The Itch for Publicity.

We often smile at the desire of some humble citizen to see his name in print. The country editor, especially, knows how severe is the pressure on his columns from various citizens often non-subscribers, for the glorious privilege of reading "Si Perkins" or "Melinda Maloon" in the Bugle. But are the rich, the haughty, the "sassy" lights exempt from this same human desire? Not if the revelations of the recent blackmailing scandal in New York can be taken as evidence.

Incidental to the case, it appeared that a great many wealthy persons with well-known names paid royalty for admission to a book to be called "America's Smart Set." It is said that the first subscriber to the work was John Jacob Astor, who paid in $1000. Mrs. Howard Gould also paid $1000, as did Clarence H. Mackay. And all this for the strictly commercial right to appear in an alleged work on society. The rural gentleman surely has the laugh on his urban confreres.—Press and Printer.

Bedford County Humor.

The Hopewell woman who threw a tumbler of water on a crowd of serenaders who were entertaining the neighborhood from a point near her room window, went to bed and slept peacefully the remainder of the night. When she woke up she learned that she had thrown her false teeth out with the water and that they had been broken to pieces on the pavement.

A Bedford woman gave an excuse for not attending a society affair that she "had nothing to wear." She must have been short of clothes, indeed, when she didn't have the little that is needed for such an occasion.

About two-thirds of what some people call sticking up for principle, is nothing more than bull-headedness.

People in love are proverbially silly, but the worst case comes from Missouri, where a young woman committed suicide because she feared the young man she was to marry was too good for her. If she had waited until a while after the ceremony she would have known better.—Everett Republican.

Slightly Mixed.

Two correspondents wrote to a country editor to know respectively, "The best way of assisting twins through the teething period," and "How to rid an orchard of grasshoppers."

The editor answered both questions faithfully, but unfortunately got the initials mixed, so that the fond father of the teething twins was thunderstruck by the following advice:

"If you are unfortunate enough to be plagued by these unwelcome little pests, the quickest means of settling them is to cover them with straw and set the straw on fire."

While the man who was bothered with grasshoppers was equally amazed to read:

"The best method of treatment is to give them each a warm bath twice a day and to rub their gums with bonese."

Thought It Was the Same.

An old woman living in Gardiner, Me., had occasion to call a doctor, according to the Boston Herald. He found her only slightly indisposed, and left a powder for her to take, with the following directions: "Take what you can get on a ten-cent piece every three hours."

Next day the doctor found his patient alarmingly ill.

"Did you take the powder as directed?" he asked.

"No, not exactly. I did not have a ten-cent piece, so I took what I could get on two fives."

All Right in Case He Heard.

"Well," said the cheerful wife, who thought she had a soprano voice, "if the worst comes to the worst I could keep the wolf from the door by singing."

"I don't doubt that would do it," replied the husband, who had suffered much, "but suppose the wolf should happen to be deaf?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

BUILDING ON THE SAND.

'Tis well to woo, 'tis well to wed,
For so the world has done
Since roses grew and myrtles blew,
And morning brought the sun.

But have a care, ye young and fair—
Be sure ye pledge with truth;
Be certain that your love will wear
Beyond the days of youth.

For if ye give not heart for heart,
As well as hand for hand,
You'll find you've played the "unwise"
part,
And "built upon the sand."

'Tis well to save, 'tis well to have
A goodly store of gold,
And hold enough of shining 'stuff—
For charity is cold.

But place not all your hopes and trust
In what the deep mine brings:
We cannot live on yellow dust
Unmixed with purer things.

And he who piles up wealth alone,
Will often have to stand
Beside his coffer chest and own
'Tis "built upon the sand."

'Tis good to speak in kindly guise,
And soothe whate'er you can;
Fair speech should bind the human mind,
And love link man to man.

But stay not at the gentle words,
Let deeds with language dwell;
The one who pities starving birds
Should scatter crumbs as well.

The mercy that is warm and true
Must lend a helping hand,
For those who talk, yet fail to do,
But "build upon the sand."

—ELIZA COOK.

THE VOTER.

I.
Now Smith is glad and joyous, for it's nearly time to vote,
He recollects a lot of things and makes his friends take note,
He holds a bunch of petty spite against the candidates;
He has no use for some of them, and some he fairly hates.
These grudges he has cherished for a year and maybe more,
And now Smith's chance has come at last to even up the score.

