A REFUGEE IN DISASTER.

A fellow's father knows a lot
Of office work and such,
But when it comes to things like what
A boy wants, he ain't much;
For when it comes to cuts or warts
Or stone bruise on your toes,
A fellow's father don't know, but
A fellow's mother knows.

A fellow's father, he looks wise
And says: "A-hem! A-hem!"
But when it comes to cakes and pies
What does he know of them?
He knows the price of wheat and rye
And corn and oats, it's true,
But if you got the leg ache, why,
He don't know what to do.

And if you burned your back the time
That you went in to swim,
And want some stuff to heal it, why,
You never go to him,
Because he doesn't know a thing
About such things as those,
But you just bet, and don't forget,
A fellow's mother knows.

And if your nose is sunburned till
It's all peeled off, and you
Go to him for some healin' stuff,
He don't know what to do;
He's just as helpless as can be,
But when a fellow goes
And asks his mother, why, you see,
A fellow's mother knows.

A fellow's father knows a lot,
But it ain't any use,
So if a fellow's really got
The leg ache or a bruise,
Or if there's anything he wants
He gets right up and goes
And asks his mother, for, you see,
A fellow's mother knows.

—New York Times.

A CURE-ALL.

Feelin' pretty blue, you say?
Ha! ha! ha!
Things went wrong with you to-day?
Ha! ha! ha!
One would think, to see you frown,
All the troubles in the town
Clung to you and weighed you down.
Ha! ha! ha!

Come now, mister, don't get mad,
Ha! ha! ha!
I ain't laughin' 'cause you're sad,
Ha! ha! ha!
I've had troubles, too, to-day—
Bad as yours' I'll bet—but say,
I'm a-drivin' 'em away.
Ha! ha! ha!

Grandest tonic on this earth—
Ha! ha! ha!
Is a steady dose o' mirth.
Ha! ha! ha!
Just you get a strangle-hold
On your cares an' knock 'em cold
With a hearty, merry, old
"Ha! ha! ha!"
—Catholic Standard.

HAD 'EM TO BURN.

Two strange women together rode,
Squeezed in the same car seat;
Old maid was in stylish mode,
And one a widow neat.

Some forty years perhaps had flown,
Since theirs was life's springtime;
But neither had yet fully grown
Into the winter time.

The widow, thrice married, again
Taking the third's remains,
On the express car of the train,
To crematory flames.

The spinster wept, her grief was deep,
The widow asked her why,
So small a thing should make her weep;
"It's me that ought to cry."

"I can't help weeping, neither can
The puzzling problem learn;
Why, I can never get a man,
While you have 'em to burn."
—D. H. K., in Johnstown Tribune.

Censorship in Germany.

An American firm which spends a million a year in telling the public of its health-giving medicine has been told by Germany that if it advertises any more in that country it must condense its announcements down to a couple of inches. Recently these advertisers took a quarter of a single column in a German newspaper.

A few days after the advertisement appeared the publisher wrote to the advertisers, stating that he had been summoned and fined for "bombastic" advertising. No other advertiser occupied more than one or two inches of space, and one of the subscribers to the newspapers informed the local police that the quarter of a column—although it set forth the value of the medicine in terms of the strictest moderation—was offensive and irritating to the reader. The authorities did not in any way question the efficacy of the medicine; the sole objection was that an advertisement that occupied so large a space was offensive to the readers, and Germany is extremely strict in its perversion of advertising. A patent medicine vendor is not permitted to announce the disease his wares are intended to cure. An asthma medicine, for instance, must not be presented as a remedy for the complaint. Only the general effect it may have upon the system can be set forth, and the reader must himself conclude for what particular ailment it is intended.—Advertising, Chicago.

WEDDING INVITATIONS AT THE STAR OFFICE. A nice new stock just received.

Suggestion.
"Chicken soup, forsooth!" sneered the tragedian, with fine scorn.
"There's barely a suggestion of chicken in it!" protested the ingenue.
"Certainly no such suggestion as I self-respecting artist may act on!" exclaimed the comedian, a sardonic smile playing about his patriarchal mouth.
But the provincial boniface was in nowise depressed; these were by no means the first Thespians he had entertained.—Puck.

Hushing Uncle Silas.
"I heard a good joke on you, Joe!"
"By cracky!" exclaimed Uncle Silas.
"Well, just cuz I seen somebody eatin' soup in a saloon I never 'lowed I'd see a restaurant an' went in an' ordered a piece o' pumpkin pie," retorted Joe sturdily.—Indianapolis Sun.

