MUST CHANGE THE CONSTITUTION.

ROOSEVELT TALKS TRUSTS.

President Says Amendment Will Come in Legislation Regarding Corporations.

President Roosevelt took notice of his return visit to Massachusetts by delivering at Fitchburg a speech on the trust question. He said in part: 'I am not going to try to define with technical accuracy what ought to be meant when we speak of a trust. But if by trusts we mean merely a big corporation, then I ask you to ponder the utter folly of the man who, either in a spirit of folly, says 'destroy the trusts,' without giving you an idea of what he means really to do. I will go with him if he says destroy the evil in the trusts, gladly. I will try to find out that evil. I will seek to apply remedies. But if his policy, from whatever motive, whether hatred, fear, panic or just sheer ignorance, is to destroy the trusts in a way that will destroy all our prosperity, no. Those men who advance wild and foolish remedies which would be worse than the disease, are doing all in their power to perpetuate the evils against which they nominally war, because if we are brought face to face with the naked issue of either keeping or totally destroying a prosperity in which the majority share, but in which some share improperly, why, as sensible men we must deelid that it is a great technical accuracy what ought to be naked issue of either keeping or totally destroying a prosperity in which the majority share, but in which some share improperly, why, as sensible men, we must decide that it is a great deal better that some people prosper too much than that no one should prosper enough. So that the man who advocates destroying the trusts by measures which would paralyze the industries of the country is at best a quack, and at worst an enemy to the republic. It does not do anybody any good, and it will do most of a great deal of harm to take steps which will check any proper growth in a corporation. We wish not to penalize, but to reward a great captain of industry or the men banded together in a corporation who have the business forethought and energy necessary to build up a great industrial enterprise. Keep that in mind. A big corporation may be doing excellent work for the whole country, and you want, above all things, when striving to get a plan which will prevent wrong-doing by a corporation which desires to do wrong, not at the same time to have a scheme which will interfere with a corporation doing well if that corporation is handling itself honestly and squarely. I believe something can be done by National legislation. I believe it will be done. I think we can get laws which will measurably increase the power of the Federal government over corporations; but, gentlemen, I believe firmly that in the end there will have to be an amendment to the constitution of the United States conferring additional power upon the Federal government to deal with corporations. To get that will be a matter of difficulty and a matter of time."

SHOCK FELT 20 MILES.

Government Fort Is Demolished, One Man Killed and Five Injured in Boston Harbor.

One of the government powder magazines at Old Fort Winthrop, on Governor's Island, upper Boston harbor, blew up Sunday with a detonation that was heard at points 20 miles away. The cause of the explosion is not known. One dead man and five injured were brought to the city by the police boat, and while it is believed that this was the extent of casualties, it is possible that others may be found suffering from the force of the concussion. The dead man's' name is Albert H. Cotton, of Sommerville. The missing are Joseph E. Wakefield, of Malden, and James Ryan, of East Boston. The injured are James A. Crowley, 21 years old; Charles Flannagan, 23 years old; Charles Flannagan, 23 years old; Charles Flannagan, 24, and Paul Barry, 26, all having flesh wounds. There are several old wooden buildings at the southerly end of the island, but the fort itself, only a little of which is visible above ground, is of stone, some of the granite blocks being of immense size. The force of the explosion is shown by the fact that some of these great blocks were hurled several hundred yards, while one of the largest was sent into the air and carried down through the citadel in the center of the fort, making a hole large enough to drive a team of horses through. All over the island the effects of the explosion are visible, while in East Boston, South Boston and in the city proper, the concussion was severe enough to their foundations.
