"I had a terrible cold, and nothing relieved me. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and it promptly broke up my cold, stopped my cough, and eased every part of my body. It did wonderful work for me."—MR. J. F. LUTZ, Toledo, Ohio.

The trolley injunction cases are still being argued before Judge Kooser, and it is hard to tell how long the hearings will last. The old M. & S. company has six lawyers there, and with that many lawyers and a number of good liars they ought to be able to put up a pretty formidable bluff.

Miss May Cosgrove, our efficient and obliging telegraph operator, who spent several weeks visiting at her home in Frostburg, Md., returned last Sunday. Her sister Regina had charge of the telegraph office during Miss May's absence, and she, too, is a most competent and obliging operator.

We are under obligations to our good old-time friend Baker Johnson, the genial and accommodating Grantsville mail carrier, for some very desirable news items reported to THE STAR, this week. "Bake" is one of the best fellows that ever came down the pike, and the latch string is always out for him at the Twinkler's headquarters.

Yesterday a large flock of wild geese lit in a grain field on Richard Glotfelty's farm. Some of Mr. Glotfelty's boys went out to try a shot at them, but the geese took flight before they could get in range. If they would have had the editor's long range 32-40 caliber Stevens rifle, they could easily have killed some of the fowls at a distance of 500 yards.

A new boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Meager, last week, and the same kind of good luck happened at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Paschke, who conduct the West Salisbury hotel. We haven't just decided yet what we'll take for our treat, but we feel sure that both of the proud fathers are going to "set 'em up," and it ought to be something pretty good.

THE STAR was in error, last week, in some of the information it gave out in regard to Samuel Maust, who recently died at his home near the St. Paul church. Deceased was not a brother of D. W. Maust, the township assessor, and of Leonard Maust, the B. & O. agent at Garrett, as the paper stated. He was a brother of Leonard Maust, the farmer, and a number of other brothers who were reared in the vicinity of the St. Paul church.

Mrs. W. H. House was a business visitor at THE STAR office, last Thursday. She informed us that she intends to bring a heavy damage suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the death of her husband, a freight conductor, who lost his life in the employ of that company, some months ago. The accident, it is claimed, was caused by the negligence of a mere boy in charge of a telegraph office that he was not competent to handle. Mrs. House's many friends all hope to see her win her suit.

J. R. Joy, who was quite ill at the Valley House for a week or more, returned to his home at Donora, Pa., Monday last. Mrs. Joy was also here for a short period, last week, returning home on Saturday. They are doing a lucrative restaurant business at Donora, and last Saturday Mr. Joy offered his Salisbury residence at public sale, but reserved the right to reject all bids. The highest bonafide bid was $4,750, which was rejected. The property, which is a very desirable one, is now for rent. See advertisement, which appears elsewhere in this issue.

Andrew Carnegie, who claims to be trying to bestow charity on people, has found a man who did a heroic act upon whom he bestowed a few dollars. Why don't he think of the hundreds of heroic mothers who have stood at their posts fighting sickness, poverty and drunkenness, keeping the wolf from the door, while their husbands were working to increase Carnegie's profits. He can find thousands of such heroines in this country to whom he could give a few dollars, where it would be charity, but—they might not advertise it in the city papers. There's the rub.—Cumberland Allegian.

"In 1887 I had a stomach disease. Some physicians said Dyspepsia, some Consumption. One said I would not live until Spring. For four years I existed on boiled milk, soda biscuits, and doctors' prescriptions. I could not digest anything I ate; then I picked up one of your Almanacs and it happened to be my life-saver. I bought a fifty-cent bottle of KODOL and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. In two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. May you live long and prosper."—C. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., 1906. The above is only a sample of the great good that is daily done everywhere by Kodol For Dyspepsia. It is sold here by E. H. Miller. 4-1

Henry Swauger recently purchased the old John Wegman homestead in Grantsville, Md. He intends to pull down the old house, which is one of the oldest landmarks in Grantsville, Md., and erect two new houses on the property. Mr. Wegman, the former owner of the aforesaid estate, for many years conducted a store and a country tannery at Grantsville, and his tannery was one of the last country tanneries in this locality to go out of business as a result of the gigantic city concerns that made country tanning unprofitable. The old Wegman estate was purchased from Ex-Sheriff Chas. Wegman, for a consideration of $575.

The Altoona Evening Gazette, of last Friday, contained the following item: Henry Rose, an old man, under sentence from Bedford county to serve 30 years in the Western Penitentiary for having murdered James B. Miller, of Rainsburg, was in Altoona for a time, Thursday, and attracted no little attention, as in charge of an officer he strolled along Eleventh avenue. The prisoner, gray and bent, was not shackled, but his keeper guarded him with zealous care, the old man manifesting a keen interest in the world about him, the last of which he has now likely seen, as the ailments of advanced age will claim him long before his sentence has been served.

ELK LICK VARIETY STORE, C. T. HAY, Mgr.

Daniel J. Otto, and aged and respected citizen of Elk Lick township, died at his home near Springs, several days ago. He was a farmer and shoemaker by occupation, and when Tub postoffice was established, some twenty years ago, Mr. Otto was appointed postmaster, served acceptably in that capacity for a number of years, and had the office in his work shop. Later the office was moved to the village of Springs, and its name changed to that of the village. We have learned no particulars of Mr. Otto's death or funeral, and neither do we know much of his family history. We know, however, that he was past his three score years and ten, that he resided in this locality all his life, was a member of the Amish church, an amiable, kind-hearted, honest and upright citizen. He was a brother of Hon. C. J. Otto, of New Germany, Md., who served his fellow men some years ago in the Maryland Legislature, and the father of D. D. Otto, the well known brick manufacturer of Springs.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by Elk Lick Pharmacy. 4-1

Another Foul Murder.
Another foul murder was committed in this county, last Thursday afternoon, when Nicola Costigliano, an Italian driver in Elk Lick mine No. 1, near Meyersdale, was killed by a fellow countryman who became enraged and slew his victim with an ax, because he would not move a car when requested to do so. It is not positively known just who committed the murder, but Anton Gatzoo and Mike Castanze have been arrested and lodged in jail. Both men are Italians, and it is believed that they at least know who committed the crime, whether they had a hand in it or not.
IT IS BAD BUSINESS to allow people to look in vain through the columns of THE STAR for an advertisement of your business. tf
