EMERY AND LABOR

Homer L. Castle Reviews Legislative Record of His Opponent For Governorship.

NOT A FRIEND OF WORKINGMEN

Sensational Disclosures of Opposition to or Neglect to Vote Upon Bills For Wage Earners

Homer L. Castle, who has been making a tour of the coal regions, has been paying particular attention to the labor record of Lewis Emery, Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor, while he served as a member of the general assembly at Harrisburg.

Mr. Castle points out that Mr. Emery occupied most of his time in pressing for legislation which would advance his own interests in the oil fields, he being an independent oil operator, and that labor got very shabby treatment from him when the various bills in the interest of workingmen were before the senate.

Here is what Mr. Castle said: "When a member of the house of representatives in 1879, Lewis Emery, Jr., opposed a bill for hospitals for the injured and indigent miners, he opposed the passage of a law giving to the laboring men their wages in money, he dodged several bills for the comfort of the injured, the inspection of mines and the limiting of the hours of labor."

"He was a member of the senate for the session of 1881. Four bills came before that session that were of particular interest and importance to the laboring people, especially of the anthracite coal region, in their struggle to better their condition and carry on their unequal warfare against capital. First, senate bill No. 168, bill to provide for the health and safety of persons employed in the coal mines. Second, senate bill 416, entitled, 'An act making an appropriation for a hospital for injured persons in the anthracite coal regions. Third, senate bill 58, an act known as 'The mechanics' lien act,' to secure to laborers their wages. Fourth, house bill 187, entitled, 'An act for the better protection of the wages of the servants, laborers and mechanics.'

As a Dodger. "When each of these bills was before the senate, Mr. Emery was very conveniently absent and dodged the vote on them. I argue from this that when his services were needed to assist the laboring men as against the corporations he either voted squarely against the laboring men or else he declined to vote, throwing the benefit of his influence in favor of corporations. Such a man can not be trusted to either enforce existing laws or recommend new laws against any corporation in which he might have an interest.

"I want to take up in detail Mr. Emery's acts as a member of the senate of 1883 and 1885. Senate bill 390. This was an act requiring the corporations operating bituminous mines to make better provisions for the safety and comfort of the miners. With Mr. Emery's usual care for the interest of the corporations he dodged a vote. "The other bill to which I want to call attention was senate bill 328, entitled, 'A supply act for the health and safety of persons employed in coal mines, and providing for the furnishing of props and timbers to the miners in the mines. Mr. Emery was again absent from his place in the senate and failed to record his vote in favor of the interests and life of the workingmen.

And Where Was Working? "In the sessions of 1885 there were two noteworthy bills. "In the borough and township of Plymouth, in Luzerne county, during the year of 1885, there broke out a fever scourge which was very disastrous to that community, and there was a bill proposed known as senate bill 327 and house bill 699, entitled, 'An act making an appropriation for a temporary hospital and other relief for the destitute sick in the borough and township of Plymouth, in the county of Luzerne.

"Again Mr. Emery, who is ever ready to pay money to supply a brewery to a community in which he is interested, was not interested enough in the life and health of these suffering people in Luzerne county to be present and record his vote.

"Senate bill 238 of the same session was a bill to provide for the establishment and the maintenance of a home for disabled and indigent soldiers and sailors of Pennsylvania. The vote on this bill is found on page 1946 of the Legislative Record of the session of 1885, and so little cared this man, who, when the war was on, contented himself to stay at home and make money rather than to go to the rescue of his nation, and so little was he interested in the soldiers and sailors of this state, that he again absented himself from his place in the legislative halls.

"Let us finish Mr. Emery's legislative record by taking up his conduct as a member of the senate of 1887.

Senate bill 384, house bill 66, a supplement to an act relating to the lien of mechanics and others on buildings. This was proposed by the laboring interest for the better protection of their wages. The vote on this bill will be found on page 2123 of the Legislative Record of the session of 1887.

