REFORM IDOLS SMASHED

Sensational Outcome of the Breach Between Weaver and Wanamaker Interests.

"NEW MACHINE" THE WORST

Charges of Bribery and Other Damaging Revelations Play Havoc in the Quaker City.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Sept. 25. Mayor Weaver's break with the Wanamaker-Van Valkenburg-Gordon political combination will have far-reaching influence upon both local and state politics.

It was the power of the city administration of Philadelphia which gave the Wanamakers, Van Valkenburgs and the Gordons a political following in the last campaign. With the Mack combine of ward leaders working in harmony, they had a political machine which drew thousands of votes from the Republican state and local tickets in November last.

Without this antagonistic influence there is no doubt that Mr. Plummer would have been elected state treasurer, and the Republican ticket in Philadelphia would have been successful.

Working with the Wanamaker newspaper combination against the Republican ticket last fall were the politicians who trained with the city administration, the ward leaders seeking to "line up with the powers that be," and even the denizens of the tenements, always anxious to stand in with the police, shouted loudly for "reform" throughout that campaign.

The City Party was successful, and enough votes were thrown to Berry, the Democratic-Lincolnite nominee for state treasurer, to elect him also.

Then followed a series of plotting and scheming by the ambitious "reformers" eager to take advantage of the situation for their own selfish interests. There were nearly as many candidates for office as there were committeemen in every ward of Philadelphia. Throughout the state men who were active in the counties in the Lincoln Party aggregation began to hunt for the leaves and fishes.

The Wanamaker lieutenants in the insurgent movement against the late Senator Quay were among the most conspicuous of those who immediately demanded recognition.

Promises made to Mayor Weaver and his friends were forgotten, and the old Wanamaker outfit proceeded to set up in business upon its own account.

Combine of Newspapers and Millions. It was figured out that with the Wanamaker newspapers and the Emery millions, the logical thing to do was to name Emery for governor. To do this the Wanamaker political managers had to first bowl out Mayor Weaver as a gubernatorial possibility. They proceeded to set up the Lincoln Party state convention for Emery, and succeeded in landing him upon the ticket for governor. They had a Wanamaker supporter in the old senatorial fight for a place upon the proposed fusion ticket, E. A. Coray, of Luzerne, but they were unable to carry out their program.

While the Democratic leaders assented to the deal, the delegates to the Democratic state convention broke the slate and put John J. Green, a Bryanite Democrat of this city, on the ticket for secretary of internal affairs. This resulted in the fusion ticket having three Bryanite Democrats running on it with Emery for governor.

Mayor Weaver's friends branded the Van Valkenburg-Gordon combine as a band of political traitors, after the Emery game was pulled off. The breach between the mayor and the Wanamaker interests widened day by day, until D. Clarence Gibboney was trotted out by the Wanamakerites as a candidate for the City Party nomination for district attorney against Mayor Weaver's personal friend, Frederick J. Shoyer, who had resigned the $10,000 a year office of director of supplies under the Weaver administration, to make a canvass for the district attorneyship.

Soon the lines were sharply drawn between the Gibboney men and the Shoyerites.

What Weaver Discovered. All of the Wanamaker newspapers turned in for Gibboney, and their news columns and editorial pages were filled with eulogistic matter designed to promote the Gibboney candidacy. The same newspapers were employed to attack or belittle the mayor and Shoyer. These were the same journals which a few months before had been exploiting Mayor Weaver's administration and praising the mayor and his work without stint.

The mayor soon found that a number of the most influential men in his cabinet were setting up their own political fences regardless of his wishes or his personal interests. Some of them were accused of using the patronage and power of his administration secretly to build up a Van Valkenburg political machine to promote the cause of Gibboney and destroy the chances of Shoyer getting the nomination for district attorney. These officials of the Weaver administration, like certain leaders of the City Party, seem to have concluded that the support of the Wanamaker newspapers, or at least their friendship, was more desirable for them to have than the good will of the mayor.

There was a desperate battle between the Gibboney men, backed by the Wanamaker newspapers, the Van Valkenburg lieutenants in the City Party, the Gordonites and what is left of the old Mack combine and the Shoyer campaigners, many of them young members of the bar or churchmen with whom Mr. Shoyer has been associated for years in church work, and the friends of Mayor Weaver, both in and out of his administration.

Upon the face of the returns of the City Party primaries, Shoyer had a majority of nearly 100 delegates. The Van Valkenburg men had the machinery of the City Party city committee. They named the chairman of the convention, and got control of the committee on contested delegates.

So confident was he of winning that Shoyer was present in the convention hall with his wife prepared to accept the congratulations of his friends when he would be nominated.

The Mayor Charges Bribery. The Gibboney men were sparring for time.

They rushed through a resolution for the convention to take a recess, and when the convention reassembled, after much disorder, Mr. Gibboney was declared the nominee by a majority of 29 votes in a total poll of 1072. A change of 15 votes upon this return would have made Shoyer the nominee.

