FLOODS OF 1903.

The year 1903 had perhaps more than its fair share of natural calamity-of flood, and fire, and famine. In the United States, during May and June there were three notable floods, which caused serious loss of life and great destruction of property—one in Oregon one in South Carolina, and one in

ALL. THE NEW STYLES in Men's United States Geological Survey, scheduled as Water Supply and Irriga-tion Paper No. 96, contains a discussion of the various phenomena connected with these floods and suggests means for minimizing the destructiveness of

 Same from 16 to 20, black more than 200 people were drowned. The great loss of life was partly due to the peculiar construction of the houses in Heppner. Nearly all these houses were built on posts of wood or stone, from which the flood lifted them and carried them away to be dashed to pieces against trees and other obstructions.

The South Carolina flood occurred on June 6, 1903, and continued for nearly 24 hours. In that time there was a rainfall of from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 inches over an area of about 2500 square miles on the southern slope of the STRAYED, June 9th, 1904, Blue Ridge-Saluda Mountains, including parts of Cherokee, Spartanburg and Pickens counties in South Caro lina, and Rutherford, Polk, and Hen-derson counties in North Carolina This area is drained by three small tributaries of Broad River, known as the Pacolet, Tiger, and Enoree. The principal damage wrought by the flood was on the Pacolet, where numerous cotton mills were ruined and much railway property was destroyed. The Kansas flood occurred during the last week of May and the first week of June. It affected a much larger area than either the Heppner or South Carolina flood and was due to a storm that lasted nearly a week.

The United States Geological Survey has fortunately six gaging stations in the watershed of the Kansas River, and has, therefore, a comprehensive record of the surface fluctuations of the river and its principal tributaries during the flood. The records at Lawrence and Lecompton, on the Kansas River cover a period of 22 years. The estimated flow of the Kansas River or May 31 was 225,400 cubic feet per sec ond. In other words, if there had been a storage reservoir one acre in area and $7\frac{1}{2}$ feet in depth on each sec tion of the whole drainage area of the Kansas River, the water flowing in the river on May 31 was sufficient to have more than filled all of them.

The whole river bottom was flooded, crops were destroyed, stock was drown ed, wooden buildings were lifted from their foundations and brick houses crumbled and fell, railroads were un dermined, and bridges were swept away. Traffic in eastern Kansas wa almost entirely suspended for tw weeks. The property loss in Kansas and in Kansas City, Missouri, is estimated to have been no less than $22. 000,000.

DEMOCRACY'S ONLY CHANCE. There should be no misconception in the minds of Democrats as to the strength of the ticket nominated at Chicago yesterday. President Roosevelt is greatly admired by the young, progressive, and aggressive elements of his party.