Mr. Emery, as usual, is absent. Senate bill 423, house bill 242, an act making appropriations for the state hospital for injured persons in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania. The vote on this bill is to be found on page 2580 of the Legislative Record of the session of 1887, and still Mr. Emery was absent. Senate bill 481, to provide for the erection of a state hospital for injured persons, at or near Hazleton in the county of Luzerne, to be called the State hospital for injured persons of the middle coal fields. The vote on this bill is to be found on page 2850 of the Legislative Record of the session of 1887, and still Mr. Emery was absent.

IS EMERY MUZZLED?

Or Does He Fear to Answer Charges Made Against Him?

QUEER STAND FOR A CANDIDATE

Democratic Aspirant For the Governorship Who Fails to Take the People Into His Confidence.

Has Lewis Emery, Jr., been muzzled or is he afraid to face the issues that have been forced into the political campaign by his candidacy for governor?

Many think he is obeying the injunction of Charles P. Donnelly, the chairman of the Democratic state committee, who recently rushed across the state from Philadelphia, met Emery in Pittsburg, and directed him to ignore the attacks that are being made upon him from every quarter. Up to date Emery has obediently followed the instructions of his Democratic campaign manager, who is credited with being one of the shrewdest political manipulators in the state, a man who goes into the political game to win, and cares little what is said about him or what people think, so that he gets results.

Emery's Old Friends Amazed. Emery has not been looked upon as that kind of a man.

Many have considered that he was more than ordinarily sensitive and a man who would promptly meet any attack that would be made upon him.

But in this campaign Emery has amazed his old time associates. He has, day after day, at meeting after meeting, ignored the charges that have been made upon the stump affecting his personal character, his business transactions and integrity, and his official record as a former member of the legislature. He has not even denied the allegations made in the leading newspaper published in his own community, the Bradford Star, wherein he has been boldly branded as having been traitorous to Republican nominees, time and time again, and with being the avowed champion of the election of Democratic candidates for office when his wishes in regard to Republican nominations were not respected or when he was personally interested as an anti-Republican candidate himself.

What Emery Should Answer. The Democratic candidate for governor, Mr. Lewis Emery, Jr., has as yet failed to answer more than a score of serious charges.

Mr. Emery has failed to deny the charge that his hostility to the Standard Oil company has always been based upon private business interests.

Mr. Emery has failed to deny the charge that the Pure Oil company, with which he is identified, and through which he and his associates have been placed in a position to grow enormously wealthy, is really as much of a trust, in its way, as is the Standard Oil company, that it puts up its prices when the Standard raises its, and that it only lowers its rate when it has to do so in order to meet the competition with the Standard; that the people derive no benefit from this alleged anti-Standard Oil corporation; that property once owned by Emery was sold to the Standard Oil company at great profit to Emery, and that pledges then made that further hostility to the Standard would, by this bargain, be discontinued were broken, and the Pure Oil company was, for a while, a rear competitor of the Standard until certain politicians, friends of the Standard were taken in by the Emery crowd, and then "harmonious and satisfactory conditions all around were established."

Mr. Emery has not yet answered upon the stump the charge that a corporation with which he is identified has had freight rebates from the railroads such as he has denounced his competitors for getting, nor has he explained how the Emery company got a low rate for freight on oil by shipments of oil which were billed as acids.

Candidate Young's Queries. Mr. Emery has not answered the questions propounded by Robert K. Young, Republican nominee for auditor general, who said:

"Will Mr. Emery kindly inform the public what his attitude is toward that plank in the Democratic platform which indorses Mr. Bryan and heralds him as the successor of Theodore Roosevelt to the presidency?"

"Will Mr. Emery kindly inform the public what his attitude is with reference to the last pronouncement of Mr. Bryan on the subject of government ownership of transportation lines doing an interstate business and of state ownership of transportation lines confined within the limits of the state?"

