To the ones that have gone before A little more halting of the gait, And a dullness of the ear; A growing weariness of the frame

With each swift passing year, A fading of hopes, and ambitions, too A faltering in life's quest; But a little nearer every day

To a sweet and peaceful rest A little more loneliness in life As the dear ones pass away : A bigger claim on the heavenly'land

With every passing day. A little further from toil and care, A little less way to roam; A drawing nearer to a peaceful voyage And a happy welcome home.

THE PAST AND THE FUTURE.

So near the beginning of a new year is a proper time to review the past, and, if possible, peer into the future.

All history is mere romance unless studied as an example. By its guidance we can travel back over the cen-turies that slumber. It is with a rev-erent hand that we lift the veil that has draped over a sacred past. While the world was yet new we find students busy developing theories and systems to be perfected by coming generations, thus aiding in opening up new paths in the fields of literature, science and art. The torch of genius canno be extinguished. Thinkers are mortal but thoughts immortal. Great leaders die, but principles are eternal. Only by studying the past can we rightly estimate the possibilities of the future, and what better mental food can we crave than that which furnishes such asting stimulus to earnest endeavor. Each century sweeps clean the loves and hates of its predecessors, yet its achievements are never forgotten; its mbitions, its emotions die, each task is laid down, but the truths set in moon will live and gather strength as the years go by.

The decisions rendered by the diplo mats of the past continue to sway the judicial world of today. Blackstone's legal reputation has suffered no diminution during the years that have swept over his grave. Gladstone will be a greater power in the political life of Europe in a hundred years hence, than he was at the time his masterful brain point a complete set of officers to take was darkened by the eclipse of death. Herbert Spencer, who spent the best years of a long life in study that he might give to the world a comprehenive generalization of modern thought has sealed his fame, and his name be honored centuries after his frail body has slept with the mighty thinkers who preceded him. Time passed in the society of great minds is always helpful.

As we turn from the past to consider some of the possibilities of the future, may we not claim for ourselves higher resolves for self development, which as a rule means self promotion? The onward march of civilization has made the deserts bud and blossom as the rose, and as we go from conquest to conquest, what is in reserve for coming generations is an easy prediction. The moto-carriage will be the carriage of the future. Ocean cables that have brought continents into close contact will be perfected, and their service will be cheapened so that other than mil-lionairs may hope to receive or convey a message. Electricity that man has chained and made his servant will be-come the light of the world. It rivals of the future. Ocean cables that have ome the light of the world. It rivals the sun in radiance, and no one will question its striking qualities. In the future, electricity will be used to propel the farm plow, and the old farm rses will be sold for army rations. bridge will span the Atlantic Ocean Electric motors with fine cars attached will convey young America to Old England without the aid of steam Sea sickness will be abolished. whole world will be run by electric bells. Telephones will connect every town and hamlet. The planet Mars, will be in direct communication with the earth. The lynotype will do away As low as $5 per Acre with old-fashioned type setting. Wom-en will have the ballot and will be elected to Congress and the Senate of the United States, and when there, will wrangle as persistently as the men. Women and men will seek wider fields of mental activity. The Indian warwhoop will give place to the sweet music of cultured orchestras. The wigwam will be deserted by the Indian maiden, who will discard the garb of her race, and, clothed in fine raiment, will play her grand piano with the grace of our town belle. The Filipinos

United States and his cabinet official The ladies, gowned in rich velvets and satins, and brilliant in costly jewels. will be added to the monled aristocracy of America. Portraits of the generals who whipped these barbarians into these happy conditions, will be found in the drawing-rooms of Manila. "The We believe that the primar Star-Spangled Banner" will float over Cuba. These prognostications are not based on fairy tales or vagaries of the imagination, but on facts. The past is a guarantee for the advanced ideas of the future In noting the possibili-ties of the future, we must not forget what coming centuries hold in keeping for our own sunny town, or the part it may play in the shifting drama of the future. Our town, with its schools,

The "Ideal husbands" and "Ideal wives" are often found without ideas nough between the two for one good Kinley, E. McDowell and Jer. J. Livenone of either kind achievements.

