Crude Thoughts As They Fall From the Editorial Pen—Pleasant Evening Reveries.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers As They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

THE PLAIN WOMAN.

When you want to get your grandest idea of a queen, you do not think of Catherine of Russia, or of Anne of England, or of Marie Theresa of Germany; but when you want to get your grandest idea of a queen, you think of the plain woman, who sat opposite your father at the table, or walked with him arm in arm down life's pathway; sometimes to the Thanksgiving banquet, sometimes to the grave, but always together—soothing your petty griefs, correcting your childish waywardness, joining in your infantile sports, listening to your evening prayers, toiling for you with needle, or at the spinning wheel, and on cold nights wrapping you up snug and warm. And then at last on that day when she lay dying, and you saw her take those thin hands with which she had toiled for you so long, and put them together in a dying prayer that commended you to the God whom she had taught you to trust—oh, she was the queen! The chariots of God came down to fetch her, and as she went up, all heaven rose up. You cannot think of her now without a rush of tenderness that stirs the deep foundations of your soul, and you feel as much a child again as when you cried on her lap; and if you could bring her back again to speak just once more your name, as tenderly as she used to speak it, you would be willing to throw yourself on the ground and kiss the sod that covers her, crying: "Mother! mother!" Ah, she was the queen—she was the queen!

A NEW YEAR AND BETTER THINGS.

The old year glided away so smoothly, day succeeding day, month following month, with no abrupt endings, that we hardly noted the passage of the hours. Winter melted into spring, spring lingered a while with her birds and flowers, then warmed into summer. Summer fruits ripened and dropped into autumn's lap, and autumn amid a shower of falling leaves moved on toward winter again. The old year ends promptly at the midnight hour and goes out in the solemn darkness, and again the circle is complete. If the old year had its hours of bitter sorrow, it also had its times of joy. Many of the dear old friends live only in memory, but we have hosts of new ones. The true-hearted meet the new year with a hope and a prayer that in its day they may "rise on stepping stones of their dead selves to higher things." The housewife and mother are among the many who desire to attain greater excellence. With her it may mean a desire to be self-forgetful and to observe to a letter the principles in the motto "keep sweet," or it may be an effort to give up her mind to work that is unpleasant or disliked. Or it may mean a stronger effort to systematize her work; to do it better with less labor or perform it in an orderly fashion, where before she has done it in a slipshod or desultory way.

If the motto "keep sweet" was lived up to in the new year, would not our little world of home be the better for it? Even if its influence reached no further, would it not be worth the while? To "keep sweet" one must possess a happy unconsciousness of self and enthusiasm about the little things that fill the hours of every day, and an absence of malice and envy. One must have a bright outlook on life and a courageous heart. Such an outlook and such a heart are invaluable to the housewife. They cheer herself and those under her influence. "The hand that moves the world" surely should pulse with high courage that comes from a brave true heart.
