Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which falls of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

FIRST GUN FOR TEDDY

Republican Clubmen Will Open National Campaign in This State.
WILL FORM FIRST VOTERS' CLUBS

Great Preparations Are Being Made For the Convention of the State League, Which is to Be Held at Reading.

[Special Correspondence.]
 Reading, August 30.

The opening gun of the Republican campaign in this state is to be fired in Reading at the convention of the State League of Republican Clubs, which will be held on September 20 and 21.

While the Union League and the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia both sought to have the credit of opening the state campaign, Chairman Penrose, of the Republican state committee, decided that the active young Republicans of Pennsylvania, who constitute the membership of the various clubs which compose the Republican League, should be allowed the opportunity of holding the initial meeting under the auspices of the state organization in favor of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Roosevelt, he argued, is an especial favorite of the Young Republicans of the country and the clubmen of the Keystone state who have taken a lively interest in his candidacy should be allowed to lead the fighting for the national ticket in the present contest.

The officers and members of the State League fully appreciate the honor which has been conferred upon their organization, and they propose to make their convention next month one of the most notable in the history of the league. John R. Wiggins, president of the State League, and John Kelly, the secretary, both of Philadelphia, and the other officers of the league are co-operating with the committee of Berks county Republicans who are mapping out the program for the convention, the mass meeting and the various features for the entertainment of the delegates and alternates and other visitors who will be in Reading during the convention week.

Prominent Republicans from almost every county in the state have signified their intention of being present, and it is expected that there will be some splendid oratory both in the convention and at the mass meeting, in support of the national ticket and in arraignment of the Democracy.

Patriotism and aggressive Republicanism will be the order of the day and the campaign in this commonwealth for the election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks will certainly be opened under the most favorable auspices.

The State League of Republican Clubs will plan to hold meetings in every county in the state before election day. Where no Republican club now exists a determined effort will be made to organize one before the campaign shall be well under way.

Where there is a lacking of interest in clubs now on the rolls of the League, organizers will be sent to see that enthusiasm is once more stirred up among the members, and that they are gotten into line without delay.

One of the features of the convention will be the efforts that will be made to enlist the first voters of the state to support the national Republican candidates and the entire party ticket at the coming election.

WANT FIRST VOTERS PREPARED.

First Voters' clubs will be formed wherever ten or more young men about to cast their votes for the first time can be got together. They will be instructed in the method of marking their ballots and urged to attend Republican meetings during the progress of the campaign. They will be pressed into service to aid the Republican county committeemen in their respective districts, and will be invited to help in the work of getting doubtful or apathetic voters to the polls. The fact will be impressed upon such young men that many of the most famous statesmen and party men in the history of American politics began their political careers as members of small political clubs or as county committeemen, or simply as helpers at the polls on election day.

Efforts will be made to educate the first voters to a knowledge of the fact that a citizen of this Union can perform no more valuable service to his country than to encourage his neighbors and fellow-townsmen to exercise the right of franchise at every election, and to have them study the great questions which confront the statesmen and the lawmakers of the country and which divide the great political parties.

Officers of the State League state that in the present campaign Republicans are eager for a full discussion of every issue that has been raised or is likely to be raised in the pending canvass, and they wish the clubmen throughout the Keystone state to be prepared to meet their opponents whenever occasion shall present.

Arrangements will be made at the coming convention to have documents delivered promptly at the headquarters of the several clubs during the campaign, so that the members shall have a chance to book themselves on all issues.

A list of clubmen who will be available for work on the stump will be prepared, and their services will be placed at the disposal of the chairman of the state committee. During Chairman Penrose's absence in the west, President John R. Wiggins had frequent conferences with Secretary Andrews at the state headquarters and kept him posted regarding the work in hand.

State Chairman Confers With Cortelyou and Opens Campaign.
DISCUSSES THE SITUATION

Pennsylvania Republicans Urged to Roll up a Record-Breaking Majority and to Rally to Congressional Candidates.

[Special Correspondence.]
 Philadelphia, August 30.

Senator Penrose having returned home from his vacation trip in the far west, matters have taken on a very active aspect in the campaign in this state. As chairman of the Republican state committee, the senior senator has serious responsibilities on his shoulders and will have his hands full until after election day.

In carrying out his purpose to make this a record-breaking year as far as the size of the Republican majority is concerned, Chairman Penrose will leave nothing undone to rouse the party workers to their best efforts in every county in the commonwealth. He was delighted with the amount of work already accomplished by Secretary Andrews, who remained in charge of the headquarters during the chairman's absence, and was pleased to learn how enthusiastic and earnest the committeemen throughout the state have been in taking hold of the work of the canvass.

Senator Penrose, who reached home on Sunday, after looking after a number of matters requiring his immediate attention, left at once for New York to keep an appointment with Chairman Cortelyou, of the Republican national committee.

During Senator Penrose's absence Chairman Cortelyou wrote to him requesting a conference in relation to a number of matters bearing upon the national campaign which he desired to take up with him. Chairman Cortelyou has been very complimentary in his references to Senator Penrose, and in expressing his high regard in which he holds his opinion on political matters and of his appreciation of his strength as a party leader.

