QUAY'S MILLIONS.

Where Did He Get Vast Sums to Purchase Three Mansions, Two Farms and a Plantation?

QUESTIONS FOR PLAIN PEOPLE.

The Gang of Small Bosses at Work on Stone's Canvass—How Quay Has Refused to Profit by a Warning of Six Years Ago—A Startling Arrangement of the Boss and His Disastrous Leadership—Some Questions For Thinking Men.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Harrisburg, Feb. 15.—No man in the state, rich or poor, will be deceived by the cry that the opposition to Quay and his gang of bosses is composed of millionaires. There wasn't a man at the Bourse meeting which invited John Wanamaker to become a candidate for governor that was worth a million, or a half a million, or a quarter of a million of dollars. It was composed of farmers, merchants, lawyers, doctors and editors. There were only about four Philadelphians present, and the only speaker outside of those from the country who took charge of the canvass was a young lawyer of that city.

It will become Senator Quay's friends to raise the cry that millionaires are behind the movement to crush his power. No man interested in fighting Quayism owns a $5,000 residence in Allegheny county, another fine residence in Beaver county, a mansion in Washington, a 300 acre farm in Lancaster county, another big farm in Chester county and a plantation in Florida. And Quay owns all of these; has bought them within the past 20 years, and out of a salary of $5,000 a year!!

AGAINST QUAY AND CORPORATIONS.

The fight this year is against Millionaire Quay and the corporations which have always helped him to maintain his grip on the state. It is really the fight of the people against the millionaires; the people against the Quays and the sugar trusts and the Standard Oil crowd. No intelligent man in the state of Pennsylvania will be deceived by the specious cry which Quay has always raised that he is "the friend of the men in blouses." The workingmen of Pennsylvania have never had a more bitter antagonist than Millionaire Quay and his minor bosses. It was Charles F. Kindred, one of Quay's most subservient lieutenants in Philadelphia, a paid lobbyist of the Reading railroad, who last year at the legislature in Harrisburg did everything in his power to defeat the bill to punish corporations for blacklisting workmen. It was Millionaire Quay's lieutenants in the last legislature who defeated Hon. Seth Ormes' store order bill. It was Millionaire Quay's lieutenants who killed every labor bill that failed to pass the last legislature.

And yet Millionaire Quay, from his Florida plantation, and his bosses have the effrontery to declare that they always "stand with the men in blouses." What rot this is to every intelligent thinking man who earns his living by the sweat of his brow. Can any farmer in the state name a single instance in which Matt Quay has assisted him, or helped his business, or done anything at all, for him, except to use him as a political tool? It will do the Pennsylvania farmer good in more ways than one if he will just sit down and think wherein Millionaire Quay ever turned his hand to help him in all the years that he has been in control of the machine in the state! In the senate he has even gone back on his party, as in the case of his vote for free silver two weeks ago. Millionaire Quay has always voted for corporations and as they desired him to vote, but he does not explain where he got the money to buy a residence in Beaver county, a $75,000 residence in Allegheny county, a palatial mansion in Washington, a farm in Chester county, one in Lancaster county and a plantation in Florida.

But a new era is at hand. Mr. Quay knows that his end is near. He is coming up from Florida next week to Philadelphia, and there hopes to meet some of the men who are opposed to him and make a deal. He will try to make a deal with Secretary of State Martin, but he might as well attempt to deal with a stone image. Martin, Magee, Flinn and every other self respecting Republican in the state will make no deals with Matthew Stanley Quay. Millionaire Quay has chosen his friends among such men as William H. Andrews, the discredited Crawford county politician, the man with the asparagus appetite, the individual who led the Republican party to defeat in the notorious Delamater campaign. He has chosen as his Democratic friends ex-National Chairman William F. Harry, of the Democratic party, with whom he tried to make a deal six weeks ago for the defeat and ruin of the Republican organization in Philadelphia. Millionaire Quay's bosom companion in the senate, and the guest who is in Florida fishing with him now, is the notorious Senator Vest, of Missouri, the free silver champion of the senate. In Philadelphia, Charles F. Kindred, the man who fought labor bills in the last legislature on behalf of the Reading railroad, is one of his nearest friends and advisors, and so a long list might be made up in a similar way.

BRAVE, INDEPENDENT MEN.

