Crude Thoughts As They Fall From the Editorial Pen.—Pleasant Evening Reveries.

WE CAN MAKE HOME HAPPY.

Though we may not change the cottage
For a mansion tall and grand,
Or exchange a little grass plot
For a boundless stretch of land—
Yet there's something brighter, nearer,
Than the wealth we'd thus command.

Though we have no means to purchase
Costly pictures, rich and rare—
Though we have no silken hangings
For the walls so cold and bare—
We can hang them o'er with garlands,
For flowers bloom everywhere.

We can always make home cheerful,
If the right course we begin;
We can make its inmates happy,
And their truest blessings win;
It will make the small room brighter
If we let the sunshine in.

When we gather round the fireside
When the evening hours are long,
We can blend our hearts and voices
In a happy social song;
We can guide some erring brother,
Lead him from the path of wrong.

We may fill our home with music,
And with sunshine brimming o'er,
If against all dark intruders
We would firmly shut the door—
Yet, should evil's shadow enter,
We must love each other more.

There are treasures for the lowly
Which the grandest fail to find;
There is a chain of sweet affection
Binding friends of kindred mind—
We may reap the choicest blessings
From the poorest lot assigned.

The enemy is more easily repulsed if we never suffer him to get within us, but upon the very first approach, draw up our forces and fight him without the gate.

A man who lives right and is rich has more power in his silence than another has by his words. Character is like bells which ring out sweet music, and which, when touched, accidentally even, resounds with sweet music.

All parents should feel to the greatest extent the responsibility of training their little ones; they should know that their characters must be shaped, their lives must go on; only one foundation can be laid, only one structure built; but the building must go up, and parents are greatly responsible for its merit.

WORK MAKES MEN.

Work makes men. Luck usually fails. Pluck nearly always wins. To succeed in anything one must overcome obstacles. Force and fibre are built by hardships. Grit is as necessary in the making of a man as gumption. Hardships are not always handicaps. Often they are helps. You will understand this better in twenty years. Meanwhile permit one who has lived that twenty years and more, to advise you in this. Hang onto your job until you are sure of a better one. Dependable boys are in demand. And no boy can be depended upon who does not finish the task he sets his hand to do. However disagreeable our work, do it thoroughly. Do it better than the average boy will do it. In that way you will come to be known as a dependable boy. And mind you this: Men everywhere are looking for capable, honest, gritty, dependable boys. The sooner you let people know that you are that kind of a boy, the sooner you will get a better job. And don't be in a hurry to give up the work you already have. Be sure something better is offered. Wait awhile. Do your work well. Promotion will come. And do not envy the boy who has an easy time. You would much better pity him. He has a good time now, but some day he must "make good." With his flabby muscles, his easy habits and his many wants he stands a far poorer chance than you. Remember above all, young fellow, you are making a man of yourself, and the kind of a man you are going to be depends largely on yourself.

DEVIL'S ISLAND TORTURE

is no worse than the terrible case of Piles that afflicted me 10 years. Then I was advised to apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and less than a box permanently cured me, writes L. S. Napier, of Rugles, Ky. Heals all wounds, Burns and Sores like magic. 25c at E. H. Miller's, druggist. 5-1

IS WITTE A FAILURE?

"Witte: A Great Man Facing Failure," by Percival Gibbon, in McClure's for April, is a paper for every person who pretends to keep pace with the progress of events. Mr. Gibbon throws new light on this great, melancholy struggler. Witte is a failure, he says, and he knows Witte. He has seen a good deal of him during these months of revolution and intrigue since he returned from the greatest diplomatic victory of modern times, at Portsmouth. Gibbon's assertion is, darning, and although you may be inclined to doubt his justice, you are likely to surrender before you have finished, for he is writing from the inside, and these facts, which have not been before published are convincing. He takes you into Witte's quarters in the Winter Palace; you see him before the deputation of working men; you understand his dangerous footing on the narrow ledge between the people and the Beurocrats; you grasp the handicap of ill-health, at this time when most of all he needs his physical resources; you end by agreeing that the chances of his success are indeed small. "Big and gross and bony," says Gibbon, "he is a strong man and a great one; and here he is—at his finish." The personal description of Count Witte is quite the most intimate and striking that has ever been published. One would think that everything of interest had been written about this strange man's life, but even in sketching his career Mr. Gibbon has something new to say. It has long been the popular impression that this the greatest of Russians is of lowly origin. This article pricks that bubble, it gives Witte's genealogy connected with several of the greatest houses of Russia. Altogether this is a great and a timely article. It has something new to say, and it says it plainly.

A CHANCE FOR SATISFACTION.

If you ever bought a box of Witch Hazel Salve that failed to give satisfaction the chances are it did not have the name "E. C. DeWitt & Co." printed on the wrapper and pressed in the box. The original DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve never fails to give satisfaction for burns, sores, boils, tetter, cracked hands, etc. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles it affords almost immediate relief. It stops the pain. Sold by E. H. Miller. 5-1

Ingersoll's Tribute to Burns.
(Written in His Cottage at Ayr.)
Th' Scotland boasts a thousand names
Of patriot, king and peer,
The noblest, grandest of them all
Was loved and cradled here;
Here lived the gentle, peasant prince,
The loving cotter's king,
Compared with whom the grandest lord
Is but a titled thing.

'Tis but a cot roofed in with straw,
A hovel made of clay;
One door shuts out the snow and storm,
One window greets the day,
And yet I stand within this room
And hold all thrones in scorn,
For here beneath this lowly thatch
Love's sweetest bard was born.