II.
A candidate for sheriff once ignored
him in the street,
A candidate for auditor once missed
him in a treat,
A proud judicial candidate is chesty, so
Smith thinks,
A councilman once voted for Smith's rival's crooked kinks;
And Smith remembers all these things,
and lots of others, too,
And now that 'lection time is here,
Smith knows just what he'll do.

SPECIAL WORDS.

My mother, she has special words
She's always using, but I find
The ones that I've most often heard
Is By-um-by and Never-mind.

Whenever I can't have my way,
And beg her "when?" and teas her
"why?"
The things she's likeliest to say
In Never-mind and By-um-by.

And when our picnic stopped beuz
It rained, or sunin' of the kind,
The only things she told us was
Just By-um-by and Never-mind.

I sat when By-um-by would be—
She told me "Never-mind!" so I
Said, "What is Never-mind?" and she Said I'd discover By-um-by.

My mother, she has special words
For question answering and such.
But I guess some that I have heard
Don't really mean so awfully much.
—Harper's Magazine.

HIS RETURN.

Full sixteen summers, Geraldine,
Have passed since you agreed to wait
In spite of what might intervene,
And here I am before the gate.

'Twas here—you see, I don't forget—
I kissed you—not upon the brow—
You wept so hard the grass was wet—
How many children have you now?

You told me then that you would wait
With sure and constant trust for me;
My eldest boy is nearly eight,
My little girl will soon be three.

'Twas here I vowed that I would earn
The world's sincere regard somehow;
You married the next fall, I learn—
How many children have you now?

—Chicago Record-Herald.

In the Year 2,000.

Give me a spoon of oleo, ma,
And the sodium of alkali,
For I'm going to make a pie, mama!
I'm going to make a pie.

For John will be hungry and tired, ma,
And his tissues will decompose;
So give me a gram of phosphate,
And the carbon and cellulose.

Now give me a chunk of caseine, ma,
To shorten the thermic fat,
And give me the oxygen bottle, ma,
And look at the thermostat,
And if the electric oven is cold,
Just turn it on half an ohm,
For I want to have the supper ready
As soon as John comes home.

STAND BY ROOSEVELT

Pennsylvania Republicans to Show Their Loyalty to the President.

NOVEMBER'S VOTE TO BE A TEST

Sympathies of the National Administration Are Strongly With the Party Organization in This State.

[Special Correspondence.]
Philadelphia, Sept. 12.

Every vote cast for the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania at the approaching election will not only be a vote of endorsement of Republican principles but a vote of confidence in Roosevelt as well as an additional guarantee to the national administration that the great Republican organization of the Keystone State stands firmly and loyally by the president.

The scandalous conduct of the new insurgent-Democratic combine in Pennsylvania make it essential that the honest Republicans of the state shall assert themselves at the next election.

A member of the Union League has received from President Roosevelt a personal letter which absolutely disposes of the rumors circulated by assistant Democrats in this city and state to the effect that one or more members of the president's cabinet will figure in opposition to the regular Republican cause.

While such reports would ordinarily be regarded as too ridiculous to necessitate denial, the repeated announcements from insurgent and Democratic newspapers that Secretary Bonaparte will make a speech or write a letter to be used in the present campaign in the interest of the anti-Republican candidates prompted the correspondence which brought forth the letter from the president to one of his personal friends in the Union League.

Roosevelt's interest in Pennsylvania. Not only does President Roosevelt make it clear that Secretary Bonaparte will not figure in the Pennsylvania campaign, but Republicans who have been curious about the foundation for other stories indicating that the president's sympathies are not fully with the regular Republican organization in Pennsylvania are given no excuse to be longer in doubt as to the attitude of the federal administration on the question of loyalty to the Republican party in the Keystone State.

President Roosevelt fully realizes that the two Republican United States senators and the 31 Republican members of the national house of representatives from Pennsylvania have been heartily in accord with his administration, and they intend to stand by him in his future efforts for the development of the country's resources under Republican policies. He also knows that the present contest in Pennsylvania will have a far-reaching effect upon the great struggle for the election of congressmen next year.

Lines Must Not Be Broken.

"Should the Republican lines be broken in Pennsylvania this fall disastrous results would surely follow in the congressional election next year," declared Chairman Andrews, of the Republican state committee. There are several close congressional districts in this state, and it may require the most strenuous work in the approaching congressional campaign to hold Pennsylvania's record of having the largest Republican delegation of any state in the union on the floor of the national house of representatives.