The Shoyer men at once insisted that they had been robbed of victory. Mayor Weaver was one of the most pronounced in denouncing the men responsible, and repudiating the tactics by which his friend Shoyer was defeated.

In a public statement he said: "The methods of that convention were worse than any convention of the old corrupt gang. I think a machine which is protected by newspapers is far more dangerous than the most corrupt organization with newspapers against it."

"I want to say most emphatically that I am as much opposed to a corrupt machine in its iniquity as I am to one that has grown gray with age. It seems that notwithstanding the fight I made for 18 months against a machine that a more powerful one had arisen, Phoenix-like, from its ashes."

"I believe the recess of the City Party convention was forced and that during that recess the work of changing delegates was done by means of bribery. Before that time Mr. Shoyer had a majority of the delegates, and he would have received that nomination without question had the convention been continued in session."

"Months ago I pointed out the danger that might follow when if one political machine were destroyed a new and more powerful one might grow up."

"Whether this has come to pass I cannot say. I sometimes wonder whether there is more danger in being surrounded by corrupt advisers than by ambitious ones."

When Mayor Weaver was challenged to prove his charges that bribery was employed to influence the nomination of the convention for Gibboney he promptly accepted the challenge and immediately submitted the affidavits of a number of delegates who admitted they had been approached and he personally appeared before an investigation committee to press his case.

The scandal which followed was a great disappointment to sincere reformers who were not familiar with the character of some of the men who have taken hold of the City Party machinery in some of the wards of the city.

Emery Boomers Chagrined. Mayor Weaver followed up his interview by demanding the resignations of members of his cabinet, with an announcement that hereafter he proposes to have none but those who shall be directly interested in the success of his administration in his cabinet.

There is no doubt that the upheaval has had a serious effect upon the plans of the managers of the Emery movement and the campaign against the local Republican ticket.

The Lincolnite forces and the City Party leaders are demoralized.

Without the active support of the city administration, the rank and file of their organizations will disintegrate.

There are nearly 10,000 city employees, and the employees of city contractors and others identified with the administration will foot up 10,000 more.

With the mayor and his cabinet working in harmony with the Lincoln Party aggregation last fall fully 15,000 of these men voted for the Lincoln Party ticket and they influenced many thousands more to vote the same way.

Not only has the break between the mayor and the Wanamaker newspapers and allied political interests discouraged the Lincoln Party and City Party leaders, but thousands of voters not identified with any political organization have discovered the hypocrisy and sham of the whole Emery movement in this city and will be found supporting the full Republican ticket in November.

A Combine Without a Following. Not a few of the politicians in the interior of the state were induced to co-operate with the Lincoln party in the belief that the Van Valkenburg combination in Philadelphia was going to build up a political organization with the patronage of the Weaver administration.

STUART STANDS FIRM

Republican Nominee for the People As Against the Corporations.

FOR A TWO-CENT RATE OF FARE

He Leaves No Room to Doubt His Position in His Many Speeches On His Tour of the Counties.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Sept. 25. Reports received here from every county in the state indicate a growing sentiment in favor of the entire Republican ticket.

Visitors here during the last few days from the sections visited by Edwin S. Stuart and his colleagues on the Republican ticket in their tour of the state report that Mr. Stuart has been making a very favorable impression with the voters. He is standing squarely upon the party platform, and his words and manner clearly show that he is honest in his pledges to give the people a popular administration, to insist that the corporations shall obey the law, and that they shall not encroach upon the rights of individuals or discriminate against any one, and that they shall be obliged to give a fair return to the state and the people for the franchises which they enjoy.

Mr. Stuart points to his record made as mayor of Philadelphia in the treatment of corporations, where he broke all records by insisting that the street railways should give the city value for the privileges which they enjoy. His stand by the taxpayers in that one fight alone meant the payment of millions by the street railways for the paving of streets, which they would have kept in their treasuries or distributed among their stockholders.

Mr. Stuart is committed to the enactment of legislation making two cents a mile a maximum rate of fare on railroads, and for the creation of a commission which shall have supervision over the railroads of the state.

For a Square Deal.

In a recent speech Mr. Stuart said: "Much has been said upon the question of corporations, and I desire to say that I have not gone through the state tearing down, upsetting and destroying corporations, because my principle and my ideas are that they should be regulated according to law. Common carriers, railroad companies, all who may receive special privileges must be compelled to exercise those privileges fairly and squarely upon a square deal to every man in every part of the state. There should not be one rate for one man and another rate for somebody else, but they must all be treated as equal. As to the Republican platform, I stand absolutely and unreservedly upon it and will do everything in my power, and I know that in saying that I also speak for my colleagues, to bring about such legislation that will correct according to law any evils we may have, and correct them solely for the benefit and in the best interests of the people of this state. (Applause.)"