What a different grade of men was there that made up the conference at the Bourse! The independent, big brained, manly men of the Republican party. Veterans of the civil war, like General Koontz, who presided, and Generals Lelner and Stewart; clean handed legislators, real champions of the people, such as Senator Kauffman and Representatives Crothers, Keator and Stewart. Fearless editors, like Zerby of Pottsville, Hiram Young of York and Donath of West Chester. Manufacturers, like Tilden of Philadelphia and Deemar of Williamsport, and so on through the list of country merchants, country lawyers and farmers.

One of the most valuable contributions to the literature of anti-bossmism, and Matt Quayism in particular, was put out when Quay was last a candidate for the senate, and which holds good. It shows that Quay has not profited by six years of warning.

The Pennsylvania Republican association then said:

"A point has been reached where, unless prompt action is taken within the Republican party to deprive Mr. Quay of further capacity for disastrous leadership, the party in this state will utterly fail to achieve its true mission, and will, sooner or later, meet with final overthrow.

"We oppose him because he has forced unpopular nominations and platforms which have brought defeat to the party.

"Because he has instigated, or countenanced, the defeat of the party's candidates to achieve some personal end.

"Because he has repeatedly induced delegates and legislators to misrepresent the wishes of the majority of their constituents.

"Because he has aided in defeating legislation to secure a free ballot and a fair count in the south, to the enactment of which the party had been pledged, and which, as its national chairman, he was in honor bound to have supported.

ALWAYS OFF FISHING.

"Because by reason of his frequent absence from the senate, and the diversion of his time to office getting, he has failed to do the work he should have done in behalf of legislation of vital importance to the state of Pennsylvania, or to initiate and secure the enactment of a single important national measure during his years of service at Washington.

"Because he has both by words and actions discredited the pledged policy of his party in behalf of a scrupulous efficient and business like reform of the civil service, and has compelled office holders to devote their time and money to political work in his behalf.

"Because so long as he dared to do so he opposed every change of party rules calculated to increase the power of the voters in county, district, state or nation.

"Because he has had primaries and conventions called long before they were any necessity for so doing in order to forestall a growing public sentiment against him or his candidates.

"Because he has insisted that no recognition should be accorded to any element of the party, or to any of its leaders who were not willing to act with or be subservient to him.

DRIVING MEN FROM THE PARTY.

"Because the system which he has upheld has driven many able and honest men out of the Republican party, or has discouraged them from taking active part in public life. Because he has placed men in offices or positions so hampered by pledges to him that they cannot faithfully perform their duties to the state or to their party.

"Because we believe the Republican voters have a right to choose their United States senators, instead of their being selected by office holders, without regard to character, ability or fitness."

The above document was issued six years ago. Read it carefully and see how close it is in line with all of Quay's action since then. He has refused doggedly to change his course. Instead he has added insult to injury by still further endangering party success in congress by helping to defeat Republican congressmen in Pennsylvania. He has assisted the common enemy, the free silver Democracy, by voting for their measures in the senate of the United States only about two weeks ago. And in spite of all this, he is once more on his knees whining and supplicating to be returned to the senate. At the same time his chief boss, Asparagus Andrews, late of Crawford county, is endeavoring to repeat the disaster of the Delamater campaign by forcing William A. Stone upon the people as a candidate for governor, in the sole interest of Andrews and Quay.

Do the people propose to submit to this?

Democratic Folly.

Connellsville Courier, (Democratic.)

The Teller resolution was on a par with the action of the Reading Convention in declaring vacant the seat of William F. Harry in the Democratic National Committee and electing in his stead Colonel James M. Guffey. Both of these political movements were ill-advised, being calculated only to do mischief without having even the hope of accomplishing any other purpose, good or bad.

The Teller resolution had no prospects of passage in the House, nor of approval by the President. Its passage in the Senate could accomplish nothing for the silver people, and its agitation was productive of but one result, namely, the injury of the national credit, and consequently the detriment of individual welfare and prosperity. It was therefore not only foolish, but absolutely vicious. It was the invention of an unscrupulous Republican politician now degenerated into a Populist, certainly not a safe leader for Democrats to follow.

The fierce assault upon Harry and the frantic effort to take from him the empty honor of a place on the National Committee, which will not meet until 1900, and then only to fix a time and place for the next National Convention cannot rationally be accounted for, save on the ground of wanton political brawling.

If the Democrats want to get back to power, it is time for them to cease brawling among themselves, repudiate the leadership of Populists and broken-down Republican hacks, and get together on common ground for the common good.