Mr. Emery has not answered the charge that vast sums of money were spent to procure his nomination by the Lincoln Party for the governorship in the organization of the Lincoln Party, of which he is the admitted "boss" and financial backer, despite the fact that in his affidavit setting forth his "expenses" incident to his nomination he swore that his expenses did not exceed $50.

Mr. Emery has not answered the charge that delegates to the Lincoln

Party convention were sent, with their expenses paid, to Philadelphia to do his bidding, that there were admitted to the convention upon credentials given them as the result of meetings of a few men in private offices without any primaries or conventions being held, or without any expression of public sentiment being obtained.

There are many subjects which Mr. Emery has ignored and which are being nightly referred to by the orators opposed to his election.

Mr. Emery's only answer of importance up to date was that in which in reply to criticisms of his personal habits, and conduct, he wrote a letter in which he freely admitted that he would subscribe as cheerfully to the establishment of a brewery in his home community as he would to the erection of a church, hospital or a school.

Is Lewis Emery, Jr., muzzled, or is he afraid to answer? Is still the query resounding throughout the state.

STUART WEARS WELL

Republican Nominee For Governor Squarely On Reform Platform.

POPULAR LEGISLATION URGED

Pledges Made to the Voters Will Be Kept When He Takes the Governor's Chair.

[Special Correspondence.] Philadelphia, October 2.

The tour of Edwin S. Stuart, the Republican nominee for governor, and his colleagues on the state ticket continues to be made up of a series of ovations from the masses of the public. Mr. Stuart has developed into a wonderfully successful campaigner. He makes a splendid impression wherever he goes, and the voters are impressed with his honesty and sincerity of purpose. He is standing squarely upon the Republican platform and has convinced all who have heard him that he intends to carry out every pledge made by this party.

In a recent speech he, among other things, said:

"Illustrations as have been the achievements of the Republican party in the past, it can triumph in the present struggle only by justly and fully commanding the consideration and proper approval of the people, and I firmly believe it is the honest and inexorable purpose of the Republican party at the next session of the legislature to enact laws which are recommended and to which it is pledged in its platform.

"The Republican party of Pennsylvania is pledged to confer upon trolley companies the right to carry freight in order that the product of the farm may reach the market at the least possible cost and convenience to the vast number of our people engaged in the production thereof. It is opposed to the ownership of coal mines and of the mining of coal by railways and transportation companies; and in its platform is a plank demanding the enactment of such legislation as may be necessary to make effective a constitutional provision upon that subject.

"It demands the passage by the next legislature of such laws as will secure a rate not exceeding two cents a mile upon all the railroads within the commonwealth, and such further legislation as will require the sale of mileage books at a rate not exceeding two cents a mile without the requirement of a $10 deposit or any other onerous requirement.

Protecting State's Water Power.

"It also declares a legislative limit shall be placed upon the duration of all franchises granted by the legislature, and the right of the people to take hold of the franchise and the works, under just terms, carefully reserved. It declares in favor of such legislation as will prevent the water and water power of the state from passing out of the control of the public authorities. It declares in favor of a state commission to exercise relations to transportation within the commonwealth similar to those of the interstate commerce commission for the regulation of interstate transportation. It demands the investigation of the facts as to the abandonment and construction of competitive railroads by existing corporations, and the enactment of such legislation as will enable the state to retake the franchises so abandoned.

State Chairman Andrews has arranged the following itinerary for the gubernatorial party for the next two weeks:

Cider Mills and Apple Butter Factories Busy in Somerset County.

The apple crop in Somerset county is reported to be very large. In some orchards the apples are so plentiful that quantities of them are permitted to lie on the ground and rot. Apple butter factories and cider mills are in some places running day and night, and the cider makers have been sending to Uniontown for barrels for their product. The Somerset county apples are hard to beat, and people over there have reason to feel proud of their fruit.—Connellsville Courier.
