LAST CARDS TO
TO BE PLAYED IN A DESPERATE GAME

Sensational Arrests Are Planned
For Political Effect.

GORDON'S FAMILIAR TACTICS

Worked In Quay Case, the Hill Trial and Filtration Suits, All of Which Ended the Same Way After Election.

Reports come from the inner circles of the Emery Democratic conspirators, showing that they have arranged for a most spectacular and sensational game for the closing days of the canvass.

Following the tactics carried out by men in the Wanamaker-Gordon-Van Valkenburg combination in previous political fights, it is reported that arrests are to be made with a view to sustaining charges made in connection with the expenditures on the state capitol.

It is declared that something of this kind must be done in view of Governor Pennypacker's recent statement, or the people will not place credence in any of the charges that have been made by Berry and others in this connection.

Even conceding that there have been violations of the law in connection with some contracts in the capitol, although up to date there has been no evidence submitted to substantiate such allegations, citizens of Pennsylvania, it is believed, will be loathe to accept this as a reason why the Republican party should be defeated, especially in view of the manly declaration made by Edwin S. Stuart, who has said that in the event of his election he will insist upon a thorough investigation of all expenditures in connection with the state capitol, and that he will prosecute any that may be found guilty of wrongdoing.

But it is the policy of men in the Gordon-Van Valkenburg political combine to play to the galleries and to make arrests in order to influence voters, even where there is no foundation for such action.

It was this policy that prompted the arrest of the late Senator Quay, and which for the time being prevented his election to the United States senate.

Arrests For Political Effect.
This arrest was made in the heat of a bitter faction fight, and the trial was drawn out so that a conclusion could not be reached until after the adjournment of the legislature. Then it was that Senator Quay was acquitted, but the Wanamaker-Gordon-Van Valkenburg conspirators had accomplished their purpose, for the time being, at least.

But the people were heard from later, and Senator Quay's triumphant election followed.
Last year the same influences led the fight against the Republican ticket, and succeeded by similar tactics in gaining a temporary victory.

Nearly all the Republican leaders of Philadelphia were then accused of various high crimes and misdemeanors. None of them, however, was arrested, but John W. Hill, Chief Engineer of the Filtration Bureau, one of the most highly respected men of his profession, became a victim when he was made to figure as a culprit in a desperate game to deceive the voters.

Mr. Hill was arrested. He demanded immediate trial, but this was denied him, as the political conspirators knew that if the facts of the case were presented in court he would be immediately acquitted and their game would be blocked.

They played for time. They threw obstacles in the way of his getting an early trial, and succeeded in having the matter held over until after election.

As in the Quay case, they accomplished what they were after. They deceived the people, and were the means of causing thousands of Republicans, who believed there might be some foundation for their charges, to cut their ticket.

Kindred influences inspired the suits against contractors in Philadelphia, the first of which has just been settled by the city and has revealed a condition of affairs that fairly startled the community.

Instead of the city being defrauded of nearly half million dollars it was shown that the work was properly done, and that there was a balance of over $100,000 due the contractors.

But the political game of which these suits were a part was played successfully. The Republican local ticket in Philadelphia was defeated and the conspirators back of the prosecution accomplished what they were after.

Banking upon successes of the past, it is now anticipated that the political managers who are running the Emery campaign will make a grand, final play before election day, in the hope of deceiving the people once more.

It is believed they will cause arrests in the capitol matter, if only for political effect.

Chairman Andrews Speaks.
W. R. Andrews, Republican state chairman, in discussing the charges in connection with the furnishing of the state capitol and their effect on the Republican vote, said:

"It would be a reflection on the intelligence of Republican voters to imagine for a moment that any considerable number of them will oppose their party candidates for state offices next month because of charges made for political effect. The capitol is built and paid for, and it speaks for itself. It was paid for with a half year's revenue, and there is enough left in the state treasury to build another capitol just like it."

"I don't know whether there is any corruption or graft in the furnishing of the state capitol, but I have an abiding faith in the sterling honesty of Governor Pennypacker, and I am confident that he would not permit the expenditure of a cent wrongfully."

"But suppose there has been graft in this work. It has not been alleged that any one actively connected with the Republican organization is implicated. Yet the other side is clamoring for the defeat of the Republican ticket."

