Advertising creates a desire. Gratifying that desire starts

If you don't advertise at all, no desire is created. If you advertise a little and stop, the desire stops before it starts a habit.

It is habit you want to produce—the habit of reading your ads, coming to your store, buying your goods.

This is the only way to keep your merchandise continually on Everybody has a habit of reading the Somerset County Star, brought on by a desire to know the news. Take advantage of this habit by giving the people your store news through its col-

AMERICAN AUDIENCES.

Men and Women and Their Effect Upon Public Meetings.

American audiences are strangely alike in some things and strangely dissimilar in others. A good committee will take as much pains in the arrangement of its audience as of its speakers. An audience seated without crowding is seldom enthusiastic. Neither is an audience whose hands are occupied with bundles or umbrellas, an audience largely composed of women. "I am short one bureau and the way bill. He was in provided in the season of audience largely composed of women or an audience in a cold room. The easiest audiences to address, the most responsive and inspiring, are those composed of men crowded and packed responsive and inspiring, are those composed of men crowded and packed together and warm.

Women naturally do not applaud or cheer. They are by instinct more self restrained in the public expression of their emotions than men. Every public speaker is complimented by their presence, knowing that their quiet word at home is oftentimes more effective in results than the most enthusiastic shouting on the street corners by the other sex. In a public meeting, however, the audience gets its cue from those nearest the speaker. I remember well two audiences, both from the same social class, both crowded, both in large theaters and both largely attended by women. One happened to be in Colorado, one in Massachusetts. In one meeting the orchestra was reserved for women. In the other meeting the men had the orchestra and the women had the lower gallery and all the boxes. In both cases the audiences were entirely friendly to the speakers. The second meeting was marked by the boxes. In both cases the audiences were entirely friendly to the speakers. The second meeting was marked by wild enthusiasm, the first one by respectful attention. In the second case the mass of men in the orchestra urged on the speakers by continued applause. In the first case the men in the galler-les who started to applaud were checked because between them and the speakers was a mass of absolutely silent femininity in the orchestra. I do silent femininity in the orenestra. I do not say that one meeting was less effective than the other, but the difference in the strain on the speaker was marked.—From "The Spellbinder," by Colonel Curtis Guild, Jr., in Scrib-

When Justice Field was the senior associate, this arrangement produced this curious result: The names of the justices on the right had but a single syllable—Field, Gray, Brown and White—while the names of those on the left had two syllables—Harlan, Brewer. Shiras and Peckham. All were married, but no one of the justices on the right had ever had any children, while each of those on the left had both children and grandchildren. The colors were all on the right—Gray, Brown and White—while the left was colorless.—Youth's Companion.

Jasper Augustine, of Uniontown, is here for a few days, on business. Walter Miller, of Hyndman, one of A. C. Hartzell's toby rollers, has gone home to visit his parents and look after his best girl. He will return about January 2nd.

Lloyd Stark, who is employed in a Uniontown restaurant, was a recent visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stark.

Alvin McWhorters, an employe of Hartzell's toby factory, spent Christmas at his home in Homestead, Pa., returning to Addison last Saturday.

Mrs. A. C. Hartzell was at Homestead over Christmas, visiting her parents. She returned home last Sunday. Calvin Dean, of Somerfield, has purchased the Endsley stone house in that yillage and intends to apply for hotel

The coal boom still continues in this vicinity. Wm. Miller has sold the vein of coal that he has been working for years, receiving the sum of $14,000 for the same. He has reserved his fire-clay and intends to open it for operation.

Jesse Liston has sold his coal for a royalty of 5 cents per ton. Charles Turney is opening a mine near town that will prove to be good coal. Besides, they are working several other places for new veins.

Harry Spear, of Uniontown, was in Addison over Christmas, visiting his mother and other relatives. While here he was reinstated in the K. of F

Among the many improvements that have recently been made at the Hotel Johnson, is a large sample room 18x36 feet-that has been fitted up. This popular hotel now has thirty-two newly furnished sleeping-rooms with all the modern and necessary accommodations. Proprietor A. M. Johnson has many other improvements in contemplation

On Saturday Adam Kreitzburg gave a ten days option on his farm and coal mine, adjoining Meyersdale, to H. J. Wilmoth, the price agreed upon was $16,000. Mr. Kreitzburg has supplied our people with coal for a good many years now, and his many customers will be sorry to learn of his retiring from that business. By his frugal nanner and fair treatment of his trade friend Adam has become well-to-do from this little mine, and it has been the base of his competence that he has saved. The property is certainly valuable one, for if Meyersdale continues to grow it will eventually become a part of the borough. John Hoffman, a baker that was formerly employed by C. W. Thompson and Garrett Herring and whose home is at Cumberland, drove over from no account in every possible way," exclaimed the indignant head of the family.
