We call special attention to the advertisement of the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, which appears elsewhere in this issue. This company manufactures the celebrated "Five Drops" remedies, which are indeed very valuable preparations, as we know by experience, having tried several of them with the best of results. Furthermore, we know by experience that the company is composed of exceptionally nice people to deal with. Their goods are sold by Druggist E. H. Miller. The "Five Drops" is an exceptionally meritorious article. Try it if you want something superlatively good in the saline line.

The Limit.

A Scotch minister instructed his clerk, who sat among the congregation during service, to give a low whistle if anything in his sermon appeared exaggerated. On hearing his minister say, "In those days there were snakes fifty feet long," the clerk gave a subdued whistle.

"I should have said thirty feet," added the minister.

Another whistle from the clerk.

"On consulting Thompson's Concordance," said the minister in confusion, "I see the length is twenty feet."

Still another whistle; whereon the preacher leaned over and said in a stage whisper: "Ye can whistle as much as ye like, MacPherson, but I'll not take another foot off for anybody."

What Was The Text?

Husband—"Many people at church this afternoon, dear?"

Wife—"Yes, a large number."

"Good sermon?"

"Delightful."

"What was the text?"

"It was—it was—well, really, I have forgotten."

"Humph! Was Mrs. Purling there?"

"She was."

"What had she on?"

"Well, she had on a full wrap of very dark Pompeian red cloth, with narrow insertions of black velvet in the sides of the skirt. A small yoke trimming of the velvet covered the upper part of the chest, and was outlined with a mixed tinsel braid. A narrow braiding girdled the waist, and the cuffs were ornamented in the same way. It had a cape attachment plaited on the shoulders, and attached by other plaits at waist line, giving a dolman appearance to the back."—Ex.

A Dream Within a Dream.

If all who hate would love us,
And all our loves were true,
The stars that swing above us
Would brighten in the blue.

If cruel words were kisses,
And every scowl a smile,
A better world than this
Would hardly be worth while.

If purses would untighten
To meet a brother's need,
The load we bear would lighten
Above the grade of greed.

If those who whine would whistle,
And those who languish, laugh,
The rose would rout the thistle,
The grain outrun the chaff.

If hearts were only jolly,
If grieving were forgot,
And tears and melancholy
Were things that now are not,
Then love would kneel to duty,
And all the world would seem
A bridal bower of beauty—
A dream within a dream.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

A Coward and a Girl

A new entertainment had come. The street was filled with cedar blocks which were to be used in paying. They were the finest playthings—so smooth and interesting and sweet smelling!

In front of Nellie's house was a particularly large pile, and promptly in the afternoon of the day they were dumped there she and Laura and Emilie set to work to build a fine house.

Up and down the street different groups of children were building residences until it seemed a whole village was springing up like mushrooms.

The girls resolved to have their house high and snug, and better than any one else's. It was to have two rooms and a grand doorway, with sort of wings opening out toward Nellie's own front door.

At first they got along swimmingly. The foundations were laid, including the inside partition and the wings to the door and the girls worked like beavers. Row after row went on and then Emilie's mother came and said Emilie would have to go home and do some errands.

No sooner had Emilie disappeared with many backward glances than Mrs. Martin called Laura. That near Laura soon found that she could return in half an hour or so after the dressmaker had fitted her new clothes.

However, Nellie worked on and got up as high as her own neck all the way around.

Then she sat down outside the door to read for a few minutes and saw John Moore coming up the street, knocking at all the houses and talking to the children as he came along.

Nellie didn't like him and she was sorry somehow to see him come toward her.

He was an overgrown, ruddy and rather stupid boy who lived around the corner.

"Hello, Nellie," he said, looking over the walls into her house. "Did you do this all yourself?"

"No," Nellie replied shortly. "Laura and Emilie helped with me."

"Where are they?" asked John. "Inside?" Then he laughed and leaned against the wall pretending to be hunting for them within the little house.

"Oh, quit!" said Nellie. "You'll knock my wall over."

"Oh, pshaw," exclaimed John. "Any house ought to be strong enough to hold me, if it was built decent."

With that remark he pressed right up against it and knocked the whole side in.

For a minute Nellie was speechless with rage, then she cried.

"You nasty horrid mean thing, I'll tell Jim and my father on you and you'll get it!"

John stood and giggled and jeered when he saw the tears standing in Nellie's eyes.

