Russian and Japanese War at an End.

Just as we go to press we learn that the Russian and Japanese peace com-missioners have agreed upon terms that will end one of the bloodiest wars on record. The Russians agreed to prac-tically all the demands of the Japanese, except the payment of indemnity, and the Russian government also retains half of Sakhalin Island.

The Japanese have acted most magnanimously in receding from their de-mand for indemnity, for they undoubt edly could have enforced it by again turning loose the "dogs of war."

President Roosevelt has covered himself with glory by his wise counsel himself with glory by ins where counsel with the warring nations, and the treaty will bring great advantages to the United States in a commercial way.

In the meantime the patriotic and plucky little "Japs" deserve great credit and much congratulation for their sweeping, one-sided victory over what

An Idiotic Law Passed by the Last INTERESTING NEVADA LETTER. Pennsylvania Legislature After January 1 of next year, every birth and death in the state of Pennsylvania must be reported to the offi-cer in charge of the district wherein it occurs, and certificates issued by the proper authorities. The late as-sembly appropriated $20,000 for the es-tablishment of a central bureau of vi-tal statistics to be under the supervision of the state board of health and have charge of the state registration of births and deaths. The state will be divided into registration districts, one for each city, borough and township. This new department will relieve the assessors of a portion of work, as here-tofore they have attended to the registering of births and deaths, receiving a

He is Able, but May be Unwilling. V. R. Saylor, attorney for the Elk Lick school board, presented a petition signed by four members of the board, asking for a writ of alternative manda-mus against the Poor Directors of this county. The petition sets forth than Robert Harding, an unmarried man unable to support himself. had con-tracted smallpox, and the school board had established and maintained a quarantine about the premises where he lives. Besides Harding, there were several other persons in the family whom the directors had to support. The school board contends that the subjects should be charges of the Poor have refused assistance. The writ was allowed. Attorney Yost ap-pearing for the directors. It has sever-al times been held by the Courts of this state that each district must, if it is able, look after its own subjects, and acting under those decisions, the Poor Directors have been refusing aid to the districts for some months.—Somerset Standard. He is Able, but May be Unwilling.

In connection with the above statement, THE STAR takes the liberty to state that Robert Harding is an ablestate that known harding is an able-bodied young man, hence thoroughly able to support himself, but may be unwilling to do so. He wishes to pose as a great fighter, and any young man able to fight is able to work and support himself.

NO. 33.

CARSON CITY, NEVADA, Aug. 20, 1905. EDITOR STAR :--- I think I have been in Carson long enough to write a few lines about the place, which is a town of about 3,000 inhabitants, and is one of Nevada's oldest towns.

Mining has made this town what it s. Tons and tons of rich ore has been taken out of the hills close by, years ago, and once in a while there is rich pocket ore found in the hills yet. The town is very dull and quiet at present, but being the state capital helps it. That, and the rich farming land, hold the place up.

If it would rain more here, it would be better for the land, but it seldom rains. It hasn't rained any here since the 1st of June, but God does not let the many thousand acres of land suffer. It snows but very little in the valleys, but throws a heavy snow on the moun tains, thus making a great amount of water through spring and summer. This country is blessed with many heartfield memory at the for indicating the second s beautiful mountain streams for irrigating purposes, and nowhere is the water

I went out fishing to one of the mountain streams for a short time, last month, and caught 38 trout weighing about 23 pounds. I send you a clipping concerning two tribes of Indians that recently smoked the pipe of peace, thinking it may interest some of the people in the old 'burg.'

THE PIPE OF PEACE.

After warring continually for the past hundred years, during which time countless numbers of braves were slain in battle, the remnants of the once powerful tribes, the Washoes and Piutes, met last night at the camp near Carson City, and, seated on the ground, surrounding the embers of a smouldering campfire, the chieftans of the two tribes smoked the pipe of peace and signed the treaty that forever sets aside the strife and enmity which has existed between the two nations.

In the presence of a vast crowd of spectators the braves and squaws of the two tribes circled around the seat-ed figures of their stern and sombre looking chiefs, chanting the wierd songs of their people and executing the figures of their strange dance. At the conclusion of their dance, the striking figure of Captain Ben, the grizzled orator and warrior from Walker stepped forward in front of the inter-ested throng of whites and Indians and addressed the braves in his own language for a brief period, setting forth the condition that has existed between the two tribes for so long, and relating deeds of valor, which have been performed by the warriors on different occasions.

At the conclusion of Captain Ben's address, a brave from each tribe, at-tired in full war dress, advanced to the enter of the circle of chiefs, bearing between them and resting upon a shield, a buffalo hide, yellow and parched with age. This was the deand claration of war made more than 100 years ago by the chiefs of the two tribes. The shield was placed on the ground, and Captain Dave, of the Washoes, and Captain Pete, of the Piutes, advanced and took the aged piece of
