The Eighteenth century will stand in history as the age in which the doctrine of the rights of man developed commanding strength and popular sway.

The French Revolution in Europe, and the American Revolution in this try, spread democratic ideas broadcast. The Nineteenth century did very much to confirm and establish these principles, but it did much more to secure the rights of woman. At the close of things the Twentieth century shall achieve, we feel quite sure that it will be characterized by a more intelligent appreciation of the rights of children, and better agencies and methods for their training and development. It will be the reminiscence of childhood.

Interesting to Dickens' Lovess. Many of Charles Dickens' famous characters have been traced by one of his biographers to their originals. Paul Dombey was Dickens' nephew, Harry Barnett, a pathetic little crip-ple, who died in his tenth year. Dora Copperfield is supposed to have been a Miss Beadwell, with whom Dickens was in love at the early age of eigh-teen. The belief that he drew the character of Micawber from his father is not upheld by the biografather is not upheld by the biogra-pher, who has discovered in one Richard Chicken of York, a more probable model. This Chicken had a subordinate place in the office of an engineer wherein Alfred Dickens, the novelist's brother, was employed for several years. William Shaw, who who unconsciously sat for the por-trait of the abominable Squeers, is said to have been in actual life, "a man of kind and humane disposiman of kind and humane disposi-tion;" after his death his neighbors trammels that impede thy progress, and cling to hope. The world frowned darkly upon all who have ever yet won fame's wreath, but on they toiled. Flace high thy standard, and with a firm tread and fearless eye press steadily onward. Fresevere, and thou wilt surely reach it. Are there those body who have watched unrewarded through of a brighter morrow, when the weary of a brighter morrow, when the weary mander, at the Royal Exchange.

A Delicate Operation

The plucking of ostrich feathers is a very delicate task. At the proper season a man carefully examines the whose feathers are ripening, groups them into dozens, and pens them in, so that they cannot run about and injure their beautiful plumage. When the plucking time comes, the bird is enticed into a narrow, dark passageway. The entrances are then closed and the bird thus imprisoned. A cloth bag is thrown over the crea ture's head. Then the plucking be-gins. Three men, perched upon plat-forms without the pen, reach over the board inclosure and with curious scissor-like appliances pluck off the feathers. Whatever wounds a bird may receive are immediately dressed. The tail feathers are pulled and not cut, simply because they reproduce better than other feathers of the og-trich. While the plucking is in probetter than other featners of the og-trich. While the plucking is in pro-gress the ostrich keeps up a dismal roaring. Were it not for the staunch construction of the pen the creature would kick the boards into splinters.

Treasure in Russian Churches

Treasure in Russian Churches. The treasures of the various Rus-sian churches are of fabulous value. St. Isaac's Cathedral in St. Peters-burg is said to have cost £10,000,-000. Its copper roof is overlaid with pure gold. In the Cathedral of Ka-zan the name of the Almighty blazes in diamonds from a cloud of beaten gold, under which are solid silver doors twenty feet high. There are 1,400 churches in Moscow, many of 1,400 churches in Moscow, many of From the Cathedral of the Assump-tion Napoleon took from the church five tons of silver and 500 weight of gold, but its most precious treasures were concealed. To celebrate the de-liverance of Moscow from the French the Cathedral of the Holy Saviour was built at a cost of £10,-000,000; its five cupolas are covered with pure gold one-eighth of an inch in the same of the same set of a same same set of the same in thickness.-London Tit-Bits.

Long Views. Persons who wish to put off the evil day of spectacles should accustom themselves to long views. The eye is relieved, and sees better, if, after reading a while, we direct the sight to some far distant object, even for a minute. Great travelers and hunters are seldom near sighted. hunters are seldom near sighted. Sallors discern objects at a great distance with considerable distinct-ness when a common eye sees noth-ing at all. One is reported to have such acute sight that he could tell when he was going to see an object. On one occasion when the ship was in a sinking condition, and all were exceedingly anxious for a sight of land, he reported from the lookout that he could not exactly see the shore, but could pretty nearly do so. shore, but could pretty nearly do so.

A Fight Among the Kurds

A Fight Among the Kurds. Col. P. H. H. Massy tells of this battle which he witnessed in the course of his explorations in Asiatic Turkey. The cause of the fight was an attempted theft of sheep. He says: "Some flocks were being driv-en off across the Sipkanli Kurds' border when the usual alarm signals, shots fired and smoke fires kindled at all the villages around, brought clouds of horsemen galloping wildclouds of horsemen galloping ly across in that direction. This did not look very reassuring in the mid-dle of so wild a country, where a hu-man life is never worth that of a good sheep, but we soon perceived, by the yelling Kurds with grinning faces who dashed past us, that to us no harm was intended. "We reached the village not far from which the battle was raging to find the flat roofs occupied by all the women. Quite regardless of stray bullets they followed the fluctuating ly across in that direction. This did women. Quite regardness of stray bullets they followed the fluctuating fortunes of their side amid the din of their own shrill tongues, which al-most drowned the thundering re-ports of the Kurdish powder, any-there but poleclear or smollower thing but noiseless or smokeless

"It was soon over. The flocks were riumphantly brought back, together with the bodies of a few dead Kurds and some others wounded. We passed on amid the walling of the women just widowed in a fight for a few sheep."