"Cry baby, cry baby," he yelled. "Crying about a silly old house that was built rill-ril, just like a girl."

Nellie made a dash for him, but John dodged. Just then Edgar Sheppard came up suddenly and grabbed him by the collar.

"What shall I do to the mean sneak?" he said to Nellie. Edgar Sheppard was Walter's older brother. He was in his freshman year at college and considered a very grand person by the children.

"I don't know," said Nellie vaguely. "He's an awful coward to take a girl when she's all alone and littler 'n an he is."

"He certainly is," said Edgar, giving John a vigorous shake to emphasize each word. "He ought to be thrashed."

John was trembling all over and looked about as brave as a drowned kitten.

"He's so scared now," said Nellie growing brave and drying her eyes. "I guess we might as well let him go."

With a final shake, Edgar sent John flying off down the street, and it was a very long time before he came around her again.

Edgar took off his beautiful light overcoat and set to work helping Nellie repair the damage. And I tell you his big strong hands and arms made things fly. By the time Laura got back, the house was 'way over their heads and the strongest and best anywhere around, so that all the children came to call and said it was "a perfect dandy."

THE PRIMER OF FORTUNE.

The Why and Wherefore of Modern Financing for Those of Moderate Incomes.

Q.—How can one make money safely?

A.—Of all forms of investment none pay so well or so surely as real estate.

Q.—What kind of real estate?

A.—Industrial realty is the surest and quickest money maker.

Q.—Why is it the best?

A.—A manufacturing center grows rapidly owing to the increased demand for its products. The factories and plants enlarge in order to supply the demand, and consequently give employment to additional people—these people must have homes and this demand causes building property to become scarce and thereby enhances the values.

Q.—Is there good industrial real estate for sale?

A.—Yes, and in the greatest manufacturing district on earth.

Q.—Where?

A.—In Greater Pittsburgh—the industrial mistress of the world. She pays out each year over $300,000,000 in wages alone. Her banks have in capital, surplus and deposits over a half-billion dollars—and shrewd investors have made millions of dollars in realty. In fact, each day property is bought and sold at great profit.

Q.—Can you give an example?

A.—Thousands could be cited—one particular instance is the old cathedral property on Fifth avenue and Grant street. It has more than five years $20,000,000 worth of property for $1,500,000. It is now owned by Mr. Frick who has refused several offers of $3,500,000 for it, but $2,000,000 increase in five years.

Q.—But how can a person of limited income share in this prosperity?

A.—Anyone who can save 27 to 83 cents a day can embrace the opportunity.

Q.—How?

A.—Arlington Park offers all this opportunity.

Q.—Where is Arlington Park?

A.—Arlington Park is on the main line of the P. R. R., right in the center of the greatest manufacturing district on earth. Within a two-mile radius of Arlington Park 60 per cent of the entire output of the United States Steel corporation is produced. In the same radius more men are employed than in any similar sized district in the world.

Q.—Why is it a good investment?

A.—Being practically surrounded by valuable real estate it is bound to enhance in value. It adjoins Wilkesburg, and this town is surrounded by hills—all the available building property in the town is in use. The town must extend into Arlington Park as it is the only property available for building purposes. Ten to 15 years ago an acre in Wilmerding was worth from $1,000 to $2,500—today a 25x100 foot lot is worth from $10,000 to $20,000—and this property is but two to six squares away from Arlington Park.

Q.—What is the price of Arlington Park lots?

A.—Arlington Park lots are one acre in size and are selling at $800 and up. Twenty-five dollars secured any lot—$5 to $25 a month pays for it; so that all have a chance to buy here.

Q.—Why is it sold so reasonable?

A.—Before we purchased it Arlington Park was a farm of 225 acres. The owners would only sell the entire farm, so that small purchasers were barred. We laid it out in acre lots and can afford to give the small investor an opportunity he could not otherwise enjoy.

Q.—Won't this opportunity last?

A.—Hardly. We are confident that every lot in Arlington Park will be sold quickly. Those who act quick will get the best lots and low prices. As soon as speculators get them they will be put up to the full selling value and no such terms as we offer will be allowed. It is a proposition that will pay the first buyer a handsome profit.

Q.—How can one learn more about Arlington Park?

A.—We have prepared a booklet telling all about it, and how to get a free trip to Pittsburgh, and it will be sent free to all who address G. M. Cypher & Co., McKeesport, Pa.
