The Foul Crime of Vaccination Causes Much Trouble in Windber and Other Places.

Last Monday morning the principal and teachers of the public schools of Windber refused to admit to the schools all children who did not present a doctor's certificate setting forth that the child had been successfully vaccinated. Probably twenty per cent. of the pupils were sent home. Many of the parents of the children who were sent home refused to comply with the conditions, and it is their opinion that the laws of the state will not compel them to vaccinate their children.

Many people seriously object to vaccination on account of the disastrous results that sometimes follow. According to reports, 2 per cent. of those vaccinated die, and it is said that a woodsman at Ashtola, who was vaccinated sometime ago, was a victim to the effects. It is a question whether the state would compel a person to inflict on his person something that endangers life.

In a case brought before Judge Fanning in Bradford county, he has decided that the vaccination law is not compulsory; that the option is left with the parent or guardian whether the child shall be vaccinated or not, subject to the penalty that if the child be not vaccinated, it shall be debarred from the privileges of the public schools. He further holds that the compulsory education law requires the parent to send the child to school; when he has done so the requirements of the statute have been met. The act does not require him to make the child eligible by compelling him to undergo vaccination. If the authorities refuse to admit the child for want of a certificate of vaccination, as they have a right to do, this is a complete answer to a prosecution under the compulsory education law.

Windber is not the only place having trouble over the vaccination business. At Somerhill, last Monday, at least three-fourths of the children were sent home, and the difficulty is far from being settled. Some have decided that the easiest way out of the middle is to get their children vaccinated, while others expect to fight the authorities to the end. Over in Scalp there is considerable opposition, too.—Windber Journal.

The Journal alleges that according to reports two per cent. of the people vaccinated die of the effects thereof. That statement may be challenged, and it is not likely that two per cent. of the people vaccinated die as a direct result from the vaccination, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that a much larger per cent. die as an indirect result therefrom.

A very large percentage of the people who undergo vaccination are never as healthy afterwards as they were before, and we have many people right here in Salisbury who freely acknowledge this and speak from experience.

To be vaccinated is to foolishly have your blood poisoned, and thereby your system is prepared to invite all manner of disease, and there is where the damnable greed and graft in the medical profession gets in its legalized criminal work for revenue only.

Some of the vaccinated children in this town are now going about with arms that are frightful to behold, many of them suffering intensely, while the poor mothers' cares are increased two fold, to say nothing of the heartache it brings to them to see their rosy-cheeked children needlessly and criminally made sick, and in some cases perhaps ruined. We wish some of the old maid and old bachelor school teachers throughout the country, those who are doing all they can to have the fool vaccination law enforced, would have to take care of the little semi-murdered victims, dress their wounds, etc. They would then look at vaccination in a different light.

If the doctors who caused some of the sore arms we have been shown during the past week, could look upon them without feeling some remorse of conscience, without feeling that they have committed a crime against man and against God, we wouldn't give much for their kind of conscience.

The Sunday schools are paying no attention to the vaccination edict, yet the vaccination law is as binding upon Sunday school superintendents as it is upon public school teachers. The Sunday schools simply ignore the law for the good of the schools, and if the public school teachers would do the same, a very bad law would soon become a dead letter, which just fate many other bad laws have met, and no attempt is ever made at enforcing, because the job would be too big. But with a doctor in the school board, and a sister of a doctor as principal of the Salisbury school, the school patrons of this borough were so foolish as to elect a medical man to the school board. Many of them are now repenting their folly.

OUR GREATEST BARGAIN!—We will send you this paper and the Philadelphia Daily North American, both papers for a whole year, for only $3.75. Subscribe now, and address all orders to THE STAR, Elk Lick, Pa.
