Last Saturday night some of the good people of the town got up a donation party for Widow Null, who resides on Grant street. Mrs. Null was made the recipient of many things for her table, as well as some other gifts, and THE STAR has been requested to state that she is very thankful to the many kind friends who contributed to the donation.

Charles Boucher and family, and John Boucher, all of Duquesne, Pa., were guests at the W. H. Boucher home several days during the past week. Pennsylvania, which makes more than half the iron used in the United States, produces less than 2 per cent of the iron ore mined. Ohio, which comes next to Pennsylvania as an iron-maker, mines less than .01 per cent of the total. In both cases the ore is brought to the fuel; and this is the policy in this country. Only in Alabama are the ore and fuel found together, says the Scientific American.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Garlitz have many warm friends here who are always pleased to entertain them.

A young man took a lady of pronounced temperance opinions to the theatre one evening, and as the curtain rang down after the first act, he left his seat, remarking, "I think I hear the fire alarm; I'll go and see about it." He returned a few minutes later and said: "Well, it was not a fire." "And it wasn't water," tartly replied the lady. Next time she went with him she stayed at home like a sensible girl. —Cumberland Courier.

Sarah Katherine Mason, wife of Samuel Mason, of Coal Run, died of cancer of the stomach, Dec. 19th, 1904. She was aged 38 years, 7 months and 7 days, and was the mother of fourteen children, ten of whom survive her. Deceased is also survived by her husband. The youngest child is 2 years old, and the oldest 21. The funeral service was held on the 21st inst., conducted by Rev. A. K. Travis, of the M. E. church. Much sympathy is felt for the stricken family.

A young man who has not been many years a benedict, carefully laid aside a piece of bread, the other night, and said to his wife: "I wish you could make bread such as mother used to make." The young wife smiled and remarked in a voice that did not tremble: "Well, John, I wish that you could make the 'dough' that father used to make." A hush as silent as death fell suddenly, John almost lost his breath, and the "dough" question has not come up for family discussion since.

Look out for Coughs, Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough. They are dangerous at this season of the year. They lead to pneumonia or consumption. You can prevent or cure all such complaints with Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar—an improvement over all cough, lung and bronchial remedies and the best Cough Syrup. 3-1

About forty of the strikers at Coal Run turned out at the funeral of Mrs. Samuel Mason, last week, which was right and proper, as Mr. Mason is a steadfast member of the miners' union. But, if it is true, as reported, that about ten of the funeral attendants made for the saloons and got stinking drunk immediately after the last sad rites were performed over the remains of a brother's dead wife, too much censure cannot be pronounced upon those showing so little respect for themselves.

A western store advertises "white goods for sale," and adds: "One of these nights a mouse will gnaw a match on your pantry shelf, dear sister, and the fire will spread till it reaches your room, and you will escape with your life, clad only in your night garments. Such a spectacular opportunity to create a sensation doesn't occur oftener than once in a lifetime, and how will you make it? Dear sister, will your night clothing be such that the firemen will want to plunge into the flames and die? Or will you look like the pictures on the bill boards?"

Ellet Smith, of Pittsburg, spent Christmas with friends in Salisbury. Ellet is one of our old schoolmates, and he is one of the many of that number now filling responsible positions. For many years he has been a very prominent telegraph operator in the Smokey City, but the old home ties still have a strong hold on him, and once or twice a year he comes to Salisbury to visit his aged father, Mr. Wm. Smith, as well as other relatives and friends. He is always given a hearty welcome, and the many old schoolmates and friends are always glad to see him.

The wooden wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ringler, Monday evening, was one of the most pleasant social events that transpired in this town for a long time. All present enjoyed themselves immensely, and the supper was one that reflected great credit on the culinary artists. The presents were numerous and handsome, and all departed feeling that it was good to have been there, at the same time wishing Mr. and Mrs. Ringler many more wedding anniversaries as happy as the last one. One feature of the evening was the baptism of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ringler, Rev. A. K. Travis, of the M. E. church, performing that religious rite in a very impressive manner.

C. T. Hay and C. A. Wilt recently effected a deal whereby Mr. Hay gets possession of the Wilt variety store and building, valued at about $10,000, including all the store goods and a stock of vehicles, while Mr. Wilt gets possession of 58 acres of the best portion of the land Mr. Hay bought last year from S. P. Maust. The land is a portion of the farm that formerly belonged to Milton J. Beachy, lying east of the Salisbury and Meyersdale road, and adjoining Salisbury borough on the northeast. The 58 acres now in possession of Mr. Wilt were figured into the deal at $7,000. Mr. Hay took possession of the store on the 19th inst., and he will soon greatly improve the building, which is already a fine one.

A number of young men of this city know the taste of baked porcupine, and also know that it is good fodder for man. They acquired their knowledge, however, through the unspeakable deceit of that arch conspirator of Riverside Park, Col. Edward Sutherland. The Bradford young men were invited by the corpulent colonel to partake of baked rabbit at his hostelry, and the young men were tempted. They made a hearty meal of savory meat, augmented by other festive details, and proclaimed themselves to the effect that the colonel was the one and only rabbit chew in the country. Imagine their consternation on being told that their meal comprised not rabbit, but hedgehog. And they think they are mighty hunters and know all about rabbits, too.—Bradford Record.

Richard Kent, the young Englishman who was badly hurt in Meager's mine, some time ago, mention of which was made in THE STAR at the time, requests us to return his sincere thanks to all who have generously aided him since his mishap. For the benefit of the unfortunate young man, the following amounts were contributed last week: By the employees of Meager's mine, $43.75; by the employees of the Chapman mine, $12.50; by citizens of Salisbury, $8.50. Mr. Kent is deeply grateful, and as he cannot thank his many sympathizers in person, he thank them through the medium of THE STAR, which is a true and sympathetic friend to every honorable working man, and especially to those who have been unfortunate. Mr. Kent is improving nicely, we are glad to say, and we trust that he will soon be able to be about again.

John Blanchard, who has been one of our many reliable, cash-paying subscribers for a number of years, gave us a handsome necktie for a Christmas present. We thank John very much for the gift, and since wearing it we have no trouble in getting a stand-in with all the pretty women in town. We have some good friends over at Coal Run that have threatened to give us a rope necktie if we don't quit expressing opinions on the strike that conflict with their own befogged ideas, but we are not losing any sleep on that account. A good hemp necktie is what some of them need themselves; not on account of the strike, in particular, but on general principles. If cowardly curs that write anonymous threatening letters all had their dues, they would have hemp neckties properly adjusted by the sheriff. That's about what some of them will get, too, in due time.

A saloon-keeper once said: Do you want to know how I happened to go into the saloon business? Well, I will tell you. I used to run a dry goods store. One day a man came in and wanted to look at some cheap socks. I showed him some that were ten cents a pair. He asked me if I didn't have something cheaper. I got down some that were five cents a pair. He looked at them for some time, and finally insisted that they were too expensive, and went out. I happened to step to the door and saw him go into the saloon, and followed him out of curiosity. There were several persons in the saloon, and the man called them up and treated. He spent 80 cents for booze! I concluded when a man kicked on buying socks at five cents a pair, and immediately spent 80 cents for booze, that the saloon business was the business I wanted to engage in, so I got into it as quick as possible.