"Both candidates for Governor have promised to make an investigation of the capitol charges. Which of them should the voters of Pennsylvania have the most faith in? Edwin S. Stuart, who, as Mayor of Philadelphia, prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary a City Treasurer who had been his party associate in Councils; or Lewis Emery, Jr., who was convicted of taking another man's land and sentenced by the court to return it, and was fined in addition? I have the certified record of his case from the McKean county court.

Democrat Berry's Game.
"State Treasurer Berry, who is most active in trying to place the responsibility of these charges of the Republican party is a Democrat. It is well understood that his object is to elect Democratic congressmen so that President Roosevelt will be discredited in the strongest Republican state in the country. If the next House of Representatives at Washington is not Republican the Presidents hands are practically held during the last two years of his term, and his plans for reform legislation are blocked."

"But Berry looks further than throwing the next Congress into confusion. He knows, and he is sustained by precedent, that if the Republican party in Pennsylvania is defeated in November the Democrats will elect William J. Bryan the next President. It's a long way to 1908, and Democrats will say that the fight this year will not affect the presidential contest two years hence. They said that in the campaign of 1882, when Pattison was elected Governor, and in 1884 Cleveland became President. They protested again in 1890 that the contest for Governor was purely a state fight, and in 1892 Cleveland triumphed. A Democratic victory in Pennsylvania this year would so encourage the Democrats of other states, and discourage the Republicans, that Bryan's election as President in 1908 would be the logical outcome."

McCLURE ON THE ISSUES

Veteran Editor Unmasks the Power
Behind the Emery Boom.

BRYANISM WOULD BE AIDED

Tells of the High Character of Republican Nominee For Governor, Edwin S. Stuart.

Colonel A. K. McClure, while declaring that "a man who is about to face the frosts of eighty winters should be free from the labors and vexations of political strife," has been stumping for his old-time friend, the perennial Thomas Valentine Cooper, "the sage of Delaware county," who seeks re-election to the legislature.

Colonel McClure, in the course of an address at Media, after dwelling upon the virtues of "the red-headed and hopeful Cooper," spoke of the several candidates for Governor.

Among other things he said: "Senator Emery has been nominated for Governor by a Democratic State convention after a violent factional contest, and an overwhelming majority of those who vote for him will do so because they vote the Democratic ticket."

"They have read the Democratic platform on which Senator Emery necessarily stands today, in which the people of Pennsylvania are congratulated in advance on the assured election of William J. Bryan as our next President."

"This declaration has made scores of thousands of sincere reform Republicans and Democrats to pause and inquire what elements will triumph in Pennsylvania by the election of Emery, and what effect such a verdict would have upon the future of state and nation?"

"With Emery as Governor and a legislature controlled by the elements which are supporting him, would reform be remedial or destructive? We find today a quickening of the Bryan illusion that once made even the credit of this great nation tremble in the marts of the world. With the populism of that day rapidly degenerating into Socialism, and Socialism reaching down even into the mire of anarchy, could reform from such elements be remedial, or would it be destructive?"

After expressing grave doubts that the election of either Emery or the so-called Emery nominees for the legislature would be to the interests of the people, Colonel McClure said:

"Mayr Stuart, if elected Governor, will carry with him a legislature equally sincere in the purpose to correct every public wrong that now oppresses the people, and it would be done by remedial legislation without disturbing in any degree the tranquility of our great industrial and business interests"

"There would not be a trace of disturbing violence in giving our great commonwealth every reform that her honest people demand."

"It would be done by the party that has made Pennsylvania the grandest and most advanced of all the states of the Union; that has paid, in principal and interest eighty-seven millions of state debt that survived Democratic power in the state; that has constructed every state asylum, home, hospital and reformatory now to be found in every section of the state to temper the sorrows of the unfortunate; that has spent many millions to feed, clothe and educate the orphans of our soldiers who fell in defense of the Union; that has given us the most beneficial school system of any state or country of the world, and that has built the finest capitol on the continent, with many millions of surplus in the treasury."

"With the exception of the expenditure of a few thousand dollars on the State Asylum at Harrisburg, every state asylum, home, hospital and reformatory is the harvest of Republican rule."

"Surely, the party that has reared this matchless monument of state advancement can be best trusted to correct abuses of political authority."