An Ill Wind, Etc.
She—I saw you, sir, with that horrid widow! And I shall send back your presents at once.
He—Don't send them to me—send them to the widow.—Town Topics.

The Umbrella.
A man went into a hotel and left his umbrella in the stand, with a card bearing this inscription attached to it: "This umbrella belongs to a man who can deal a blow of 250 lbs. weight I will be back in 10 min."
On returning to seek his property he found in its place a card thus inscribed: "This card was left by a man who can run 12 mi. an hour. I shall not return."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Once Was Enough for Him.
Harskell—Mr. Hyler was at my house last evening. An agreeable sort of man. He insisted, in a gentlemanly way, upon my wife's playing on the piano.
Buckle—Oh, well, I wouldn't mind a little thing like that; it is not likely he'll ever do it again.—Boston Transcript.

Letting Him Down Easy.
"I have a very unpleasant duty to perform," said the chief. "The management desires to dispense with your services."
The office boy heaved a deep sigh of relief. "Gee!" he said, "I fought for a minit youse was goin' to fire me."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune

Not Really a Hero.
It is said that Lord Salisbury resolutely refused to tip his barber. He was a great man and not devoid of courage. But if we remember him right he was mostly whiskers.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Might Have Been Worse.
Socrates was sipping the hemlock. "It's pretty bad," he acknowledged, "but think what I have escaped. I might have been invited to a pink tea." Thankful that he was allowed a milder form of torture, he passed away with a happy smile.—Brooklyn Life.

The Clerk Changed His Mind.

Cholly—I beg of you to kindly send some one to my room at once with a pitcher of water.
Clerk—Can't. Too busy.
Cholly—But, my dear sir, my room is on fire.

"Your money or your life!" cried the villain, as he held the revolver in the victim's face.
"You'll have to take my money," answered the man, "my wife has mortgage on my life."—Detroit Free Press.

In Bohemia.
Spacer—Worrying over all your debts? Pahaw! Now that Miss Richpopp has accepted you your future is attended to.
Scribbles—A-yes; but I wish she "paid on acceptance."—Judge.

A Case in Point.
"I wonder what is meant by the statement that 'Nature equalizes things?'"
"Well, if Nature endows a woman with small feet it gives her a big head."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Easy Money.
"The only easy money that I am personally acquainted with," remarked Old Amadee, "is the money that I spend. And then it's so blame easy it makes my head swim."

An Easy One.
Dashaway—You say you've been making love to that widow?
Cleverton—Yes.
"What did you do?"
"Nothing."—Detroit Free Press.

No Amateur.
Mrs. Crawford—Is that an expert cenced girl you have?
Mrs. Opeghaw—Why, I should say she is! This is the ninth place she's kissed this year.—Judge.

HOME DRESSMAKING
By May Manton.
OF MOTTLED MOHAIR.

FASHIONABLE LINGERIE BLOUSE.

No trimming is so fashionable as embroidery worked into the material itself and for that reason all the girls who are deft with their fingers and handy with their needles have it in their power to be in the height of fashion with very little cost. The attractive blouse illustrated is designed especially for that treatment and is consequently made without fusses at the shoulders but an, nevertheless, be made from net, lace or any other embroidery, all of which are exceedingly fashionable, or again from plain material trimmed in any way that may be liked. High neck with long sleeves it is suited to afternoon wear while set low with elbow sleeves it becomes available for evening occasion so that the mode is practically two in one. When made from lace, net or other transparent material, it is greatly improved by a lining of chiffon or fine lawn cut exactly like the fabric, but heavy materials are preferable when quite modest. Material required for medium size (14 years) is 3/4 yards 27 inches wide. Patterns mailed by Fashion Department ten cents each.

TO PROTECT THE FROCK.

Child's Apron 4554, Sizes 4 to 8 Years.
Nothing makes a little girl seem daintier or more charming than a pretty apron that keeps her frock free from soil at the same time that it is attractive in itself. Here is one that is exceedingly becoming and which can be made from a variety of materials, white lawn, dimity and the like being suited to the better ones while chambray, gingham and other sturdier stuffs can be utilized for those of hard usage. In the illustration the lower edge is finished with little tucks and banding of embroidery, below which is a frill of the material, but that is optional and there can be a plain hem with tucks above or the hem without tucks, or again the tucks with frill either of the material or of the embroidery. Material required for medium size (6 years) is 3/4 yards 36 inches wide. Patterns mailed by Fashion Department ten cents each.
