wisely, girls had better set their affections on cats or poodles, and let matrimony alone.

THE HOME.

Whatever may be said of woman's mission on earth and of her power, social and otherwise, it is in the home that she exerts the greatest influence, moulding the character of her children and giving the impress of her own life upon every member of the household. That there are other spheres in which she may take part is not questioned. If she must support herself, or if there are others dependent upon her, we think she has the right to select a vocation or a profession, but it is in the home that she displays her powers to the best advantage.

KIND WORDS.

As the breath of dew on the tender plant, they fall gently upon the drooping heart, refreshing its withered tendrils and soothing its burning woes. Bright oases they are in life's greatest desert. Who can estimate the pangs they have alleviated, or the good works they have accomplished?

Long after they are uttered do they reverberate in the soul's inner chambers and sing low, sweet, liquid strains, that quell all the raging storms that may have before existed. And, oh, when the heart is sad, and like a broken harp the sweetest chords of pleasure cease to vibrate, who can tell the power of one kind word? One little word of tenderness gushing in upon the soul will sweep the long neglected chords, and awaken the most pleasant strains.

COLD WATER.

Fire and water are two elements which man cannot get along without—especially water. The water we are writing about in this article, however, is not the fluid that ships sail upon, or boys swim in, or in which fish live; but a different brand. It is just as powerful as the kind which flows in its magnificence over Niagara Falls, or turns the wheels of the mighty mills and factories situated along the banks of some swiftly running stream. Its action is like the tiny drop which finally wears away the largest stone. Unlike the pure, cold, crystal water of our forefathers, or the sweet and tasty fluid drawn from the well by means of the moss-covered and iron-bound bucket, its action is evil, cruel and heart-breaking.

The cold water we refer to comes in different colored bottles with variegated labels. Nagging is one brand. The habit of finding fault. Picking flaws and never scattering a ray of sunshine in the shape of a gentle word of praise for a good action performed. Nothing is so discouraging to a person, whether a grown-up or a growing child, when conscientiously trying to do right, as to be harped at because he did not do better, and, when persisted in, breeds discontent and rebellion. There is a difference between reproof and fault-finding, just as there are different kinds of water, health-giving springs and the disease-breeding, stagnant kind found in blackened pools.

Another kind of water is the icy-cold brand, dished out under the name of discouragement, ridicule, and belittlement of worthy actions. All singers cannot rise to the greatness of a Jenny Lind or an Adelaide Patti. All artists cannot equal Raphael; or all writers cannot reach the Shakespearean height in literature. Because of his limitation, don't throw cold water on the hopes and aspirations of those who may some day reach a reasonable, if somewhat lesser plain of greatness, but encourage every good and perfect action which tends to lift aspiration from the rut of the commonplace. A dash of cold water in some cases may be necessary—but in the main, Turkish baths are more appreciated than the Russian kind.

The Awkward Men.

Some men are extremely awkward, and we have no right whatever to doubt the following, as it appeared in the Carleton (Neb.) Leader, a paper edited by a preacher:

"It is said of a Coon Ridge man that in putting on his clothes, last Sunday, he asked the good-looking hired girl for a pin. Her hands were covered with dough, so she just swelled out the bosom of her dress and told him to take one; and this poor, awkward wife would be fumbling yet, if his wife hadn't happened in and bounced the rolling pin on his head."

As the Printer Prints.

Whether it snow or whether it blow, the seasons come and the seasons go; the crops get sick and the farmer blue, the storekeepers kick and the lawyers sue, the preachers preach and the sinners sin, and beset the souls of men. But through it all the printer prints, he saves and saves and stints and stints; the winds may rave and the floods may roll, and droughts bake through from pole to pole, but the printer man he prints and prints and prints, and saves and saves and stints and stints. Happy, happy printer man; he does the very best he can—sticking type or twisting press, he trusts to luck and does his best.—Ex.
