The People's Column.

What is approved, what condemned and what criticised.

Note:—This column is open to everybody, but it must be borne in mind that no personal quarrels will be allowed to be conducted through it. The objects of this column are for the general good of the town and country at large, but must be borne in mind that the editor is not responsible for the opinions of contributors. Remember, it is the people's column; the editor shall not write a word for it.

EDITOR STAR:—I endorse every word said last week about our school board, by "Justice," who spoke through the People's column. His sentiments are also mine. We have a wide-awake school board, and now that we also have a law that gives the pupils free text books, needed stationery, etc., I think the coming school term ought to be the most successful that Salisbury ever had. With free text books, every boy and girl of school age ought to be sent to school. Poverty and inability to buy books can no longer be made an excuse to keep children at home. Any parent that will keep his or her children out of school since the Free Text Book bill has become a law, deserves to be bastinadoed. Parents, see that your children are sent to school. STUDENT.

Mr. Editor:—I want to say a few words concerning a nuisance that ought to be prohibited. It is this thing of men blockading the sidewalks, as they frequently do at several different places in Salisbury. This is almost a nightly occurrence, and sometimes ladies are almost compelled to quit the pavement and walk in the middle of the street. These gangs of profane loafers and tobacco spitters seem to have no respect for themselves or anyone else. Why are they allowed to monopolize the whole sidewalk for hours at a time? Why do not our officers make them be decent in their street department, the same as would be required of a woman if she should see fit to loaf about the streets? And why do some of our merchants tolerate so much loafing about their stores? So far as possible I shall keep out of stores that are noted as public loafing places. A WOMAN.

EDITOR STAR:—I don't remember who called my attention to the fact, but I was told by some one, about a year ago, that wearing a hat on the back of the head is a sure sign of a poor brain. Since that time I have been a close observer as to how men wear their hats, and in all candor I must say that as yet I have failed to see the first man noted for shrewdness, high intellect or good business qualities that wears his hat that way.

This may not be admissible to the People's column, but if it is, I would like to see it appear there in order to promote close observation, which I believe is instructive and of benefit to those who take notice of things.

Now, let the readers of THE STAR keep their eyes open and see whether they will ever see a man of keen intellect with his hat cocked back on his head. You will see about two classes of people wearing their hats that way, one class being shallow-brained young men that are badly "stuck" on themselves and want to show their nicely combed hair. The other class addicted to that manner of wearing a hat is the class made up of bums, loafers and people generally of a vulgar nature.

I have a man in mind now, one who is now deceased, but who not many years ago was a resident of Salisbury. He was a man of great intellect and noble principles, but like all of us, poor mortals that we are, he had his faults, and one of them was intemperance. This man was a fine appearing gentleman when sober, but when intoxicated and minus his intellect, his hat was invariably on the back of his head and he looked more like a big slugger than anything else. However, as soon as his intellect returned, his hat would come forward to its accustomed place and he would again look manly and refined.

If you will take the trouble to observe for yourselves, you will find that the men who wear their hats on the back part of their heads are "small potatoes and few in a hill." CLOSE OBSERVER.

TOPICS AND COMMENT.

Hully Gee! Ingalls, he Wants to be A Senator, See?

The tower of Babel must have been a sleepy sort of place, compared with the World's Fair Congress of Religions.

Poor Baby Ruth! She has gained a sister, but has lost what so many people spend their lives struggling for—fame.

The new tariff measure might properly be styled an act for the relief of importers and foreign producers.—Newark Advertiser.

ARBITRATION might be made to guide the Senate out of the Silver labyrinth, but it cannot be used while Mr. Cleveland flies the no-compromise flag.

The Irish never had much cause to love or admire the British Peerage, and they have less than ever since the vote on the Home Rule bill was taken in the House of Lords.

It will not take as much money to move the crops this year as it took last year, owing to the difference between Democratic and Republican prices.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

PERHAPS the "economy" practiced by some managers, in the shape of reducing salaries and working force, may have something to do with the epidemic of fatal railroad accidents.

THE administration did everything it could to make the visit to Washington of the delegates to the Pan-American Medical Congress pleasant and interesting, going even to the extent of having a birth in the White House.