Many are the rough places we tread from the cradle to the grave; many are the sighs, tears and discouragements but we can extract joy from the mos desert places on the way, and amid the most piercing heartaches, by the thought that we have made others happy, and that there is perpetual morn-ing only a little way off. At every step of the way we travel, let us gather all the flowers that bloom, and revel amid all the beauty there is, but never forgetting the sweetest and best happi-ness that can possibly thrill the soul is that which comes from a consciousness of loving and being loved; and we can never love or be loved unless we are willing to live for others.

BOROUGH NOMINATIONS.

Only One Ticket in the Field this Year, Most of Which is Very Satisfactory.

The non-partisan caucus held Hay's opera house, last Thursday even-ing, at the joint call of Republican Committeeman A. C. Maust, and Democratic Committeeman Geo. C. Hay, was attended by over a hundred citizens of all political shades and complexions, also by a few men who were not citizens and had no business there It is alleged by some who were present that a couple of men who are not citi zens, actually took a hand in the balloting. By others, the assertion is de-nied. THE STAR does not know how about that report, but we do know that if any foreigners were there and even attempted to vote, they made them-selves liable to arrest and fine. We also know that fraudulent votes were cast by persons voting more than one ballot for the same candidate. As fraud could easily be proven, it would be a very easy matter to upset the en-point a complete set of officers to take the place of all out-going officials. However, it is not likely that any such steps will be taken, as most of the ticket nominated is very satisfac-tory, and had a plurality of the honest ballots cast, without a doubt. The only candidates believed to have been unfairly nominated are the candidates for Burgess and Street Com-missioner, respectively, and there is some talk of those two men having to contest for an election with two independent candidates. In justice to Mc-Kinley and Ringler, however, we will say that there is nothing to show that they were participants in any fraud themselves, or that they had any knowledge of it. Nevertheless, there are good grounds to believe that neither of them would today be nominees of that caucus if fraudulent voting had not been done, and the people should not stand for it. Besides, McKinley is own to wake up and do Our borough elections are the most di rectly important of all elections most of our people, and every citizen should attend the caucuses or prima ries. To remain away is to jeopardize We believe that the primary election system of nominating borough and township officers is far the best and most satisfactory. The non-partisan and so-called citizens' enuc usually too unwieldy, and afford too much opportunity for fraud. The pri-mary system would be much fairer, and we believe the better class of citizens would also take more interest in it

By the caucus system the weakest candidates are as frequently nominated newspaper and churches, must have as the strongest ones, owing to fool mo some humble part in the world's tions and other things done in a hurry tions and other things done in a hurry and without thought. In the caucus here reviewed. McKinley was the weakest man of the three balloted for for Burgess. The candidates were Mc. good, and had the contest been between McKinley and either of his op ponents alone, the present nomin ould have been badly defeated. But somebody foolishly moved that nomi nations be closed, thoughtlessly the motion was carried, and then McKinley was nominated by the "skin of his teeth." But he isn't elected yet, and he ought not to be. The majority of the people of Salisbury will be very sorry of it if they elect him.

Why Buy McClure's?

McClure's Magazine is bought and read in homes not because it is a magazine, but ecause it is the magazine. Why? FIRST-THE PRICE. It costs but one dollar a year, or less than ten cents a num-er, for over thirteen hundred two-column pages of reading matter. This amounts in ac-ual bulk to twenty or twenty-five books costing anywhere from a dollar to two dollars a volume. BECOND-QUALITY. The reading matter is written by America's leading writers the best short story writers, the best writers on timely articles, the best writers of im-portant serials, such as Schurz's Reminiscences of Baker's Railroad articles. THIRD-TIMELINESS. The reading matter in McClure's is not only good; it is not only entertaining, amusing, instructive and inspiring—it is also about the subjects in which you and all Americansare most interested as the time. No subjects in the next twelve months are going to be so important as the question of railroad rates and rebates. and the question of life insurance. Both of these questions will be discussed by authori-ties in an impartial, careful, interesting way. FOURTH-ITS CHARACTER McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time, there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read. Its ad-vertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.
