Collision of Passenger Trains Causes Horrible Disaster.

SIGNALS OBSCURED BY FOG

The Night Express from Boston Crashes Into Rear of an Accommodation.

Eighteen persons were killed, 25 seriously injured and probably score of others cut and bruised in the most disastrous railroad wreck recorded in the state of Massachusetts r many years. The wreck occurred Bakers Bridge station, a mile and at Bakers Bridge station, a mile and a half west of Lincoln, on the man time of the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine railroad. The regular Sunday night express which left Boston at 7:45 o'clock for Montreal by way of the Rutiand system, crashed into the rear of an accommodation train bound for points on the Marlboro branch line, and which started from Boston at 7:15.

There were 13 corpses taken from the wreck and three died soon after being removed. Three bodies were headless. Two skulls were found and a man's head with a full beard was picked up. It is difficult to fix the exact number of those who perished but it is thought it will not exceed 18.

Of the dead, a dozen were passengers in the two rear cars of the Marlboro train. No passenger on the express train was injured. Of those who lost their lives, a number were apparently killed instantly in the collision, while others were either burned to death or died from suffocation.

The wreck was primarily due to Histon, while others were either burned to death or died from suffocation. The wreck was primarily due to thick weather which apparently obscured signals set by the forward train, which at the time of the disaster was standing in front of Bakers Bridge station. The Montreal train, drawn by two locomotives and consisting also of nine cars, crashed into the rear of the Marlboro branch local, demolishing the two rear cars.

All of the passengers killed and certously injured were in these. The passengers lived in Concord, West Acton, Maynard, Hiddson, Marlboro, and several smaller towns in the Assabet valley. None of the passengers on the Montreal train was seriously hurt, but the engineer and fireman of the leading locomotive were killed. The wreckage caught fire and some of the passengers were incinerated. Few persons live in the vicinity of Bakers Bridge station, and no fire department was available, so that the flames practically burned themselves out. The uninjured passengers and a number of train hands, assisted by villagers, went to the aid of the injured and many persons were rescued.

jured and many persons were rescued.

A special train was sent from Boston by the Boston & Maine management at 9:35 o'clock; and reached here inside of a half hour. The train brought a number of doctors, while many doctors from Waltham and other places were sent to the scene in carriages and by other trains.

WOMAN'S CORPSE IN TRUNK Packed in Chloride of Lime-Missing

Nearly Two Weeks.

What appears to be a murder committed nearly two weeks ago, was discovered when the badly decomposed body of Mrs. John Hammond was found in a trunk at her home in Albany, N. Y. The trunk stood in the fireplace and the body within was heavily sprinkled with chloride of lime. The disinfectant was strewn quickly about the three rooms of the flat and the cover of the trunk was popped open, with the evident idea of having the odors of decomposition escape up the chimney.

John Hammond, the woman's husband, has not been seen for nearly two weeks. He was 25 years old, the wife 57. There were no marks of violence on the body, which, when found, was fully clothed except shoes. The body was bound in position with a clothesline. Nearly Two Weeks.