Our Example to Japan In a recent lecture an Englishwo-

man who had lived many years in Japan dwelt upon the admirable manners of the inhabitants of that land, but said that she must admit that in one place their behavior was that in one place the behavior was not above censure; on the railroad trains she had been surprised and disappointed to see them pushing and crowding in a manner quite for-eign to their habitual gentleness and grace

"How do you account for such a thing?" demanded a voice in the audience

"It can be explained," replied the lecturer, simply, "only in this way; In Japan the proper conduct for every occasion in life has been preevery occasion in the first been pre-scribed from antiquity. Conse-quently, from cbildhood every one knows just what he ought to do and does it gracefully. But when the railroad was introduced there was, of course, no precedent for behavior on trains; so the Japanese adopted the American manners."—Exchange.

Poisons in Daily Drink

Dr. W. Scott Tebb, public analyst to the Borough of Southwark, Lon-don, has been making an inquiry on behalf of the Borough Council into the constituents of tea, to ascertain what injurious ingredients are present, and in his report he contrasts the tea drinking records of Great Britain and the countries, says Reynolds's Newspaper. The only countries which ap-proach or exceed Great Britain as tea duplement on the solution.

ta drinkers are her colonies. West-ern Australia is easily first with 10.07 and all the other divisions of Australia exceed Great Britain.

"We drink far too much tea," con cludes Dr. Tebb. He calculates that each person in Great Britain, on an average, takes a daily dose of 3.6 grains of alkaloid and 9.7 grains of tannin. This means that the average tea drinker takes half as much alkaloid and nearly as much tanih as the maximum allowed by the British pharmacopocia for an occasional dose And of course many thousands of people drink a great deal more than the average dose.

Amusements of the Blind.

With closed eyes, two young men in the blind asylum were playing chess. The board they played on had the black squares raised and the white ones sunken, while the black pieces were rough and the white ones smooth ones smooth.

ones smooth. "Give us this handlcap on account of our blindness," said one of the young men, "and we will play as quick and accurate a game of chess as anybody. Give us checkers and a becker checker board constructed on the same plan, and there, too, our playing will equal yours. "I would rather be blind than deaf," he went on. "Blindness doesn't rob you of much. The blind

Like Cures Like.

Like Onres Like. Drunkenness is punished by im-prisonment in Norway. As soon as he is incarcerated the delinquent has no other food than a log of wine morning and evening. The bread is served in a wooden bowl full of wine, in which it has been soaked for an hour previous. The first day the drunkard swallows his allow-ance willingly enough. The second day it seems less pleasing. At the day it seems less pleasing. At the end of eight days of this regimen prisoners have been known to ab-stain altogether from the food thus stain altogener from the food thus pitilessly presented. This course of treatment finished, the drunkard, except in rare instances, is radically cured. Many renounce altogether the use of wine, the very smell of which creates a feeling of extreme disgust. What the Lacedaemonians did for meanlity by chowing to the disgust. What the Lacedaemonians did for morality by showing to the young of the aristocracy their drunken slaves, the Norwegtans do directed for the drunkards them-selves. It is the treatment by sati-ety and disgust. If "like cures like" then there is sound philosophy in this homoeopathic treatment of inebriety.

Reaping His Reward.

This happened in a first class car-riage of an English train, smoking being prohibited. The American in the corner Insisted on lighting his cigar. The indignant Britisher in cigar. The indignant Britisher in the other corner protested, and pro-tested in valn. At the next station he halled the guard, with hostile in-tent; but the placid American was too quick for him. "Guard," he drawled, "I think you'll find that this gentleman is traveling with a third-class ticket on him." Investi-gation proved this to be right, and the indignant Britisher was ejected. the indignant Britisher was ejected. A spectator of the little scene asked the triumphant American how he knew about the that ticket. "Well," explained the imperturbable strang-er, "it was sticking out of his pocket and I saw it was the same color as mine.

Lightning's Strange Freak.

Lightning's Strange Freak. "Lightning, when in the mood, has an ugly habit of drilling," writes an English observer. "It will drill the hardest rock—rock which would. turn cold steel; and not only drill but vitrify it. They have found in Cumberland channels from thirty feet deep and from two to four inches in circumference. The inte-rior was hard and glazed where the solid substance had been melted by the stabbing flashes. Artificial ex-periment has shown that a power-ful shock from a battery will vitrify finely powdered glass, but not feld-spar or quartz. The lightning, how-ever, does it in the manner described —not in one place, but in many, menued it. durided into average ---not in one place, but in many, ground it divided into several branches, each strong enough to penetrate and liquefy the solid rock."

A Strange Coincidence.

Col. L. M. Buchanan writes that his youngest son served in the South African campaign as a trooper in the Rhodesian horse. August 21, 1900, the young man was reported as se-verely wounded at Hamman's Kraal verely wounded at Hamman's Kraal and his wound was described by the surgeon in attendance as a "com-minuted fracture of the left humer-us," out of which twenty-one splin-ters were subsequently discharged or extracted. On the same day in his bedroom in Ireland the mirror fell to the floor and was smashed into many pleces, receiving what the colonel thinks might be called a comminuted fracture." The mirror had been in its usual place on the dressing table its usual place on the dressing table and the room was vacant at the time.

Micro-Organism in Butter.

Micro-Organism in Butter. Sometimes butter has a fishy taste, and this led the Department of Agriculture in Victoria, Australia, to make an investigation, which proves that the fishy taste in butter is in no way connected with fish. One or more of four specified micro-organ-isms may be concerned in the devel-opment of fishiness. Rusty cans or any so-called tin utenislis from which the thin coating of tin is worn away have a very deleterious effect on the butter made from milk which the butter made from milk which the butter made from milk which the cans have contained. The fron or steel which becomes exposed by the abrasion of the tin coating, although it may be polished bright and kept clean, has a bad effect on milk and