"I believe that Pennsylvania should have the grandest capitol on the continent. It is the one building that belongs to all her people, where rich and poor, high or low, can enter with the knowledge of equal proprietorship, and it should record in the highest advancement of American art on every hall and in every part of the great structure the grandeur of our advancement. It will be the pride of every man, woman and child of the commonwealth, and the grandest patrimony of our children and our children's children; but if the silmy hand of the grafter has fastened upon it, the whole people of the state will demand that there be swift and just punishment, and the restitution of every dollar that has been stolen from the treasury."

Sent Bardsley to Jail.
"I know Mayor Stuart well. I have seen him tried as Mayor of Philadelphia when a leader of leaders of his party had violated his trust; and, although profoundly personally sympathizing with one who had been his friend and aided in his political advancement, all personal sentiment and political interest were subordinated to his imperious duty, and the fallen embezzler went to the felon's cell."

"When Edwin S. Stuart says to you, as he has said to the people in every section of the state, that he will fearlessly and exhaustively investigate the capitol frauds and punish the guilty, high or low, friend or foe, you can be absolutely assured that he will perform that duty with scrupulous fidelity."

"Our state is now out of debt. Most of the needed asylums, homes, hospitals and reformatories have been erected—our duty to the orphans of the soldiers has been chiefly performed, and the state now appropriates nearly six millions to education, while returning to the counties a large proportion of the state tax upon personal property; but the farms and the homes, which are less productive than the corporate and combined business interests which reach into every community, are heavily taxed, and the time has come when, during the next state administration, the farms and homes of Delaware county and of the whole state should be entirely relieved from taxation for the support of schools, and gradually relieved from taxation for the support of our chief highways."

"The policy of increasing our appropriations to schools has been long accepted by the party in power, and the last legislature inaugurated the policy of improving our needs under the direction and at the cost of the state. To accomplish these reforms, it is safest to entrust honest Republicans to continue the completion of the great fabric of progress they have so largely reared, and for these reasons I shall vote for Mayor Stuart for Governor, and for his associates on the Republican state ticket."

Roosevelt Administration Repu-

Alarmed Over This National Calamity.

How would you, loyal Pennsylvanian, like to read these startling headlines in your morning newspaper next Wednesday, the day after the election?

Does it occur to you that by voting the full Republican ticket, and getting your neighbors to do likewise, you can aid in blocking the game of the Democrats and their allies?

As "Uncle" Joe Cannon, Speaker of the National House of Representatives, said in Philadelphia a few days ago, warning Republicans of the national danger: "IT IS UP TO YOU."

ROOSEVELT'S INTEREST.

The declaration of the Emery-Democratic State convention, in effect, that Roosevelt was but a poor imitation of Bryan, has had its answer in the appearance of Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, the best political speaker in the Roosevelt cabinet, at Republican meetings in Pittsburgh and Lancaster.

Secretary Shaw's presence is an undeniable indication of the interest taken by President Roosevelt in the Pennsylvania campaign. The Republicans of Pennsylvania are not to be fooled by the gum-shoe policy of the Bryan and Hearst Democrats of the state. With a stool-pigeon candidate for Governor, the Democracy is yelling against the discussion of National issues, ignoring the fact that the Democratic State convention declared that Bryan is the sure successor of President Roosevelt. The pretensions of the Emery clique that they are devoted followers of Roosevelt is amply negated by the presence of Secretary Shaw in Pittsburgh—Johnstown Tribune.

INCISIVE POINT OF VIEW.
"There are but two questions at issue between the Republican Party and the fusion element. First, are the principles of government advocated by the Republican party best calculated to promote the welfare of the people of the United States? The second question is, will the candidates of the Republican party carry out the principles of their party? The second question might be asked in another way; namely, will the principles of the Republican party be carried out better by those who believe in those principles than by those who are opposed to them?"

"It is hardly worth while to talk to men of sense on the benefit to be derived from Republican rule. No man can open his eyes and not see it, if there is any connection between his eyes and his brain. He can see it in the smokehouse and the flour barrel; in the shoes on his feet and the clothes on his wife and children; in the fatness of his horses, cattle and pocketbook. The seven lean cows in Pharaoh's dream were no more certain prediction of a famine in Egypt than a Democratic National Government is of hard times in the United States."—Meadville Tribune.
