Cough
keep you awake?

Our White Pine Cough Balsam with tar touches the tickle. It is very unwise to let it run on. Many times a cough is nothing more than a slight cold, and can be stopped by the use of our Pine Balsam. This is just the season of the year when the cool, blistering wind and nipping air are making coughs and colds pretty fast. If you are one of the victims, you need something, and we have that something. We are pretty positive about that.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will strip the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it is fully cured all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granules, wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

Home
Circle
Depart-

An easy way to spoil an evening meal is for each one to relate the disappointments that have happened, the slights endured, or the offenses given. These are enough to counteract the effect of all good things the most generous and skillful housewife can place upon her table.

Why has a boy any more right than a girl to leave his hat on the parlor table, his gloves on the mantle, his coat on the chair or newel post, and his shoes in the middle of the room? He can learn orderliness just as well as his sister if he begins in time. Now is the time to begin.

If the boy is to be a "little gentleman" when away from home, he must be taught, and not by precept alone, but as well by example, when he is at home. And the influence of the example of the father upon the son, and of the mother upon the daughter, will be much more potent than any amount of advice or any rules of etiquette.

The misguided people who assert that marriage as an institution is a failure are generally gazing through spectacles blurred by their own mistakes. There are a thousand happy heartstones to one that is cold and cheerless—a thousand prizes to one blank, and we usually hear more about prizes than blanks. Marriage is not a failure. Some individuals are.

Plant a rose on the hearthstone of neighbor and friend, that its modest, silent sweetness may kiss the weary heart at noon, at night, at eve and at every hour. "Flowers on the grave cast no fragrance backward over the weary years." Plant ye a rose that it may smilingly bloom over the living. Keep it not for the dead, where it must bloom bowed and silently awed.

It is probably not true that family "manners" are less courteous now than formerly; probably the reverse is the fact, but it must be admitted that there is yet room for a great deal of improvement. Somehow, somewhere, there has crept into popular acceptance the idea that with marriage, or at least with the waning of the honeymoon, the "lover days" are over, and the kindness, gentleness, and attention which existed during the courtship has no longer a place in the domestic economy of the wedded pair.

Every inebriate you see staggering along the road or street, you know is going to make some woman's life miserable. Some wife or mother, or helpless children are to be at the mercy of a madman. You smile at his antics, without pity for her who is to be the agonized sufferer, nor give a thought of what you might do to help her in her friendless, homeless condition—for the wife of a drunkard, rich or poor, living in gilded halls, or squalid hut, has no home. The tender associations that cluster around that sacred name do not include drunkenness. The two kingdoms, heaven and home, do not admit the drunkard. Where he lives is hell.

We occasionally observe our masculine friends take some exception to our ideas in this column. Well, we don't blame them, they were not particularly written for them, although we believe there is much in this department that would do them good, and we are glad to know that some give them a reading. We write particularly in the interests of our wives, our mothers and daughters, (with an occasional hint for fathers and sons) and we have received the testimony of many, that they have been greatly encouraged by what they have found in this department, and so we feel our labor is not entirely in vain, but are encouraged to work on, and as best we can, promote the interest of the household.

While Robert G. Ingersoll is not often quoted in a Home Circle Department, yet he said some of the most beautiful things ever spoken, and said them the best. He was on one occasion asked to give two views in a symposium of women, and in reply said: "It takes a hundred men to make an encampment, but one woman can make a home. I not only admire woman as the most beautiful object ever created, but I reverence her as the redeemed glory of humanity, the sanctuary of all virtues, the pledge of all perfect qualities of heart and head. It is because women are so much better than men that their faults are considered greater. The one thing in this world that is constant, the only peak that rises above all the clouds, the one window in which the light burns forever, the one star that darkness cannot quench, is woman's love. It rises to the greatest heights, it sinks to the lowest depths, it forgives the most cruel injuries. A woman's love is the perfume of the heart. This is the real love that subdues the earth; the love that has wrought all miracles of art; that gives us music all the way from the cradle song to the grand closing symphony that bears the soul away on wings of fire. A love that is greater than power, sweeter than life and stronger than death."

Nicer than Jenny Rosity

Lovely was Rhoda Dendron, too,
One of the flower kind.

I did not fancy Polly Gon,
Too angular was she;
And I could never take at all

I rather liked Miss Sarah Nade,
Her voice was full of charm;
Hester Ical too nervous was,
She filled me with alarm.

E. Lucy Date was clear of face,
Her skin was like a shell;
Miss Ella Gant was rather nice,
Though she was awful swell.

A clinging girl was Jessie Mine,
I asked her me to marry
In vain—now life is full of fights,
For I'm joined to Millie Tary.

DIGESTION DECIDES IT.

GOOD DIGESTION MORE THAN HALF THE BATTLE.

Life is a ceaseless struggle for success because success is supposed to insure happiness. Ambition and ability make for success, but without health too, failure is more than probable. If the digestion is poor, the nerve-unsure, the blood thin, the weight less than it should be, and ambition and energy at low tide because of stomach trouble, failure is almost certain.

Whether you make much or little of life, whether you fail or succeed, your digestion largely decides it. So confident is E. H. Miller that Pepsikol Tablets will renew your energy, steady your nerves, drive away that tired feeling, give tone to the digestion, improve your appetite, bring up your weight to where it should be, put new color into your cheeks and new life into your stomach, that they continue to sell this grand dyspepsia remedy on the money-back plan.

Have confidence. The guarantee absolutely protects you. Mr. Miller will gladly pay back your quarter if at the end of the ten days' treatment you have not been cured or decidedly benefited.

The Remarkable Adventure of a Child of the Mining Camps.
Some years ago a child was born during midwinter in a remote mining camp of the Sierras. The mother was unable to nurse her baby; there was no milk in the camp, and the roads were impassable. A skee-runner volunteered to carry the child down to the open country on skis, and this experiment was tried. Several days later the mail reached an Indian encampment with the child still alive, but in a starving condition. It was nursed back to health by one of the squaws and is living to-day.

On this basis of these facts, Charles Frederick Holder, in the Christmas McClure's, has written a story, strong virile, dramatic, of the true McClure type, telling the adventures of this skee-runner, describing his struggle with cold, hunger, fatigue, and wild beasts of the forest, and the splendid endurance and "grit" that overcame them all. A photograph of the real child, taken two years after the event which actually occurred, accompanies the tale.

May Ask One Dollar to Hunt.
A bill is being prepared by the state game commission, to be submitted to the next legislature, requiring every sportsman in the state to pay a tax before he is permitted to hunt. The tax will be $1, and will be payable to the county treasurer, who will give it to the state game commission for expenses.

At present the legislature gives the commission $10,000, and it is expected to pay all expenses out of that sum. Game wardens are paid by receiving half of the fine imposed on offender and as a consequence are under suspicion in order to get their money. One game warden has been murdered, two shot at and one is now in jail at Wilkesbarre for defending himself when a foreigner whom he caught shooting song birds resisted arrest.

The bill will provide that no boy under 12 years of age shall be permitted to shoot game, but any farmer below 12 to 21 may shoot on his own premises without taking out a license. All foreigners must pay a license fee of $10.

It is estimated by the commission that one man in every thirty is a sportsman and goes hunting, and it is argued that it is unfair for twenty-nine men to be compelled to pay for the sport of the one. A tax of $1 on each hunter, it is said, will produce revenue enough to see the commission through without giving the wardens half the fines, for then they could be paid salaries.

When we recommend and guarantee Ake-In-The-Head tablets for headache and neuralgia it is because we know you must obtain relief or we stand ready to pay your ten cents back! Safe, sure, and always cure. E. H. Miller.
