The bitterest tears shed over grave are for words left unsaid and for deeds left undone. "She never knew that I loved her." "He never knew what he was to me." "I always meant to make more of our friendship." "I did not know what he was to me until he was gone." Such words are the poisoned arrows which cruel death shoots from the door of the sepulchre.

The lady who laughs heartily is a doctor without a diploma. Her face does more good in a sick room than a bushel of powders or a gallon of bitter draughts. People are always glad to see her. Their hands instinctively go half way out to meet her grasp, while they turn involuntarily from the dampy touch of the dyspeptic, who speaks in the groaning key. She laughs you out live in until she points out the sunny

The gentle grace of the mother lives in the daughter long after her head is pillowed in the dust of death; and the fatherly kindness finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons, who come to wear his mantle and to fill his places, while on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned and disordered home, go forth persons who shall make other homes miserable, and perpetuate the sourness and sadness, the contentious, strifes, and railings which have made their own early lives so wretched and distorted.

HINTS FOR WIVES.

Perchance you think that your husband's disposition is much changed; that he is no longer the sweet-tempered, ardent lover he used to be. This may be a mistake. Consider his strugmay be a mistake. Consider his struggles with the world—his everlasting race with the busy competition of trade. What is it that makes him so eager in the pursuit of gain—so energetic by day, so sleepless by night—but his love of home, wife and children, and a dread that their respectability, according to the light in which he has conceived it, may be engrouched upon by the strife. may be encroached upon by the strife of existence? This is the true secret of that silent care which preys upon the hearts of many men; and true it is, that when love is least apparent, it is nevertheless the active principle which ani-mates the heart, though fears and dis appointments make up a cloud which obscures the warmer element. As above the clouds there is a glorious sunshine while below are showers and gloom, so with the conduct of man—behind the gloom of anxiety there is a bright fountain of high and noble feeling. Think of this in those moments when clouds seem to lower upon your domestic peace, and by tempering your conduct accordingly, the gloom will soon pass away and warmth and brightness take its place. HOME, SWEET HOME Stay, stay at home, my heart and rest; Homekeeping hearts are happiest. For those that wander they know not where. Are full of trouble and full of care.

Home—the name made dear by sacred associations, the place where childish feet take their first faltering steps and infant minds receive their first ideas. There lessons of love and truth of right and wrong of faith and truth, of right and wrong, of faith and the plastic heart, and all the sorrows and perplexities of after life are inefficient to quite efface these first deep true impressions. Sweet home, where love provides, and filial affection is "the silver link, the silken tie" that binds the household band together.

About thirty guests witnessed the Coremony, and an elegant wedding dinner was served.

Vir. Trials may come and clouds may lower, but in the seclusion of home remains sweet healing for the wounds that brave and sensitive hearts hide from a disdainful world. There these hurts and distresses may be confidently revealed, and a sovereign remedy found in its unquestioning faith. There a child's pure kiss or the touch of dimpled finger may revive a soul on the verge of despair; and in the home the brightest dreams become more golden, the rarest pleasure more intense, the tenderest joys more serene. And if, in the varying decrees of fortune, its loving shelter must be abandoned, how the exile folds about his heart, as the traveler does his cloak, the memory of nopes and kindnesses. There the noblest influences exist the holiest impulses find expression, and there have been born the chaste and lofty sentiments that have made a whole world better.

OIL DEVELOPMENT.

Garrett County Lands to be Option ed by Standard Company.

A report from Cumberland, Md., states that the Standard Oil Company is about to take up options on property in Garrett county for the purpose of drilling for oil. The officials of the Oil Company said that they had received no information regarding the project, and that all matters of this kind were handled from the New York office. The general feeling here is that after an adequate test has been made, and should the wells show signs of panning out, it is not improbable that the Standout, it is not impropable that the Standard Oil Company will take hold of the proposition. The pipe lines of the company now run through that section of the country near the locality in the groaning key. She laughs you out of your faults, while you never dream of being offended with her; and you which the options are being secured, so which the options are being secured, so the country has a being secured, so the country has a being secured, so the country has a being secured. never know what a pleasant world you live in until she points out the sunny county develop into an oil-producing section, it would be an easy matter to pipe the oil.

It is said that the options are being taken up in the vicinity of Finzel. Several test wells have been sunk in this vicinity, and although signs of oil were seen, the work was not pushed forward. The wells were started by a syndicate composed of Baltimore and Washington capitalists, and Ex-Congressman William H. Jackson was gressman William H. Jackson was president of the company, and it is now believed that the latter company will make a thorough test.—Oakland Jour-traveler does his cloak, the memory of its lights and flowers, its loves and Transit Line" to the Golden West.

