skulls and horns have been found in the strata of the quaternary age would put to shame the prize 3000-pound bulls of the stock exhibit.

Some of the jaws of the mammals are four feet long with the teeth several inches wide. The eggs of animals akin to our ostrich are about four feet in circumference.

The models of these prehistoric animals probably attract more attention than any other exhibit in the Anthropological Bullding. The largest of these models is that of the great Siberlan mammoth which stands near the center of the south gallery. The restoration was made by the celebrated German preparatem, Herr L. Martin. The measurements were taken from the largest bones of the mammot contained in the Royal museum of Stuttgart, while the character of the outer covering is copied from portions of skin, covered with hair, taken from an ammoth that was found in 1799 in glacier ice near the mouth of the River Lena, in Siberia, and is now preserved in the Imperial museum of St. Petersburg. The specimens stands sixteen feet high and twenty-two feet long from its tail to the forward curve of the trunk. The tusks are nearly six feet long and curved. A huge skeleton of a plesiosaurus, a marine reptile of the jurassic time, stands with a coterie of other models. The original specimen was found in 1848 in the Lias, near Whitby, England. It measures over twenty-two feet and would be a hideous compliment to any nightmare. A restored cast in plaster of the huge dinosaurus, which in the tertlary day, were numerus and the skeleton and several legs of various specimens of moa, a gigantic, wingless bird, found in recent deposits in New Zealand. The moasure but lately exterminated. Complete skeletons, with portions of the skin and feathers still adhering, have been found.

A glyptodon relie of the latter part of the certiary age was found near Montevideo. A cast of this animal is contained in the Ward exhibit. It was a huge armadillo, but without the bands or joints present in modern species, by means of which they can roll tenselv

Where Pearls Are Found.

Where Pearls Are Found.

Pearls are found in the shells of many kinds of mollusks. They occur in the common edible oyster, but are not of value. Very large white ones are occasionally obtained from the giant clam, which is the biggest known bivalve, but they are not worth much They are always symmetrical and or some beauty, having a faint but pleasing sheen when looked at sideways. The shells of the giant clam are occasionally used for baptismal fonts in churches. The animal is found, buried up to the lips, hinge downward, it coral reefs. Men have lost their lives by stepping between the open valves, which closed immediately upon the foot, holding them until they drowned. It is said that pearls of a yellowist color are sometimes obtained from the pearly nautilus. But the natives of the Sooloo Archipelago throw then away, considering them unlucky. They declare that, if a man should fight while wearing a ring with such a pearl he would certainly be killed. Pearl bearing mussels are found in the lake and streams of many parts of the world, including the United States. These mollusks have yielded grean numbers of valuable gems in this country, so that attempts have been made to establish pearl fishing on a commercial basis in some rivers.

The chief sources of supply of mother-of-pearl shells are the Torres Straits and West Australian fisherie and the trade centers of Singapore and Macassar. Innumerable islands of the mother-of-pearl shells are the Torret Straits and West Australian fisheries and the trade centers of Singapore and Macassar. Innumerable islands of the Pacific contribute more or less of this valuable product—notably Tahiti Three varieties are recognized commonly—the white, the black edged and the golden edged. This statement refers to the pearl oyster, which furnishes the finest mother-of-pearl. The shells of a single cyster have been known to weigh as much as fourteer pounds. The utmost economy and skill are exercised in cutting up the shells, each part being made to serve some particular purpose. Thus, from a single one of good size will be obtained a penholder, a pistol butt, two or three knife handles, a poker chip and a dozen and a half buttons of different sizes.—Washington Star.

I must say a word as to the efficacy of German Syrup. I have used it in my family for Bronchitis, the result of Colds, with most excellent success. I have taken it myself for Throat Troubles, and have derived good results therefrom. I therefore recommend it to my neighbors as an excellent remedy in such cases. James T. Durette, Earlysville, Va. Amendment Adopted.

A member of the House of Commons had been paying attention to a young lady for a long while, and he had taken her to attend the House until she was perfectly posted on its rules. On the last day of the session, as they came out, he bought her a bouquet, saving:

"May I offer you my handful of flowers?"

She promptly replied:
"I move to amend by omitting all after the word 'hand."

He blushingly accepted the amendment, and they adopted it unanimously.
