Man of Many Promises. How He Happened to Burn It.

Now He Happened to Burn It. Many interesting neighbors drop in and chat with Mark Twain when he is at "Quarry Farm," his summer home near Elmira. A small boy turn-ed up not long ago with his hand wrapped in a bandage. Mr. Clemens expressed concern and asked the cause.

TOT That in address-ing Mrs. Pink-ham you are con-fiding your private ills to a woman-a woman whose experi-ence with women's dis-eases covers a great many vers.

ence with women's dis eases overs a great many years. Mrs. Finkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years underherdirection, and since her de-ecase.ahe has been advising sick wo-men free of charge. Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assist-ance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing them-selves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a wo-perience is great. perience is great. Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Pereince is great.
Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.
Women suffering from any form of female weaknessare invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the yast volume of experience which she has to draw from. It is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that vill her turn except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.
If year are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn. Mass., for special advice.
Won amend the well say, without trying it, "' to not believe it will help me."

Man of Many Promises. Abdul Hamid, the Sultan of Turkey, always expresses the greatest aston-ishment when told that reforms have not been carried out, and declares that it is the fault of his ministers and other subordinates who have neglect-ed to obey his orders. He then prom-ises that there will be no further de-lay, and expresses profound sorrow and mortification that anyone should suspect him of insincerity. Nothing happens. The ambassadors go again and again to the sublime porte and are Chinese Humility.

Chinese Humility. A Chinaman wearing his finest gown of silk, called at a house where he happened to disturb a rat, which was regaling itself out of a jar of oil standing on a beam over the door. In its sudden flight the rat upset the oil over the luckless visitor, ruining his fine raiment. While the man was still pale with rage his host appeared and after customary greetings the visito accounted for his appearance in this wise: "As I was entering your hon-orable dwelling. I trightened your hon-orable rat; while it was trying to es-cape it upset your honorable jar of oil over my poor and insignificant cloth-ing. Sitting Declared by Dr. Noble Smith to Be One of Our Greatest Faults.

One of Our Greatest Faults. Information calculated to prolong life, even if it does not make it more tolerable, is being received daily. Dr. Noble Smith, a surgeon of repute, de-clares, rather tardily, perlaps, that sitting on chairs "is the cause of near-ly all our evils in regard to the spine," and Dr. Gowers, one of the greatest authorities on diseases of the nervous system, asserts that "if one habitually sits on a hard chair the pressure of the edge is likely to give rise to sciatica."

sciatica." If these two authorities are correct If these two authorities are correct there seems to be no good reason why the chait habit should not be aban-doned, allough there is no denying that it has become a fixed habit. Al-ready considerable has been done to discourage it. Look at the fashionably furnished parlor, for instance. It con-tains chairs, to be sure; but nobody, at least no man of average proportions, has ever contracted spinal trouble or selatics by disposing himself in the has ever contracted spinal trouble or selatica by disposing himself in the spindle-legged, hand-painted damask-covered things. If he attempts to use them as chairs, instead of regarding them admiringly as bric-c-brac, his wife shoos him out of the room; and them admiringly as bines-brac, his wife shoos him out of the room; and if she doesn't shoo him out of the room they let him down to the floor with a crash that scares him out of three years' natural growth. And, inasmuch as this same man, left to his own devices, is accustomed to sit on his back in a padded cheir, it is pos-sible that this warning is not meant

More Steam Engines Used Now Than Ever Belore. The use of the steam engine is in-creasing faster to-day than ever before. Many mamoth industrial plants are exclusively engaged in building steam bollers and engines, and it is the proud boast of one of these, the Atlas Engine Works, of Indianapolis, that it aver-ages a complete boller and engine outilit of fity horse-power every thirty min-utes of the working day. When the visitor to their plant has gone through two or three of their great warehouses, and emerges upon a boller yard of twenty acres, he won-ders where upon earth use can be found for all the bollers and engines. But, if he will watch the loading process, he will see some ten or twelve trainloads per day go out, labeled for destinations all over the world, and will gain some notion of the magnitude of the world's work. Then, when he is told that this one concern, leviathan of the trade though it is, does not produce ten per cent. of the world's output of steam bollers and engines, he will be-gin to realize how vast is the produc-tion and consumption of steam power throughout the world. The product of this one plant, which builds every type and size of horizontal steam engine, affords an interesting study of mechanical evolution. The balanced silde-valve, the shaft gov-ernor, the rotating, or Corliss valves, and direct connected shaft's are only the more visible improvements. The builtup connecting rod, the removable bearings, improve pliston construction, stronger and lighter designs of bed, more intelligent designs of all recip-roenting parts, better selection of ma-terials and more accurate workman-ship throughout are some of the things that differentiate the engine of to-day the not been so numerous, but they have been quite as marked. In the out-prut of this one concert con be found every size and type of boller, from the little horizontal tubular of fifteen horse-power, to the new Atlas water, superheast its own steam and zives the holest efficiency yet accouplished in boller sonstruct