In 1817 the National Road extended from Cumberland to the West. In 1822 the pike was built from Hagerstown to Cumberland, and about the same time the highway was extended to Baltimore. Along with the completion of the pike came "line teams" through from the west. These were great wagons with rear wheels 10 feet high, drawn by six horses and making almost as fast time as the stages or a modern freight train. They carried bacon and other western produce to the markets to sell. On the return trip they carried dry goods and groceries these nuptials had the latter day so they carried dry goods and groceries these nuptials had the latter day so they carried to the mast, in fact it me western store to be reached possibly by boat from Wheeling.

common to our people. In 1841 General W. H. Harrison on his way to the White House by stage stopped at the old Barton House in Hancock. Black on dinners with terrapin and truffles, no checks for a million dollars, and no Hawk, the famous Indian chief, stop-Hawk, the famous Indian chief, stopped there. Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay, Davy Cockett, James K. Polk and Zachary Taylor were familiar figures at the breakfast table in the old Barton House, here. Jackson and Clay were favorites, and always drew big crowds, to whom they invariably delivered addresses. The venison, bear steaks, and hot bread, the ham and eggs of the Barton House were famous in those days. The price of a meal was 25 cents, and a glass of whiskey cost 5 cents, and a glass of whiskey cost of cents. Andrew Jackson one morning feasted on ham and eggs, and was so pleased that he gave the old "black mammy" cook a silver dollar.

Coaches in those days rushed along at 12 miles an hour. The first coach used was a clumsy affair, carrying 16 passengers. Many stories are told of the old coaching days. It was a favorite amusement among passengers to hold out letters to country people, to see them run after the stage. D. ### TWO HISTORICAL MARRIAGES.

The eternal feminine delighting at al times in things matrimonial will lay aside reports of social doings at the ummer resorts and advertisements o new fangled fruit cans to read about a wedding, even if it did occur nigh on to three hundred years ago.

In this case there are two, and it is doubtful if an account of them would be dug up at the present time, were it not that they have to do indirectly with the Jamestown Exposition, which is to be held next year at a point not far from the scene of both these early social events. F. F. V.'s were not heard of in those days, but for real. Simon pure F. F. V. ism, the first of ciety lashed to the mast, in fact it marked the beginning of the first fam-ily of Virginia. The second was the possibly by boat from Wheeling.

The days of the old National pike ily of Virginia. The second was the were romantic times. The sight of first instance of title-hunting in America, with the reversed conditions that distinguished men of the nation was distinguished men of the nation was the bride, an American, had the title. no checks for a million dollars, and no press accounts of the trousseau, but there were some distinguished people present, and in same way the news leaked out.

The first installment of Jamestown settlers was a stag outfit with such noble old rounders as Capt. John Smith in the bunch, but never a petticoat, and no wonder things didn't go just right. In the absence of thi gentle influence one can fancy the doughty Captain and Old Sport Pow-hatan pitching horseshoes for tobacce (Powhatan's tobacco) under Powhatan's oak, and getting tipsy on Disma Swamp water.

But when the second contingent of settlers arrived, there were two ladies among them, or rather one lady, Mis-This was John Laydon. At lovemak him.

The scenery along the National pike from Clearspring, through Hancock, to Sideling Hill, is of romantic beauty—a succession of wooded ridges and sylvan dells with a wealth and variety of vegetation most enchanting. At Hancock the traveler from the west got his first glimpse of the C. & O. canal—then building, and a work of national importance, which John Quincy Adams pronounced to be more wonderful and ing he must have been a regular Corginia the first child born of English THE CHARM OF A CLEAR COMPLEXION.

Nothing lends more to personal at when Virginia was 21, the Virgini. Court officially recognized this import ant event by presenting to the dis tinguished young lady five hundred acres of land in Elizabeth City count; Va., which lies just across Hampton Roads from the Jamestown Exposition grounds. It may be interesting to note that three other daughters cam-to bless the Laydons—Catharine, Alic and Margaret.

That other wedding was the title hunting affair. It seems that John Rolfe, Secretary of the Colony of Vir ginia, succeeded in convincing the roy al maiden, Pocahontas, that Capt. John Smith was dead, and, believing him conclusion of many who are familiawith the annals of the colony. after her marriage she met him in London, she exclaimed: "They tol me always that you were dead." The words told of the tragedy of a heart.