The Women and the Colleges.

Pittsburg Times.

The action of the ninth annual convention of the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey, in advising that young men be kept away from colleges like Yale, and sent to such others as throw about the students more restraints in the matter of morals, cannot be dismissed as merely the work of enthusiasts. The recommendation of this convention opens a subject that is of vital importance to the young men and to the country as well, for it is the young men who will be the responsible men a few years later. One of the worst things to be said of many of the colleges of the United States is that the student is thrown into contact with others who are too ready to look upon school life as a period when restraints are turned aside, and when vices must be cultivated in a moderate degree to remove the "Miss Nancy" and unsophisticated manner of the boy fresh from home. There is a time in a boy's life when he entertains half an idea that it is manly to laugh at the simple, home-taught virtues, and that it is effeminate to be above reproach.

Young men cannot be tied to a mother's apron strings all their lives, it is true, but it would be better for many of them if they could. Yet if they cannot it is not the best thing in the world for them to be beset on all hands by temptations as they are emerging from boyhood to manhood. The riper judgment of the man does not require that the boy shall have passed through every kind of danger and proved invincible. There are good schools and colleges where the surroundings are of a high moral character, and where the young men are made amenable to discipline. The graduates prove just as useful men as those who are educated under the belief that the boy himself must furnish the restraining influence. It is not wisdom to hedge about a young man with dangers and then tell him to take care of himself. The higher the moral and religious tone of any school, the freer the surroundings from infectious vices, and the less inducement there is for the young man to become familiar with dissipation and sin, the better it is for him, even though it lacks the one virtue of proving his ability to withstand temptation—if indeed he does withstand it.

Back From Alaska.

William S. Evans, a Hiawatha jeweler and optician, reached home, Monday, straight from the Klondike country. While walking over the terrible White pass he sprained his ankle, and upon his arrival home he at once called a physician to treat it. Many citizens have called on him at his rooms, and there hasn't been a minute since his return that he has been free from eager questioners. He left Hiawatha for Dawson in July and reached the gold regions in October. He says the dangers of the awful mountain ways have never been exaggerated. He went over the Chilkoot pass and came down the White pass, and though the weather was 42 degrees below zero, he says he did not suffer from cold. He is in fine health, rugged and plump. Fat meat and sugar could be had in plenty at Dawson, but he could never eat all he wanted of either. He drank grease and ate sugar without any sense of sickness, something his dyspepsia would not permit him to do in this climate. Mr. Evans says all who can get away from Dawson, and it is not probable that those remaining will suffer for lack of provisions. All supplies are sold at an average of $1 a pound, beef costing $1.25 a pound. Tallow is worth its weight in gold and can't be had. There are few lights in Dawson except candle lights, and candles are scarce at fifty cents each. The saloons have cornered all the coal oil, which sells at $10 a gallon. He says the possibilities of the country have been greatly over estimated. There are men there who have been prospecting for more than a dozen years without striking pay dirt. Mr. Evans brought home many specimens of nuggets and twenty ounces of gold dust. He did not stake out a claim or attempt to prospect. He intends to return as a merchant, believing there are enough miners at Dawson—the $10 a day paid miners being no more than $1.50 here, where supplies are cheap.—Watkena, (Kan.) Star.

An Appropriate Report.

The "funny man" of an exchange was recently assigned to write up the market reports and produced the following: "Butter is strong at 12 cents and is able to hold its own. Yeast cakes are rising steadily. Banannas are slipping along at the old price, with an occasional drop. Watermelons are going down more rapidly than they were a week ago. Cheese is lively and string. Syrups are sticking at the former price and are about a pint more to the quart than they were last winter. Dried apples are swelling the market. Chickens are picking up a little.

A Progressive Newspaper.

The Times has a larger circulation by many thousands than any other daily newspaper published in Pittsburg. This is admitted even by its competitors. The reasons for it are not hard to find. The Times is a tireless newsgatherer, is edited with extreme care, spares no expense to entertain and inform its readers. It prints all the news in compact shape, caring always more for quality than quantity. It keeps its columns clean, but at the same time bright. Nothing that is of human interest is overlooked by it. It aims to be reliable rather than sensational. It believes in the gospel of get there, but it gets there with due respect for the facts. Test any department of it you choose—political, religious, markets, sporting, editorial, society, near town news—and you'll find the Times may be depended upon. $3 a year, 6 cents a week.