Just after the nomination of Roosevelt and before he had left the convention city, Cortelyou called on Senator Penrose and informed him that he desired his active services in the national campaign. He recognized the fact that the Pennsylvania senator had a valuable training in the school of practical politics in his connection with the management of the party organization in this state.

It is quite likely that Senator Penrose will be called to New York frequently during the national campaign, but he will not neglect the canvass in his home state. He has received a number of invitations to address meetings in New York, Indiana, Delaware, New Jersey and other states, and as far as possible will comply with these requests, all of which come from associates in the United States senate, members of the President's cabinet or from Chairman Cortelyou himself.

"We are anxious to carry every doubtful congressional district in Pennsylvania," said Chairman Penrose, in discussing his plans for the campaign in this state. "We now have 28 of the 32 congressmen from Pennsylvania. I would like to make our next delegation solidly Republican, but the best we can hope for, I guess, will be 30 of the 32. Pennsylvania is vitally interested in the present campaign, not merely in retaining a Republican president in the White House, but in seeing to it that both branches of congress shall continue with Republican majorities. The vast manufacturing and other industrial interests of this state have thriven under the Pennsylvania idea of a Republican protective tariff.

"There are many hundreds of thousands of our citizens now finding profitable employment and there are millions of capital invested which would be placed in jeopardy should the Democrats gain control of congress and be in a position to carry out their free trade policies. It is all very well to say that the United States senate is reliably Republican, and that the house of representatives of itself cannot pass a tariff act, but it should be remembered that political changes come quickly in this country, and that we should always be on the alert for any contingency that might arise.

"In Pennsylvania this fall we shall be called upon to elect members of the legislature who will in January next elect a member of the United States senate to serve for the full term of six years. The man thus chosen will be elected for a term which will carry him over the next presidential election. He will have two years to serve under the administration of the president who will be elected four years hence, and his vote may be the deciding factor in much important legislation directly affecting the interests of Pennsylvania. This fact must not be forgotten in the balloting for members of the state senate and the state house of representatives when our citizens go to the polls in November next.

"It should also be remembered that changes in but a few districts will give the Democrats a majority in the next house of representatives at Washington. Pennsylvania should therefore hold her own and if possible gain a member or two in the next house.

"Under no circumstances should any Republican be persuaded to vote for any other than the regular Republican nominee for congress. Let Pennsylvania continue to have the largest Republican representation in the national house of representatives, and she will be in a position to protect her interests and to serve her constituents in all emergencies."

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat, and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life, and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fit I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner, and one small bottle cured the three of us." A POWERFORGOOD.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was, it did me more good than calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took, and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by E. H. Miller.

Straw Vote in Chicago.

The Chicago Tribune has taken a straw vote in Chicago to indicate the preferences of the voters and finds a cheerful outlook for the Republicans. It employed professional canvassers, who did not tell any one who their employer was and who took every precaution to secure a fair vote. In this way it ascertained the presidential preferences of 3,805 Chicago voters living in various parts of the city and representing all classes of voters. Of the total, 1,938 were regular Republicans and 1,868 Democrats. But 2,131 stated their purpose to vote for Roosevelt, and 1,325 for Parker; 121 for Debs, Socialist, and 18 for Swallow, Prohibition. The figures show a Republican gain in Democratic votes of 195, and a Democratic loss in regular party votes of 251. That is probably a fair indication of the feeling in the west, where the Republicans carried every state east of the Missouri river in 1900.—Philadelphia Press.

What Did the Wogglebug Say?

Who is the Wogglebug? The Wogglebug is IT, with a big I and a big T. He is also T. E., which being translated into United States means Thoroughly Educated. He has all the learning of the ages packed away in the smallest noddle you ever saw. He looks like his picture—just as wise; and he gained his wisdom by living in a school house—crawled through the books and absorbed all they had in them.

The Wogglebug comes from Oz—a mysterious land beyond the planets. He is to visit the United States. He is accompanied by several companions. One is the Scarecrow, found in a field in the land of Oz. Though filled with life, he is stuffed with straw and has no brains. Another companion is the Tin Woodman, made of things from a tin-smith's shop. He has no heart. Then there is Jack Pumpkinhead, made by a boy named Tip. He was made to scare a witch. The witch sprinkled the powder of life on him and made him walk and talk. Tip stole the powder of life, sprinkled it on a Sawhorse, and the Sawhorse cantered away with Jack on his back. Then all of the Ozites came across the Gump. The Gump is two high-backed sofas lashed together with a stuffed deer's head and palm leaf fans for wings. The Gump is the vehicle in which the Wogglebug, the Scarecrow, the Tin Woodman, Jack Pumpkinhead and the Sawhorse have come to the United States.

The visitors from Oz will go to all parts of the United States and see all there is to be seen. The Wogglebug, wisest of insects, is the guide of the party, and the questions that puzzle the visitors he is always prepared to answer. All the doings of the visitors will be chronicled in the Sunday North American.

The Wogglebug's answers are not told, but are left for the reader's ingenuity. Those who solve them will be entitled to $500 in cash each month. The North American of Sunday, September 4, will contain the first pictured story of the doings of the people from Oz.