"The great manufacturing and industrial interests of Pennsylvania which are so dependant upon Republican supremacy," continued Chairman Andrews "will not allow factional bickerings or the work of a few aspiring and reckless individuals to imperil the election by a large majority of every one of the candidates on the Republican state ticket next November.

"Insurgent and party wrecking organizations formed to advance the personal interests of a clique of wealthy and ambitious men cannot get a foothold in Republican Pennsylvania this fall to endanger Republican success in the great struggle of next year when the vital interests of the commonwealth will be so deeply concerned."

Gordon-Weaver Combine.

In the Machiavellian game that is being played in this city to further the insurgent movement, former Judge Gordon's fine hand has been disclosed from time to time.

In line with the circulation of reports that Secretary Bonaparte and possibly other cabinet officers would be heard from during the course of the campaign in favor of the so-called "reform" agitation was the attempt to have it appear that President Roosevelt sought a conference with Mayor Weaver on his return visit to Wilkes-Barre.

It is known that this much advertised "conference" had no political significance. The fact is, there was no "conference" between the president and the mayor of Philadelphia upon any subject. Mayor Weaver met the president as thousands of other citizens greeted him during his visit to the coal regions. There was not a second during their meeting at which there were not several other persons present and in hearing distance.

It is now declared that Mayor Weaver's visit to the coal regions was deliberately planned for political purposes by the Gordon outfit, and that the speech which he delivered to the delegates to the convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Beneficial Union was carefully prepared with a view to advancing the interests of the men back of the independent campaign in this city and state.

It has been boldly charged and not denied that Gordon wrote the speech

Andrews is Satisfied.

Republican State Chairman Andrews is entirely satisfied with his reports from the counties, says the Pittsburg Gazette. They indicate the usual "reform" plurality for J. Lee Plummer, or more. There is no good reason why this should not be so. Mr. Plummer is a man of high character, who has the heartiest support of all Republicans in Blair county, where he resides. He is well qualified for the position to which he aspires. His opponent, Mayor Berry of Chester, is not so well equipped for the place. He is a self-seeking politician, a place hunter, a chronic candidate for office who is willing to be nominee of any party that has a chance of success—Prohibitionist, Free Silverite, by turns—Mr. Berry is anything for an office and not much in one.

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF SALISBURY.

Something that Ought to Interest Salisbury People Who Have Located Elsewhere.

THE STAR has for sale a limited number of very fine pictures of Salisbury, size 22x32 inches, printed on extra heavy, smooth paper, from a very fine engraving. The sketching was done by T. M. Fowler, of Morrisville, Pa., who is an expert in his line and has been following his business in many different states of the Union.

The picture is very clear and distinct, showing all the streets plainly marked, and those familiar with the town can plainly recognize every building in it. The pictures have sold like "hot cakes" here, and a limited number have been placed with THE STAR to supply those at a distance, who may desire them.

Every former citizen of Salisbury ought to have one of these fine engravings, as they show the progress the old town has been making, which has been very great in recent years. But we cannot supply them all, and those who apply first will get them. The picture includes West Salisbury, the surrounding landscape and some of the farm houses in the immediate vicinity, also a large number of the principal buildings printed around the margin of the engraving, from special drawings.

BALTIMORE & OHIO TERMINAL AT TWENTY-THIRD STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

All passenger trains of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to and from New York City now have direct ferry connection with 23rd Street Terminal, in addition to Liberty Street; the South Ferry Terminal having been discontinued.

Twenty-third Street is the most popular terminal of the great metropolis because of its convenient location, theatre and shopping district. In the recent remodeling of the terminal building a glass roofed canopy was constructed fifty feet wide, under which the cross-town cars of 14th, 23rd, 28th and 29th Street lines pass, so that passengers are protected from the weather leaving the ferry house, and also avoid the annoyance of street traffic.

All baggage destined to New York City will be delivered to 23rd Street unless distinctly marked "Liberty Street" or otherwise.

A complete electric cab service has also been established for the transportation of passengers and baggage at very reasonable rates.

The importance of 23rd Street is most graphically brought to attention in the August number of the "Book of the Royal Blue" published by the Passenger Department of the Baltimore & Ohio, under the title "Into the Heart of Gotham." The interest centers within a mile radius of 23rd Street, Fifth Avenue and Broadway. Full page photographs of unusual detail present a most vivid picture of this most interesting locality.
