GOOD WORDS FOR CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

People everywhere take pleasure in testifying to the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Edward Phillips, of Barclay, Md., writes: "I wish to tell you that I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My little girl, Catherine, who is two years old, has been taking this remedy whenever she has had a cold since she was two months old. About a month ago I contracted a dreadful cold myself, but I took Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and was soon as well as ever." This remedy is for sale at Miller's Drug Store.

Doesn't Seem to Like the B. & O. Auditors.

If some of the new traveling auditors on the Baltimore & Ohio trains could reduce their pomposity, the passengers wouldn't get hit so hard by "that tired feeling." But we mustn't forget that the t. a.'s are yet very "fresh" to their work, and more experience will make them more perfunctory. The old conductors must be grinning away up their sleeves, too.—Rockwood Leader.

By the above we judge that Editor Werner doesn't like the auditors on B. & O. trains. If they are any more pompous than Conductor Bishop, one of the ticket punchers of the Pittsburg division, they are indeed to be despised. Bishop's pomposity is only exceeded by his insolence, discourtesy to passengers and general boorishness. There are men who would rather be mean and boorish for nothing than to be courteous and civil for a fine salary, and it has long struck a good many people that Conductor Bishop is one of that stripe. However, a more gentlemanly and courteous set of conductors than those of the Pittsburg division (Bishop alone excepted) would be hard to find.

As a Last Resort.

"Well, doctor," said the patient who was an incessant talker, "why in the world don't you look at my tongue, if you want to, instead of writing away like a newspaper editor? How long do you expect I am going to sit here with my mouth open?"

"Just one moment more, please, madam," replied the doctor; "I only wanted you to keep still long enough so that I could write this prescription."

MY BEST FRIEND.

Alexander Benton, who lives on Rural Route 1, Fort Edward, N. Y., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is my best earthly friend. It cured me of asthma six years ago. It has also performed a wonderful cure of incipient consumption for my son's wife. The first bottle ended the terrible cough, and this accomplished, the other symptoms left one by one, until she was perfectly well. Dr. King's New Discovery's power over coughs and colds is simply marvelous." No other remedy has ever equaled it. Fully guaranteed by E. H. Miller, Druggist. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A REMARKABLE DOCUMENT.

Lounsbury, Poor and Insane, Left a Beautiful Will.

From the New York Times.

Justice Walter Lloyd Smith, who presides over the third department of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, brought with him to the dinner of the New York University Law School Alumni Association, Saturday night, what he said was the most remarkable document that ever came into his possession. Others who read the document, the last will and testament of Charles Lounsbury, who died in the Cook County Asylum, at Dunning, Ill., were disposed to agree with him. Here it is:

"I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound mind and disposing memory, do hereby make and publish this, my last will and testament, in order as justly as may be to distribute my interest in the world among succeeding men.

"That part of my interest which is known in law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property, being inconsiderable and of no account, I make no disposal of in this my will.

"My right to live being but a life estate, is not at my disposal, but, these things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath:

"Item: I give to good fathers, and mothers, in trust for their children, all good little words of praise and encouragement, and all quaint pet names and endearments, and I charge said parents to use them justly and generously, as the needs of their children may require.

"Item: I leave to children inclusively, but only for the term of their childhood, all and every, the flowers of the fields and the blossoms of the woods, with the right to play among them freely according to the customs of children, warning them at the same time against thistles and thorns. And I devise to children the banks of the brooks, and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, and the odors of the willows that dip therein, and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees. And I leave the children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the night and the moon and the train of the Milky Way to wonder at, but subject, nevertheless, to the rights hereinafter given to lovers.

"Item: I devise to boys jointly all the useful idle fields and commons where ball may be played; all pleasant waters where one may swim; all snow-capped hills where one may coast, and all streams and ponds where one may fish, or where, when grim winter comes, one may skate; to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof, the woods and their appurtenances, the squirrels and birds, and echoes of the strange noises, and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood, to enjoy without let or hindrance and without any incumbrance of care.

"Item: To lovers, I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the stars of the sky, the red roses by the wall, the bloom of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music and aught else by which they may desire to figure to each other the last- ingness and beauty of their love.

