The Scientific American Navy Supplement.

The Scientific American, which has always been identified itself very closely with the interests of the Navy, is to be congratulated on the extremely handsome and valuable "Navy Supplement" which it has lately put before the public. We think that, if the average reader had been asked beforehand what kind of a work he would prefer upon the Navy, he would have asked for just such an issue as this.

Both the illustrations and the reading matter are of the straightforward explanatory kind which is necessary to put a technical subject clearly before the lay mind. It was a happy thought to preface the work with a chapter upon the classification of warships and insert a few diagrams by way of explanation of the subtle differences between cruisers, monitors and battleships; for after digesting this chapter one is prepared to follow intelligently the detailed descriptions of the various ships which make up the bulk of the issue. One of the best things about this number is that it does not merely give an external illustration of each ship, but it takes the reader down below decks, and initiates him into the mysteries of the magazines, handling rooms, ammunition hoists and motive machinery. The sectional views of the interior of the turrets of the monitors are exceptionally fine, as are the large wood engravings of the engines of the "Massachusetts." The last page of the number contains complete tables of the new Navy, the auxiliary fleet and the various naval guns. A handsome colored map of Cuba and the West Indies is furnished with this issue. We extend our congratulations to our contemporary on the production of a work which is well conceived and admirably carried out. This work is published by Munn & Co., of 381 Broadway, New York, for 25 cents.

HIGH-TONED HOTEL RULES.

With Several or More Reference to the Act and Art of Shooting.

Harper's Bazar. In a little mining town up in Montana there is a hotel in which there is posted a notice to guests which reads as follows:

"READ THIS:

"Guests of this hotel will please bear in mind that we will not be responsible for either their lives or their property. There are places convenient where valuables may be deposited for safe keeping, and where life and accident insurance policies may be secured.

"Guests are requested to use proper care and caution when shooting at each other in the dining room, as a reckless discharging of firearms is liable to result in the unnecessary killing of innocent and unsuspecting parties.

"Guests will be expected to pay for whatever tableware they break in throwing at one another. This rule will be insisted on.

"If guests have any complaint to make regarding the conduct of waiters, they will please not come to us about it. The waiters carry pistols, and are supposed to know how to use them, and they will settle all their own difficulties.

"Guests must not put their feet on the tables, especially if ladies are present. The act may be harmless enough, but there are fastidious people who object to it, and we are here to cater to the highest and most refined class of society.

"Guests who are not willing to sleep in the same bed with another guest need not stay at the hotel. We no not care for patronage of people who want the earth, with the moon thrown in, for one dollar.

"This hotel positively will not bear the part of the funeral expenses of people who are killed while stopping here—not even those who are forced to shoot in the interest of society and good order.

"Guests wishing to attract the attention of a waiter are requested to call or whistle for him. This is better than shooting him through the ear or nose, and, besides, it will save funeral expenses.

"The public will bear in mind that this is no cheap house, but that it is a first-class, high-toned hotel. Therefore guests are expected to conduct themselves in a gentlemanly, well-bred manner. This will be strictly insisted on, even if it be necessary to resort to the use of our guns."