Will Guard the People's Interests. "I have had in years gone by, if you will pardon the personal allusion, some experience in treating with a legislation wanted by corporations. That record has been made, and it is a part of the history of my native city, and can be inquired into by any man or set of men who desire to do so, and you will find that in my public record in dealing with corporations my first and only desire and my ultimate purpose has always been to see that the interests of the people I represented, and whom I was elected to represent, were properly, legally and honestly taken care of and protected. Without attempting to destroy or to tear down, I have promised that if elected governor of Pennsylvania the interests of the people will be safeguarded and taken care of in every legal and proper way that lies in my power."

Chairman Andrews, of the Republican state committee, has planned to have the gubernatorial candidate and his colleagues speak today, Tuesday, at Lewisburg in the evening; tomorrow, Wednesday, they will be in Smethport in the afternoon, and in Bradford in the evening; on Friday they will visit Tionesta, Forest county, in the afternoon and Warren Jn in the evening. Saturday, September 29, will be spent in Titusville in the afternoon, and Erie in the evening.

What Emery Must Explain. Candidate Emery, of the Lincolnite Democratic combination, has up to date failed to answer to the charges made against him by Homer L. Castle, Prohibition nominee for governor, or Dr. Silas S. Swallow.

Mr. Emery has not explained how his Pure Oil company works in harmony with the Standard Oil company in fixing prices.

Mr. Emery has not told how Mack, Durham, McNichol and other politicians got stock in his company, nor has he explained what their influence has done to advance the company's interest.

Mr. Emery has not denied his own statements made before the interstate commerce commission that his company got rebates on freight rates, just as he charges the Standard Oil with getting.

Mr. Emery has not answered Robert S. Murphy, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor, who wants him to explain how he got so immensely wealthy "fighting" the Standard Oil company.

These and other matters Mr. Emery has yet to explain to the voters in his tour of the state.

Crude Thoughts As They Fall From the Editorial Pen—Pleasant Evening Reveries.

Home Circle Department.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers (As They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide).

It is just as possible to keep a calm house as a clean one, a cheerful house as a warm one, if the heads set themselves to do so. Where is the difficulty of consulting each other's weaknesses as well as each other's wants; each other's tempers as well as each other's health; each other's comfort as well as each other's character; "Peace rules the day, where reason rules the mind." It is by leaving the peace at home to chance, instead of pursuing it by system that so many houses are unhappy. It deserves notice, also, that almost anyone can be courteous and forbearing and patient in a neighbor's house. If anything goes wrong or is out of tune, or disagreeable there, it is made the best of, not the worst; even efforts are made to excuse it, and to show that it is not felt; or, if felt, it is attributed to accident, not design; and this is not only easy, but natural, in the house of a friend. I will not, therefore, believe what is so natural in the house of another, is impossible at home, but maintain, without fear, that all the courtesies of life may be upheld in domestic society, a husband as willing to be pleased at home, and as anxious to please as in a neighbor's house, and a wife as intent on making things comfortable every day in her family, as on set days to her guests, could not fail to make home happy. Let us not invade the point of these remarks by recurring to the maxim about allowing for temper. It is worse than folly to refer to our temper, unless we could prove that we ever gained any good by giving way to it. Fits of ill humor punish us quite as much, if not more, than those they are vented upon; and it actually requires more effort and inflicts more pain to give them up than would be requisite to avoid them.

Then, "Since trifles make the sum of human things, And half our misery from our foibles spring; Since life's best joys consist in peace and ease, And though but few can serve, yet all may please, Oh, let the ungentle spirit learn from hence, A small unkindness is a great offense."

LOVE. When we observe the actions of men and women it sometimes seems as though we were ignorant of the real meaning and value of love. Especially in the treatment of those who offer themselves most fully and freely to us are we often most ungenerous and ungrateful. Is any mother ever repaid for the years of patient devotion she gives to her children? She, of course, gives in the right spirit, looking for no reward, but we should receive in the right spirit by giving generously in return of our time, our thought, our tenderness.

"It's only mother; anything will do for her!" If the words are not often actually expressed, the thought is too often acted upon. And yet if we stop to think, common decency tells us that only the best is good enough for mother—that her devotion, which surpasses all other love, is deserving of the deepest respect and affection, and that to forget her is the blackest and basest crime that man can commit. Mothers are love incarnate, and because love is the highest thing a man may know, and the most precious gift a man or woman may receive, he who disregards or wounds it is the lowest and most despicable of created things.

Have we not all seen young girls wounding the very soul of love by disregarding a mother's counsel and by refusing to share the burden of house-keeping with the tired mother? Have we not known young men who wrung the mother heart by rudeness, or by dissipation, or by neglect?

Every mother should take the time and the money to keep herself and her children neatly and becomingly dressed. It is especially necessary that children should be taught both by precept and example the value of dress. In childhood, habits are formed. The children who are accustomed to seeing their mother with her hair becomingly arranged and in a pretty gown, and who are themselves compelled while young to pay attention to little details of cleanliness and dress, will never grow up into slatternly men and women.