"Item: To young men jointly I devise and bequeath all boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength, though they are rude; I give them the power to make lasting friendships, and of possessing companions, and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses, to sing with lusty voices.

"Item: And to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers I leave memory, and I bequeath to them the volumes of the poems of Burns and Shakespeare and of other poets, if there be others, to the end that they may live over the old days again, freely and fully, without tithes or diminution.

"Item: To our loved ones with snowy crowns I bequeath the happiness of old age, the love and gratitude of their children until they fall asleep."

WONDERFUL ECZEMA CURE.

"Our little boy had eczema for five years," writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. "Two of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being affected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Electric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at E. H. Miller's Drug Store. 50c. 6-1

The Largest Casket.

The largest casket turned out by the United States Casket Company, at Scottsdale, was shipped to Undertaker Shuman, at Uniontown, on Thursday of last week. It was used to inter the remains of Charles Edmonds, a negro chef, who was known throughout this section of the state, and who died on Wednesday, April 17. Edmonds was 42 years old, and in recent months had weighed about 310 pounds. He was below the average stature and his height was three inches less than his measurement around the waist.—Connellsville Courier.

Edison's Courtship.

T. A. Edison's courtship was characteristic of the great inventor. The first Mrs. Edison was, previous to her marriage, a telegraph operator in his employ. One day while standing behind her, watching her at work, Edison, who had long admired the young lady, was surprised when she turned round and said, "Mr. Edison; I can always tell when you are near me." "How do you account for that?" returned Edison. "I don't know," responded the young lady, "but it is a fact nevertheless." Edison looked her full in the face and said, "I've been thinking considerably about you of late, and if you are willing to marry me I would like to marry you." A month later they were married, the union proving a very happy one.—Ex.

"Where Was Bill."

Bill Jones is a country storekeeper down in Louisiana, and last spring he went to New Orleans to purchase a stock of goods. The goods were shipped immediately, and reached home before he did. When the boxes of goods were delivered at the store by the drayman, his wife happened to look at the largest; she uttered a loud cry, and called for a hammer. A neighbor, hearing the screams, rushed to her assistance, and asked what was the matter. The wife, pale and faint, pointed to an inscription on the box which read as follows: "Bill inside."

NO BOOZE HOUSE NEEDED.

The editor of the Carleton (Neb.) Leader says several different fellows were recently in that town with a view to putting in a booze house, and adds: "We hardly think we need one."

Right you are, Editor Bryant. No other town needs one, and we often think of the good hotels Carleton had when we lived there, back in the Eighties, and not one of them sold a drop of booze. That time Carleton had two very good hotels, and one that was good at times and pretty tough at others, owing to the boozing propensities of the proprietor. But either one of the three was far better than the average hotel in towns of the same size here in the east, where the sale of booze, discourtesy to guests, poor meals and poor accommodations in general seem to be the chief aims of many of the proprietors.

A few years of liquor license in Carleton, after many years without it, seems to have soon convinced the majority of the people in that town that the saloon is a public nuisance, and it cannot be denied that the sale of liquor in a town is a hurt to all other kinds of business, except to that of the courts, peace officers, billiard rooms and the like. We know by experience what we are talking about, for we have done business for a number of years in anti-saloon Carleton and in liquor-license Salisbury.

If this town had no saloons, many dollars would annually be spent with the merchants and all others who are engaged in a reputable business that is now spent for booze and billiards, pale lager, Pilsener and poverty. And much of the money so spent is money that is due and owing to the merchants, butchers, printers and others. It is no exaggeration to say that enough money is spent over the saloon counters of Salisbury, each month, to keep every man, woman and child in Salisbury in shoes for a whole year.

Does the traffic pay? It brings lots of money to the saloon-keepers, but in the end it pays neither them nor their progeny, as is painfully visible to all who observe things as they go along.

Men opposed to the liquor traffic are often patrons of it and form strong friendships for some of the men who dispense the ardent spirits, but no man can defend the traffic and be honest with himself or true to his conscience, and no man ever attempted to do so without knowing that he was lying.

Beneath these stones repose the bones Of Theodosius Grimm;
He took his beer from year to year,
And then his bier took him.
