was to use the bayonets instead of the balls. After going about half a mile, we made a short turn to our right, when the Rebels opened a battery on us at short range, wounding five men.

We quickly changed front and swept through the woods to a small field and laid down. While going through the woods there were three things that occurred that would make one laugh, though death was staring him in the face.
The first was that of a Dutchman, when a piece of shell struck his knapsack and knocked him down. He jumped up, shook his fist at the Rebels and said:
"Youst come over by me and I knock you to h—l and gone." The second was a true story on Comrade McCormick.
He had a pocket Bible in one pocket and a deck of cards in the other, and not wishing to be found dead or wounded with a pack of cards on his person, he concluded to throw the cards away; but he made a mistake and threw his pocket Bible away and didn't know any better until after we returned to winter quarters. The third was on our Left while the line of battle was approaching the same field. They drove a hog ahead of them, and some six or eight of my regiment jumped up and after the hog; and with all the threats and commands from the officers, they would not stop until they caught the hog, which was within a hundred yards of the Rebel battery; and before the hog was done squealing, one of them was running back with a ham. Why the Rebels did not fire on them, or on us any more, I am at a loss to know; but I suppose they thought that if those half-dozen men were a fair representation of the troops in the woods, that it was not healthy for them to remain there any longer, and they limbered up and pulled out, which ended the racket for that day.

Next day, after throwing out flankers, we moved off at a moderate rate, and about 9 a. m. a cold rain and sleet set in, which kept us until we reached Mine run, in the evening, where we found the Rebels behind strong breast works.
That night I was on picket, and it cleared off and got intensely cold. I thought I would perish; in fact some of the pickets did freeze to death. It remained very cold and we were forbidden to kindle fires anywhere near the front.

Next day we were taken back behind a large hill, where there were some fires.
Here we warmed up and made some coffee. That night my mess gathered some brush and made a large fire, and after the brush was burned away, we swept the fire away and lay down on the warm ground, thinking we would have a good night's sleep. But about 2 a. m. I woke up so cold that I could hardly get up. I had filled my canteen with water, the evening before, and put it under my knapsack to keep it from being stolen.
When I went for my canteen to get some water to make coffee, with which to warm me up, I found that the water was frozen and the canteen burst.

On the 30th of Nov. our corps was to charge the Rebel works at 3 a. m. It was bright moonlight, and when going out to form as near the works as possible, in the early part of the night, we were ordered to tie our tin cups, so as not to make any noise, and also to carry our guns at a trail; for the moonlight on the guns could be seen at a great distance.
Our good old General Sedgwick was loth to take his good corps of reliable veterans into a slaughter pen. He made a personal inspection of the place and found it swampy for over a hundred yards or more on each side of the run.
He so reported to Gen. Meade, saying:
"I will lead my men over there, but when I get there I won't have men enough to form a camp guard." Meade countermanded the order and we were marched back about half a mile and formed in line of battle, my regiment supporting the 1st New York battery, which opened fire on the Rebel works at daylight, the Rebels replying in such a manner as to shake the earth. While lying there on the frozen ground, one of the battery men had both feet shot off, not ten feet from me. That night we were withdrawn, and on the 2nd of December we recrossed the Rapidan and went into our winter quarters near Brandy Station, Culpeper county.

On the 13th of Feb. I re-enlisted for 3 more years, received a 35-day furlough, and on the 16th I reached home. I returned to my regiment on the 22d of March and found it pretty well filled up with recruits. Among them was my brother Samuel, which made the fifth one from our family.

My next will be on the great battle of the Wilderness.

Hints About Apples and Cider-making.
Never mix rotten apples with cider apples.
Never cheat your cattle or hogs out of the premature apples.
Never take dirty apples to the cider mill.
Never put apples into a dirty wagon bed.
Never start to a cider mill with a load of apples without pails to rinse them at every convenient stream.
Never be so particular with the filling apples only and forget your cider apples.

Never allow your apples to lie on the ground, as the earth will injure their flavor.

Never injure your apples by letting the sun scorch them.
Never forget to take your apples to Reitz's applebutter factory.

Never forget to observe these "pointers."

The Hagerstown Herald is publishing some interesting stories of old times from the columns of the Torch Light of 1823.
In those days the office of postmaster was not very lucrative, according to an advertisement which appeared Dec. 23, 1823, from Mr. Daniel Schnebley, the postmaster, who informs the public that given January 1, 1824, no letters will be given out without the postage being paid in cash; that no attention is paid to his solicitations for payment; that people have been getting letters and papers for nearly two years without paying a cent, and that he has to pay nearly every quarter to the Postoffice department an amount equal to his receipts.

In ignorance of the merits of De Witt's Little Early Risers is a misfortune.
These little pills regulate the liver, cure headache, dyspepsia, bad breath, constipation and biliousness.
A. F. SPEICHER.

In the summary results by Professor Patterson, of the Maryland experiment Station, is found this item: "The corn fodder, or stover, from one acre of land yields as much digestible matter as two tons of timothy hay." Also this: "There is more digestible matter in the corn fodder from an acre than in the corn ears from that acre." This reveals a fact not generally known that corn fodder is quite as valuable as the corn taken from it, and in this season of short crops and high prices for hay should induce farmers to grow and save large crops of fodder, that they may market their valuable hay crop.

We could not improve the quality if paid double the price. De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve is the best Salve that experience can produce, or that money can buy.
A. F. SPEICHER.

A Supreme Test.
Going to Springfield, the other day, there was seated in the car a jovial subscription book agent, accompanied by his wife and six-year-old son and heir, whose sole ambition in life at present is to learn to whistle. The window was open and the boy had been holding on to his hat with one hand for fear it would blow away. The conductor coming in slammed the door, and for an instant the boy let go his hat. His father reached round through the window and whisked it off his head. The boy was disconsolate.
Look straight ahead and whistle for it and it will come back, said the father.
I can't whistle, I'm too mad.
Well then, I'll try, and the jovial book agent whisked a few bars of "Annie Rooney," and shortly afterward placed the hat on the boy's head, whose tears were now turned to smiles. Then he stood up in the seat, and snatching his father's new $8 tile from his head, deliberately threw it out of the car window, saying, Whistle for it again, papa!—
