Mr. Samuel W. Maust, a respected citizen of Elk Lick township, died of consumption, last Sunday evening, at his home near the St. Paul church. He was aged 50 years and is survived by one son and one daughter. Deceased was a brother of D. W. Maust, township assessor, and B. & O. Agent Leonard Maust, of Garrett, Pa. The funeral took place at the St. Paul Reformed church, of which deceased was a member, yesterday, conducted by Rev. Stover.

"In 1897 I had a stomach disease. Some physicians said Dyspepsia, some Consumption. One said I would not live until Spring. For four years I existed on boiled milk, soda biscuits, and doctors' prescriptions. I could not digest anything I ate; then I picked up one of your Almanacs and it happened to be my life-saver. I bought a fifty-cent bottle of KODOL and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. In two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. May you live long and prosper."—C. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., 1908. He was a single man, but is survived by his parents, four brothers and three sisters. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 10 a. m.

The Irwin Standard describes the modern editor as the man who works sixteen hours a day, and knows no hours, no night, no Sunday; who goes on picnics and pleasure trips in the line of duty; who returns good for evil and writes long puffs of church socials in return for a chunk of cake that would sink an ironclad; who rejoices with the gay and mourns with the sad; who makes himself poor to enrich the community; who writes sermons, political speeches and obituary poetry; who quotes the law or the gospel on a moment's notice, and who acts generally as an intelligence bureau and an advisory board for the whole community.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by Elk Lick Pharmacy. 4-1

A Card from Our Old Friend Ross Lichty.

For some reason for which we are not to blame, our friend Ross Lichty, of Carleton, Neb., failed to get his copy of last week's issue of THE STAR, and as he does not like to miss a single number of the greatest paper on earth, he writes as follows, under date of March 3d:

"What is wrong with the Twinkler, this week? It has not shown up yet. Hope nothing has gone wrong with the editor or any of the rest of the dear people in Salisbury.

"At present we are obliged to walk if we want to go anywhere, on account of the heavy sleet and ice.

"Land is changing hands at from $80 to $123 per acre. All other prices good and everybody happy.

"I fear you are having another tussle with the quinsy.

"We are all well, but miss our letter (THE STAR) from home."

Yours Respectfully,
ROSS LICHTY.

The Way He Heard It.

A sailor who had been to a church service, where he heard some fine music, was afterward discarding upon an anthem which had given him great pleasure.

A listening shipmate finally asked: "I say, Bill, what's a hanthem?"

"What!" exclaimed Bill. "Do you mean to say you don't know what a hanthem is?"

"Not me."

"Well, then, I'll tell yer. If I was to tell yer, 'Ere, Bill, give me that 'and-spike,' that wouldn't be a hanthem? But if I was to say, 'Bill, Bill, Bill, give me, give me, that, Bill, give me, give me that, and, give me that, and, 'and-spike, spike, spike, Bill, give me that, that, 'and, 'andspike, 'and, 'andspike, spike, spike, Ah-men, ah-men, Bill, give me that 'andspike, spike, Ah-men! why, that would be a hanthem!"

WHEN A MAN TELLS YOU it does not pay to advertise, he is simply admitting that he is conducting a business that is not worth advertising, a business conducted by a man unfit to do business, and a business which should be advertised for sale. 1f

It Wasn't Catching.

A kindergarten teacher tells the following story of a recent experience that she had with one of her little tots: The rules require, when a child reports illness in the family, that the teacher shall find out whether such illness is contagious or not, and it is customary to send the child home for a statement of facts. The other morning one of the younger boys reported that "his mamma was sick." He was sent home to find out the nature of the illness, and soon returned with the information: "Mamma says it ain't catching."

"That won't do," replied the teacher. "You must go home and find out and then come and tell me just what is the matter with your mamma."

Pretty soon the boy came toddling back into the room. "Teacher," said he, "mamma says it's all right. She says it's a boy, and it ain't catching."

WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

Mr. D. N. Walker, editor of that spicy journal, the Enterprise, Louisa, Va., says: "I ran a nail in my foot last week and at once applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. No inflammation followed; the salve simply healed the wound." Heals every sore, burn and skin disease. Guaranteed at E. H. Miller's Drug Store. 4-1

She Told Him So.

A physician took it into his head to go hunting, says the Boston Herald, and started out bright and early on a beautiful October morning, fully armed for game.

About four o'clock in the afternoon he returned, tired out and empty-handed, telling his wife he hadn't killed a thing, whereupon she remarked triumphantly:

"I told you so," adding in the next breath: "If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business you might have been more successful."