Within this hallowed hut I feel
Like one who clasps a shrine,
When the glad lips at last have touched
The something deemed divine,
And here the world thro' all the years,
As long as day returns,
The tribute of its love and tears
Will pay to Robert Burns.
—Robert Ingersoll.

THE IDEAL FOLDING LUNCH BOX

represents the end of possibility in a Lunch Box, for the reason that it possesses every desirable feature that a Lunch Box can possess, and has more than one valuable advantage that no other lunch box ever had.

It is strong and durable, and will give years of continued service. It is convenient to carry both in and out of use. It is attractive in appearance, and because of its being used for more purposes than one, is a great relief to sensitive people who dislike the idea of being seen with a dinner basket.

The Ideal Lunch Box is so low in price anyone can afford to buy it. Can be folded up in a moment to fit pocket, with no more inconvenience than an ordinary pocketbook.

A CONUNDRUM.

Bell—Why do the hands of a clock remind you of a pouting husband and wife?
Neil—Give it up.
Bell—Why, because they pass each other a dozen times a day without speaking.

Legal Advice.

"It's this way," explained the client. "The fence runs between Brown's place and mine. He claims that I encroach on his land, and I insist that he is trespassing on mine. Now, what would you do if you were in my place?"
"If I were in your place," replied the lawyer, "I'd go over and give Brown a cigar, have a drink with him, and settle the controversy in ten minutes. But as things stand, I advise you to sue him by all means. Let no arrogant, domineering, insolent pirate like Brown trample on your sacred rights! Assert your manhood and courage. I need the money!"—Modern Society.

Her Only Wish.

"You told me that when we were married you would see that my every wish was gratified," remarked the bride of a few weeks.
"Well," replied her husband, rather curtly.
"Well, I wish I was single again."—Life.

Professional Amenities.

A barrister once pleaded with great ability the cause of his client for nearly an hour. When he had finished, his learned friend on the other side, with a supercilious sneer, remarked that he did not understand a word the other had said.
"I believe it, for I was expounding law!" said the first speaker.—Tit-Bits.

What Did He Expect?

Angelina—What did you tell papa about your prospects?
Edwin—I said I had expectations from my uncle.
Angelina—Why, Edwin, you told me you had no relatives at all.
Edwin—Oh, yes; but I'm going to pawn my watch this evening.—Punch.

Reason for it.

A vinegar-faced old woman, traveling on top of an L. C. C. car, remonstrated vainly with the big Irishman who was distributing his tobacco smoke among the outside passengers. He listened, without making retort, till the woman, losing her patience, exclaimed: "You old brute, if you were my husband I'd give you poison!"
Giving a complacent puff to his pipe, Pat looked at her steadily, and replied: "Begorra, if I was your husband I'd take it!"—Pick-Me-Up.

He Knew the Voice.

"Now," said the Sunday school teacher, in her most winning tones, "which little boy can tell us about the still small voice that is within us?"
"Please'm," said the freckled boy at the end of the seat, "my uncle has one."
"Has he?"
"Yes'm. He's a ventriloquist."—Baltimore American.

Cross-Questioned.

"Are you a married man?" asked the absent-minded lawyer, who was putting a witness through a searching cross-examination.
"No, sir," replied the witness. "I am a bachelor."
"Very well, sir," continued the lawyer. "Now tell me how long you have been a bachelor, and what the circumstances were that induced you to become one."

Making it Convenient.

The Creditor—When are you going to pay me? I can't get to your place every day, trying to make you settle up. I've got other things to do."
The Debtor—Are you at liberty on Saturday afternoons? Come every Saturday.—Answer.

Modern Motherhood.

Cynic (savagely)—They say the fashionable mother of today recognizes her baby only by looking at the nurse.
Fashionable Mother (unmoved)—How extraordinarily clever when one changes nurses so often! I always tell ours by the mail cart.—Judy.

Considerate Daughter.

A certain young man told his best girl the other night that if she didn't marry him he'd get a rope and hang himself right in front of her house.
"Oh! please don't do it, Harry," she said. "You know father has always said he doesn't want you hanging round here."—Illustrated Bits.

Not Anxious to Please.

Neptune—I say, Boreas, if you keep on blowing like that you'll get yourself disliked.
Boreas—What do I care! It isn't my business to furnish popular air.—Modern Society.

Why Buy McClure's?

McClure's Magazine is bought and read in homes not because it is a magazine, but because it is the magazine. Why?

FIRST—THE PRICE. It costs but one dollar a year, or less than ten cents a number, for over thirteen hundred two-column pages of reading matter. This amounts in actual bulk to twenty or twenty-five books costing anywhere from a dollar to two dollars a volume.

SECOND—QUALITY. The reading matter is written by America's leading writers—the best short story writers, the best writers on timely articles, the best writers of important serials, such as Schurz's Reminiscences of Baker's Railroad articles.

THIRD—TIMELINESS. The reading matter in McClure's is not only good; it is not only entertaining, amusing, instructive and inspiring—it is also about the subjects in which you and all Americans are most interested at the time. No subjects in the next twelve months are going to be so important as the question of railroad rates and rebates and the question of life insurance. Both of these questions will be discussed by authorities in an impartial, careful, interesting way.

FOURTH—ITS CHARACTER. McClure's Magazine is not edited for children, but at the same time, there is never a line in it that any young girl might not read. Its advertising pages are as clean as its editorial pages.
