A poll of the first voters in Indiana young men whose fathers were Democrats have announced their intention of voting the Republican ticket this fall. These young men have been studying American history and find that there is not a single important statute on the books or a single administrative act of general benefit to the American people to the credit of the Democratic party in the last half century. They find, as any young man can find by looking over the history of the country or the history of the Democratic party, that it has not a single act of either legisla tion or administration now under discussion to which it can lay any claim whatever.

The Democratic party has been only the brake on the wheel of progress. It has not advocated a single policy in the last half century that has been adopted by the people, and there is only one Republican policy that has been enacted into law which the Democratic party has not finally approved after it onstrated its success. The one Re publican policy which still meets with Democratic disapproval is that of protection to American industries. Individual Democrats of the North may approve this Republican policy which has diversified industry and added to the wealth and prosperity of the country, but the Democratic party as an organi zation continues to oppose it as unconstitutional and as robbery, and advocate a return to the old Democratic doctrine of free trade.

The South dictates the policy of the Democratic party now as it did before the war, when it had slave labor to compete with the free labor of the North. The South still has cheap labor and child labor. The politicians of the South have insisted that this question of child labor is a purely local question, just as they have insisted that the race question is purely local. They demand that the South shall be left alone in working out its industrial and economic questions, but at the same time they control the Democratic party in Congress, and there they dictate policy that would take from American labor the protection given by the tariff, to place this labor on the same footing with the cheap labor of Europe. They do this because the South has little to lose by free trade. It has cheap labor in the millions of Negroes kept in ig-norance and in white child labor which s prohibited by law in every Northern

It is not surprising that the young nen of Indiana whose fathers were Democrats are turning to Roosevelt. and the Republican party. The young tory and learning business methods. They have an ambition to do something. They are not willing to go to the polls only to protest against doing something, or to surrender their busiess judgment to the men of the South who still study the writings of political ago to form their economic policies for to-day. The young men of to-day want to be associated with those who are doing something, and something that will stand the test of their own judgment and experience in business ffairs. They know that a Democratic Congress would be controlled by the crats from the North. They know that tion for the man who earns his living by manual labor, but still try to con tinue the old policy of cheap labor, even at the sacrifice of the little chil-

WHAT WILL BE SURRENDERED.

An army when contemplating retreat or capitulation first considers what it shall surrender. Let us suppose that the American people on the 8th of next November capitulate to the Democratic party and its leaders, Parker and Davis. What should we have to surrender?

First-If Judge Parker and his supporters were able to carry out their purpose, we should surrender the Philippines and whatever advantage we may now possess by holding those Islands in the Pacific

Second—We should surrender all claim to the Panama strip and abandon the undertaking entirely.

Third-We should tear down our tariff wall and subject our own labor and industries to the competition of the world, thereby surrendering a home market worth from twenty to thirty billion dollars a year.

And next we should probably in the near future surrender our honor itself, as the Democratic party is still controlled by the advocates of free silver down, when all attempts at future pro gress and prosperity are abandoned, and when honor itself is lost, what else would there be worth retaining? The view would be a gloomy one, indeed, were the success of Mr. Parker and his party at all likely. Happily, however. there is not the least shadow of a pos-sibility that we shall have to surrender our birthright and everything else w possess, providing that the people are not too confident and neglect their op portunity on election day not only elect a Republican candidate, but to give the Democratic candidate such an overwhelming defeat that the party will remember it for a generation

MUST SAVE CONGRESS

Re-Election of Speaker Cannon May Depend On Pennsylvania Districts.

DEMOCRATS ON STILL HUNT

Chairman Penrose and Secretary Andrews Sound Warnings to Repub-Heans to Be Active. [Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Nov. 1.

Pennsylvania Republicans are relied upon to insure the re-election of "Uncle Joe" Cannon to the speakership of the next house.

Senator Boies Penrose, in discussing the political outlook in this state today, said: "We are bending all our energies toward the election of Reenergies toward the election of Ac-publicans to congress. There are sev-eral debatable districts in this state which we must carry without fall, and we are doing our utmost to see to it that the Republican voters fully appreciate the importance of getting ev-ery vote to the polls that it is possible to get out on election day.

Those who are not familiar with the situation may not realize the dan-ger with which the Republican party is confronted in this campaign. A gain of 16 congressmen in the 45 states of the Union would give the next house of representatives over to the Democracy. Those who have had ex-perience in the quick and unexpected changes that come in American poli tics can appreciate the concern which the national leaders have over the election of congressmen this fall. It is known that the Democrats have a very large campaign fund, and that the Republicans have been handi-capped for funds because of the fact that many Republicans think that there is no danger of our losing the

"Those who have studied the situa-tion know that a change of one vote in the Pennsylvania delegation might throw the house to the Democrats, and we therefore do not propose to leave anything undone to insure the elec-tion of every Republican candidate in the closely contested districts."

Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, secretary of the Republican state committee, who has looked after the corre spondence with the members of the committees throughout the state as usual, and who for 10 years has been actively identified with the work of the Republican state headquarters said this morning: "I am satisfied from the answers received from thousands of the committeemen throughout the state that they are not going to take anything for granted at the election on Tuesday next. There is a spirit of determina-tion to win shown in all of these let-ters which is indeed most gratifying. The committeemen seem to realize that much depends upon their world between this and election day, and look for the most aggressive and per sistent campaigning during the remaining days of the contest that we have had in Pennsylvania for many

"In some of the districts the Demo crats have been freely supplied with cash from the Democratic national committee and from other sources, and they are working secretly in the hope of catching our Republican work-ers off their guard. This information has come to us from several sources. including the secret avenues of mation at the Republican national committee. Senator Penrose has kept in touch with Chairman Cortelyou throughout the campaign, and has including the secret avenues of infor throughout the campaign, and has made weekly visits to New York, and I suppose he is as well posted about what is going on in the national campaign as any other member of the national committee. He is in a positional committee, the is in a positional committee. tion to learn much of what is going or among the Democrats, and has got in formation regarding several of the congressional districts in this state which has enabled us to warn our committeemen to beware of a still hunt effort of the Democratic workers to get their vote to the polls without appearing to be doing much in that direction.

"We want to make Pennsylvania the banner Republican state in the union," contiued Secretary Andrews, "and we cannot do this without the hearty cooperation of every man actively identi-fied with the Republican organization. "We want to continue to have the largest Republican delegation on the floor of the house in Washington, but we cannot have this without the most effective work of the rank and file of the organization in every election precinct, so that the Democrats will be thwarted in their underground tactics to capture what should naturally be Republican districts. The Democrats are claiming the election of seven congressmen from Pennsylvania. If every Republican in Pennsylavnaia does his duty on Tuesday next the Democrats will not get over one congressman from the Keystone state.

"The election of members of the leg-The election of members of the legislature is quite as important as the election of congressmen, for the next legislature will be called upon to elect a United States seneator who shall hold office for six years. No one can legislature will be called upon to elect a United States seneator who shall hold office for six years. No one can tell what changes may take place in national politics in that time, so that it is essential that Republicans not only vote for the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors and candidates for congress, but the form of the presidential electors are considered as a constant of the form of th also for the nominees for the legislature

"The safest thing for any Republican to do is to place a cross mark in the square to the right of the word, Republican,' in the first column of the ballot, and that will insure his vote for all of the Republican nominees-national, state and local."