A CHICAGO ring is said to be preparing for another corner in the wheat market. It would be an almighty good thing if all the speculators in food-stuffs could be got into a corner, and the corner be sunk into the depths of the sea.

EVERY financial crisis that the country has had during the present century, with one exception, occurred during the administration of a Democratic President. Democracy is a thing of ill omen.—New York Mail and Express.

THE declaration of the electorate at the last election against the system of protection, the formation of a government pledged to tariff reform and the gradual drawing near of the time when the work of instituting the reform must be begun, is sufficient in a tariff country like the Republic to cause fear and trembling throughout the land.—Commercial, Winnipeg, Canada.

THE textile workers of seventy five factories in Philadelphia have led the way in a protest against tariff-smashing. At a mass meeting of their representatives the opinion was unanimous that the sole cause of the shutting down of the mills was the uncertainty in regard to the tariff. "We do not," said one of the speakers, "pretend to understand the fine system of free trade, but we do know that we can earn a living under a protective tariff, and now many of us are earning nothing." This badge call from Philadelphia should be re-echoed all over the country.—New York Recorder.

JASPER N. HANEY, in the Weatherford (Tex.) Appeal, voices THE STAR's sentiments as follows:

"I want to see the manufacture of pins, needles and buttons in this country protected, as well as every other article of use and consumption. I want to see American ideas and boys and girls protected from foreign devils and anarchists. I want to see a protective tariff placed upon emigrants, as well as foreign-made fabrics. I want to see America assert the independence she gained when she rebelled against England. I want to see the South, the West, the East and North a unit upon the principle of protective tariff, and McKinley elected Governor of Ohio.

It will be remembered by American people—we mean the intelligent, reading class—that in 1890 the factory hands at Sheffield, England, burned Wm. McKinley in effigy. This was done because the McKinley tariff law transferred work, wages and profit from English to American soil. It will also be remembered that the same class of Sheffielders wildly cheered Ben Folsom, the President's cousin, when he made a speech at Sheffield and made the statement that the party of free trade is now in power in the United States. Straws still continue to show which way the wind blows, and just now the winds of prosperity are blowing toward England, while the cold blasts of poverty are beginning to sweep over the United States. Why is this? Because the party of free trade, as Cousin Ben justly terms it, is in power and has threatened to repeal the McKinley tariff law. Workingmen, how do you like the prospect?

We had the same money one, two, three, and ten years ago; business was prosperous, work plenty, and but few outside the Silverites, were crying for more. The nation never experienced more genuine prosperity. But the political conditions were not then as they are now. The party that threatened to overthrow protection to American industry; that had proclaimed "a war of extermination against the protected industries of the country," was not in power. Here is the root of the trouble. Let the workingmen memorialize Congress not to interfere with protection; let them agitate against opening our ports to the industrial products of Europe, and they may prevent the carrying out of the Free-Trade program. If the great mass of the working men of the country, employed or unemployed, would make themselves heard in behalf of home industry, they might prevent a ruinous reduction of the tariff. Manufacturers fear to produce a large stock of goods when they know that a reduction of the tariff would force them to compete with cheaper goods made in Europe.—Cleveland Leader.

WORKINGMEN, all of you, regardless of party, read the two following resolutions:

RESOLVED, That on and after Oct. 1st, 1893, the duty on all imports will be one per cent. less than a protective duty.

RESOLVED, That the duty imposed on imports under the McKinley bill will not be changed for two years from the 1st day of October, 1893.

Now then, having read the resolutions, suppose the present Democratic administration were to pass one of them and leave it to you which one to pass. Would you choose the first or the second? Which one of them do you think would be the more apt to start up the mills and factories? You all know which of those two resolutions would be in accord with the Democratic platform, also which would be in accord with the last Republican administration; but that makes no difference. The question is this: As a workingman, be you a Democrat or a Republican, which of those two resolutions (if one or the other should be passed by the present administration) do you think would be the more apt to start up the factories, mines and mills, and thereby make it easier for you to obtain work and a living? Answer the question to yourselves—answer it honestly, conscientiously and manfully; and in answering it, do not let party prejudice blind you. If you do this, every mother's son of you will answer in favor of the second resolution. It would be a slander on your intelligence for THE STAR to say that you would answer in favor of the first.
