Where Jeff Davis Courted.

When Gen. Zachary Taylor was in command at Fort Knox, near Vincennes, Ind., Jefferson Davis, afterward president of the southern confederacy, was a lieutenant in the army, and wat with his company at the fort. Tradition has it that Davis and Miss Taylor, whom he afterward married, took strolls upon the prairie near the fort, and that they often seated themselves upon a large stone which lay on a knoll some distance away. It is said that while seated thus one day Davis proposed marriage to Miss Taylor and was accepted. Davis and Miss Taylor were married at Vincennes, and them selves told of the courtship on the stone. To commemorate the romantification Mrs. H. J. Rabb of Vincennes has caused the stone to be removed to the house where it is now to be seen.—New York Sun.

A Novel Fence.

It is said that in Yellowstone park there is a fence which is composed entirely of the horns of the elk, and includes over three hundred selected specimens. None of them has less than twelve and very many have fourteen points. They were gathered in June, 1895, by a party of gantlemen who found them during a four days' hunt, all of them within a radius of ten miles of the Mammoth Hot Springs. Yellowstone Park contains nearly three thousand elks. They shed their horns in March, and during this time are very shy and quiet.

In Paris there lives an eminent painter who is economical and sententious. The other day one of the studion window and replaced it temporarily by passing a sheet of paper over the aperature. When the painter came down next morning he thrust his came through the makeshift with the remark, "He that breaks pays." None of the class, however, took the hint, and next morning another sheet of paper was pasted across the window. It met with the same fate. And so on the next day, and so on the fourth. On the fifth day, when the artist came down, there was the paper as before. Fire flashed from his eyes, and roaring. "He that breaks pays," and he drove his cane through the paper—and through the pane behind it that had been put in by the students and then carefully pasted over with a sheet of paper.
