BURIED ALIVE.

Several Interesting Cases of Reviviscence Among Noted People.

Astonishing as it may appear, it is nevertheless true, that more than one celebrity was actually born after the burial of his own mother, as the following authentic incidents will show.

One of the most wonderful instances of reviviscence occurred to the mother of Sir Richard Edgcombe, knight, who was created Baron of Mount Edgcombe in 1748. The family were living at Cutteel, when Lady Edgcombe, after a short illness, was believed to have expired, and was laid in the family vault about a week after her supposed death. Soon after the interment the sexton, from motives sufficiently obvious, went down into the vault and tried to take off a gold ring from her ladyship's finger. Not succeeding, however, he pressed and pinched the finger, when the body moved in the coffin. The sexton fled in terror, leaving the lantern behind him. Lady Edgcombe arose and, taking the lantern, walked to the Manor House. About five years afterwards Sir Richard was born.

Many people are not aware that General Lee, the leader of the southern forces during the American war, was born after his mother had been buried. The poor lady suffered from catalepsy, and during a prolonged trance one of her physicians pronounced her to be dead. Fortunately, the sexton heard loud crying and knocking as he was engaged in his sad task, and soon released the poor woman from her awful fate. A year later, General Lee, her youngest son, was born.

Several years ago a noted peeress was pronounced to be dead by one of her physicians. When the undertakers arrived the broken-hearted husband requested them to leave the room, as he wished to be alone with his beloved wife. As he imprinted a final kiss on her cold cheek a tear fell on her face, and the husband, feeling confident that some slight movement had taken place, sent immediately for the physician, who detected a sign of life.

Later on, when sufficiently recovered, the peeress told her husband it was his tear that saved her from being buried alive. She was conscious of everything, but, although she knew that the men had come to place her in her coffin, could not move. When the tear fell on her face she made an almost superhuman effort to move—hence the slight tremor. This peeress lived for many years, and her son, born two years later, is a well known member of London society.

Ebenezer Erskine, one of the founders of the United Free Church of Scotland, was born after the burial of his mother. Like General Lee's mother, Mrs. Erskine was buried whilst in a trance, with a valuable ring on one of her fingers. When night came, the grave-digger stole stealthily to the newly made grave, and finding it difficult to remove the ring, began to cut off the finger to obtain his object. Mrs. Erskine awoke with a loud shriek, and returning to her home walked up stairs without meeting one of her family. But her husband was heard to say: "If I didn't ken my wife was lying in the kirkyard I wad say that wis her fiststep!" Mrs. Erskine lived to become the mother of Ebenezer, one of the greatest pulpit orators Scotland ever produced.—Pennysylvania Hawkeye Vacation Days.

Vacation time is here and the children are fairly living out of doors. There could be no healthier place for them. You need only to guard against the accidents incidental to most open air sports. No remedy equals DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve for quickly stopping pain or removing danger of serious consequences. For cuts, scalds and wounds, "I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve for sores, cuts and bruises," says L. B. Johnson, Swift, Tex. "It is the best remedy on the market." Sure cure for piles and skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits. E. H. Miller.

County Superintendent Seibert was here on Tuesday and held a teachers' examination. Only seventeen students were examined. Some people got a little hot at the new Superintendent because he didn't do quite enough explaining to suit them. Nevertheless the new officer did his duty. People who want to teach should get there on their merits, and not on tips given them by the Superintendent when they are up for examination. There are too many mere machines teaching school now that rely solely on memorized rules.

Dr. Taft Bros., New York. Gentlemen:—

I received your Asthmalene in good shape and in due time. I must say that it is an elegant medicine and has done all you claim for it. I was not able to walk up hill on account of my breath. After taking your medicine one day I went to chopping timber and have been working right along every day that is fit to work; this is a very bad climate and this has been the worst kind of a spring, hardly two days alike. I am sending an order enclosed in this to be sent at once.

Yours gratefully, William A. Bradley.
