Dispatch From Consul Fowling Confirms the Capture After an Obsolete Fight—Japan Lost Over One Hundred Men.

Telegrams from Shanghai, dated Tuesday, say: Numerous reports from Peking have arrived describing the situation in the Chinese capital. The Chinese are again desperately attacking the legations, which had very few defenders left. It is also alleged that Prince Tuan and two high officials have fled to Yangtzu since the news of the capture of Peking.

The execution of Cheng Yin Huan, the Chinese minister who was special ambassador to the United States, is believed to be a fact that Yu Lu, the former secretary of the legation, is in battle at Yangtzu.

An official telegram dated Wednesday, however, has been received at Rome, which asserts that the attack on Peking began Monday night, and that the British and British Minister, has opened communications with the relieving force and that the allies have established their headquarters at Tsin Ching.

Chinese officials in Shanghai are reported as admitting that the allies inflicted a heavy defeat on the Chinese imperial troops around Tsin Ching Sunday night, and that the Chinese army, this, in fact, carries the Japanese troops one step further.

The Western powers, according to a dispatch from Kobe, have accepted the proposals formulated by the allies, and are arranging an armistice, dependent upon the immediate delivery of the legation to the allies or the granting of permission to the allied forces to enter Peking and to the legation.

Upon these bases Japan has already begun to negotiate.

On Friday, the acting Secretary of State makes public the following telegram received Friday morning from the Japanese minister at Chifu: The Japanese official reports the allies attacked Peking, east, on Wednesday. The met with obstinate resistance.

In the evening this message was also received, but it pointed out that the capital with other forces and immediately surrounded the legations. Immense numbers of Japanese troops were reported to have surrounded the legations.
