Stomach and LiverTroubles Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I suffered from stomach and liver trou-bles and was confined to my house for a long time. I was entirely deaf in one car. I endured great distress in my stomach and could not eat hearty food. I had given up hope of ever being well. Reading of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla I decided to give it a trial. Soon after I began taking it I could see it had a good effect. I continued its use until my deatness was cured and my stomach and liver troubles re-lieved." W. T. NORTON, Canisteo, N. Y.

An Unique Game.

For a simple amusement try the tele-graph game. Provide as many telegraph blanks as there are guests. They will give them for the asking at any telegraph office. Select the initial letter of ten words: for instance, T. H. B. A. E, E, I, W, S, G. Hand each guest a telegraph blank, and have him or her write thereon a message to you, using these letters for the beginning of each of the ten words. Collect the telegrams and read aloud. If letters not common-ly used in making words, like Z, X. Y, etc., be selected, the greater ingenuity is required to write the telegram. For Instance, using the letters above for an Illustration, one could write:

A Comparison of Sea and Land. The triviality of the sea compared with the land is the theme of a recent article by John Holt Schooling. A bucket 743 miles deep and 743 miles from sides to side would hold every drop of the ocean. This bucket could rest quite firmly on the British Isles. To fill the bucket one would need to work 10,000 steam pumps, each sucking up 1,000 tons of sea per second, for 422 years. So if any one wants to be rid of the sea, the way is plain. But to get rid of the earth would be 4.555 times more difficult, requiring 2,000 great guns, each firing 1,000 projectiles a second, each projectile consisting of 100,-000 tons of earth. At the end of 1,000 years this mundane sphere would be all shot away.

DANGEROUS CAVE-IN

Whole Community Shaken by the Settling of a Mine-Men Entombed.

Duryea, six miles from Scranton, was visited lasit week by one of the most extensive and damaging mine settlings that has ever occurred in this part of the anthracite coal regions. The cave-in took place over the old workings in the Hallstead mine, owned by the Dela-ware, Lackawanna and Western Com-pany, and extends over a territory of one-half to three-quarters of a mile square in one of the most thickly popu-lated parts of the town, and affects, more or less, 100 stores and dwellings. Two men, Thomas Williams and David Emanuel, were entombed in the mine. All the houses in the immediate vicinity rocked as though shaken by an earth-quake, and through the wide openings in the surface flowed streams of water, let loose by the breaking of the water mains. Chimneys were leveled to the ground, and foundations, rocks and furniture were tumbled in profusion about the apartments. The following pensions were granted last week: Robert Wilson, Thorn Hill, Allegheny, $6; Joseph W. Whiten, Bar-tholdi, Washington, $6; Samuel C. To the Point,

A certain Eastern company that some time ago was anxious to purchase a silver-lead mine, found itself in a state of uncertainty. What seemed to be a really attractive mine was found to be in the market, and negotiations for its purchase were entered upon, The result of these negotiations is reported by the Spokane Miner and Electrician. As the ore assayed well, and every thing looked propitious, a mining ex-pert was sent to examine the mine. His report was favorable, in fact, it was too favorable. He certified that the ore was there in large quantities, and that it was extremely valuable. His un qualified praise aroused the suspicion of the would-be purchasers. If the mine was indeed so valuable, why was the price so low? The company determined to investigate more closely. At this point a well-known mining man of Spokane recommended that a certain rough-and-ready genius, a man who had graduated from no college should be sent to look at the mine. "You can depend on his judgment," said the miningman, "and he will tell, you nothing but the truth. You had better trust to his report, which, in all probability, will be short and very much to the point." The advice was followed, and the event showed the wisdom of the adviser. As he had predicted, the report was short and full of pith. It read sub stantially as follows:

When one man proposes a good thing, another man usually proposes one so much better that nothing
