Howard Meager & Co.

No. 21 McWhorter Hand Fertilizer Distributer

It distributes the fertilizer in a furrow, beside the growing crop, as a top-dresser or as a broadcast in any way that may be desired, from a narrow stream up to a uniform spread of over two feet, without removing or adding any part or loosening a bolt, and in any quantity from a very few pounds up to forty or more pounds, in the hundred yards of row.

The fertilizer can be instantly divided into two or more streams, and thus be applied beside or on two more rows of plants at the same time.

TOP-DRESSING STRAWBERRIES.

For this work it is the ideal thing, making a beautiful and uniform spread of the fertilizer on any row or bed of strawberries up to two and one-half feet wide. The distributor is light, yet rigid and strong, and easy and pleasant to use by man or boy.

We make all sizes of Horse Fertilizer Distributers, also Potato Planters, Bean and Peanut Planters, and Paris Green Dusters. Send for Illustrated Catalog

Crude Thoughts As They Fall From the Editorial Pen: Pleasant Evening Reveries.	Home Circle Department.	A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers As They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Good manners are not taught in the school books. They are found in the home lessons.

It is well to be charitable in all our conclusions, mindful that we often need the cloak of charity ourselves. Fill life with sunshine and strew flowers where others throw stones. Make life a bright spot in this world, and where you see flowers, cast smiles, and whether it be morn, dusk or night, let the sunny side of nature always be at full meridian.

WHAT SHALL I TEACH MY CHILD?

Teach him that it is better to die than to lie; that it is better to starve than to steal; that it is better to be a scavenger or a wood-chopper than an idler and a deadbeat; that it is just as criminal and reprehensible to waste Monday as to desecrate Sunday; that labor is the price of all honest possessions; that no one is exempt from the obligation to labor with head, hands or heart; that "an honest man is the noblest work of God;" that knowledge is power; that labor is worship and idleness sin; that it is better to eat the crust of independent poverty than to luxuriate amid the richest viands as a dependant. Teach him these facts till they are woven into his being and regulate his life, and we will insure his success.

A genuine mother could no more raise a bad boy into a bad man than a robin could raise a hawk. When we say a "genuine mother" we mean something more than a mother who prays with her boy and sends him to Sunday school. All these things are good as far as they go, but there is a lot more to do to train a boy besides praying with him, just as there are things necessary to the cultivation of a garden besides reading a manual. To succeed with roses one must prune, weed and hoe a great deal. To make a boy into a pure man, a mother must do more than pray. She must live with him in the sense of comrade and closest friend. She must stand by him in time of temptation as the pilot sticks to the wheel when rapids are around. She must never desert him to go off to superintend outside duties any more than the engineer deserts his post and goes into the baggage car to read up engineering when his train is pounding across the country at forty miles an hour.

TRUE LOVE OF WOMEN.

No woman will love a man better for his being renowned or prominent. Though he be the first among men, she will be prouder, not fonder; as is often the case she will not even be proud. But give her love, appreciation, kindness, and there is no sacrifice she will not make for his content and comfort. The man who loves her well is her hero and king—no less a king, though his only kingdom is his heart and home. In nine cases out of ten it is a man's fault that he is unhappy with his wife. It is a very exceptional woman who will not be all she can be to an attentive husband, and a very exceptional one who will not be very disagreeable if she finds herself willfully neglected.

THE ORDINARY WOMAN.

We have noticed that among the many prizes given by Andrew Carnegie as a reward for bravery and heroism, none have been awarded to woman, say nothing of the "ordinary woman." Are women less brave than men? True, the ordinary woman may be afraid of a mouse, but her record for true heroism and bravery will compare favorably with man.

She may not jump in front of a runaway team to stop it or rescue a friend from the fifth story of a burning building, but we have women right in this community who have exhibited more true heroism than any man wearing the Carnegie badge of honor for bravery.

Many a soldier who bravely stood at his post of duty for two or three years during the Civil War, is covered with badges. We would not take one from him, he merits them; but many an "ordinary" woman has stood at her post of duty for thirty, forty and even half a century, fighting with sickness, poverty and discouragement, and true Spartan courage kept the wolf from the door and saved the lives of a large family of children.

The man who saves one life receives a prize for bravery, his picture appears in the metropolitan papers, and he wears a medal which says to the world he was brave. And he was. But the woman who has saved the lives of many is given no badge, and seldom even a word of commendation.

The husband of the ordinary woman has not the gift of making money. He works hard, but is a poor manager and the wolf never gets far from his door. The good wife sews, cooks and mends for the man who does not even give her a kind word for pay. One has most truthfully said that for each of her children she trod the Gethsemane of woman, only to go through that slavery of motherhood which the woman endures who is too poor to hire competent nurses. For years and years she never knew what it was to have a single night's unbroken sleep. The small hours of the morning found her walking the floor with a sick babe, or putting water to thirsty little lips. There was no rest for her day or night. There was always a child in her arms or clinging to her skirts. Oftener than not she was sick and nerve-worn and weary almost to death, but never failed to rally to the call of "mother!"—as a good soldier always rallied to his battle-cry.

Nobody called her brave, and yet, when one of the children came down with malignant diphtheria she braved death one hundred times in bending over the little sufferer, without one thought of danger, and when the little one was laid away under the sod, she who had loved most was the first to gather herself together and take up the burden of life for the others.

These ordinary women may not receive a Carnegie badge for bravery, but "He who marks the sparrow's fall" will certainly reserve for them the brightest jeweled crowns in his kingdom.

The Canny Scot.

A well-known city officer in Auld Reekie was celebrated for his cunning and wit. His mother having died in Edinburgh, he hired a hearse and carried her to the family burying place in the Highlands. He returned with the hearse full of smuggled whiskey, and, being teased about it by a friend, he said:

"O, man, there is no harm done! I only took away the body and brought back the spirit!"—The Scotsman.

Character Building.

What is the object of education? Is it to teach a child or man to know something that he did not know, or to be something that he was not? Is it, in other words, an intellectual or a moral process? The safest answer is to say that it is both; but there is a growing suspicion among those who have studied the question most deeply that our schools are not so successful as they might be on the side of character building.—London Chronicle.

WHEN A MAN TELLS YOU it does not pay to advertise, he is simply admitting that he is conducting a business that is not worth advertising, a business conducted by a man unfit to do business, and a business which should be advertised for sale. tf

They Want to Know the Price.

A grocer in a nearby town happened around when a farmer was unloading several boxes filled with groceries which he had ordered from the Chicago department stores. The grocer asked the farmer the price of the articles purchased, and then told him that he could sell them just as cheap. The farmer then said: "Is that so? I take the home paper, but you seldom or never advertise. I am not a mind reader."
