Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach and expose the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

The Thirty-first Annual Convention of the Lutheran Sunday School Association of Somerset County.

The above named convention was held in the St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran church of Rockwood, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. It was one of the most enthusiastic and helpful conventions ever held. One hundred and sixty delegates were present. The reports of the various schools, read upon the floor of the convention, show marked advancement along many lines of Sunday school work. The total number of officers in the Lutheran schools of the county is 296, a gain of 8 over last year. The number of teachers, 416; gain, 23. Total number of scholars, 5007; gain, 354. Total average attendance, 3214; gain, 306. The number of communicants in the schools, 2220; gain, 896. The number that received their first communion, 199. The total amount of contributions, $8151.06. Of this amount $2619.09 was contributed towards the benevolent operations of the church. So far as figures are an indication of spiritual growth and development, these statistics are encouraging.

The first session was held on Tuesday evening, June 18th. After the excellent anthem of St. Luke's choir, Rev. Charles H. Day, the genial pastor of the church, extended felicitous greetings and a royal welcome. The response was made by the Hon. O. P. Shaver, of Friedens. This was followed by the annual address of the president, W. H. Ruppel, Esq., of Somerset. The Rev. E. S. Johnston, D. D., of Elk Lick, delivered the principal address of the opening evening.

During the remaining sessions of Wednesday and Thursday, the following subjects were presented for discussion: "The advisability of a County Temperance secretary of Sunday schools"—Miss Helen Schaff, of Rockwood. "How can the Superintendent make festival occasions most helpful to the school?"—Virgil R. Saylor, Somerset. "The parental responsibility for non-attendance at Sunday school"—Rev. J. S. English, Stoystown. "The Home Department"—Rev. R. L. Patterson, Somerset. "Characteristics of a good superintendent"—J. Wilson Floto, Berlin. "Can the Superintendent use the blackboard with profit in the Sunday school?"—Rev. W. H. B. Carney, Garrett. "How can the Superintendent keep his school out of ruts?"—W. H. Ruppel, Esq., Somerset. "Receiving and welcoming new pupils"—Mrs. E. E. Haselbarth, Elk Lick. "The formative period of youth"—Rev. C. P. MacLaughlin, Meyersdale. "Which is the better, asking questions, or lecturing the class?"—Rev. Moses Grossman, Addison. "Christmas treating or Christmas giving"—Rev. C. F. Floto, Cumberland, Md.

These subjects were ably presented, and in many instances evoked a good measure of lively discussion. The various sessions were interspersed with special music, rendered by the following: Mrs. S. A. Zimbeck, Lavansville; Misses Edna Loucher, Somerset, Bessie Miller, Friedens, Clara Zufall, Meyersdale, Olive Miller, Stoystown, and the Rockwood choir. The recitation of Miss Sadie Snyder, of Rockwood, "Palestine," deserves mention for the artistic and effectual manner of its rendition.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. H. Ruppel, Esq., Somerset, President; Rev. Chas. H. Day, Rockwood, Vice President; Miss Matilda B. Stahl, Pine Hill, Recording Secretary; Mrs. W. H. Yost, Cumberland, Md., Corresponding Secretary; Rev. Charles Lambert, Friedens, Treasurer. The Executive committee, Rev. C. H. Day, Rev. J. S. English, Rev. W. H. B. Carney, Hon. O. P. Shaver, and Mr. James O. Wolfersberger.

Mr. Phillips Denies the Assertion. In our issue of last week, we made mention of an allegation that is quite current in this vicinity, namely, that the Fallon brothers, who were caught by a cave-in while working at the mines operated by J. H. Phillips and others, were caught under the fall while trying to save the car they were loading. We also stated that it is alleged that Mr. Phillips had put great stress on having the company's cars saved at all hazards.

THE STAR gave Mr. Phillips the benefit of the doubt in the latter assertion, and did not state or try to create the impression that he expected men to risk their lives to save a car. We did state, however, that such allegations had been made, adding that we could not verify them, and we say the same thing yet.

Mr. Phillips, of course, denies the allegations made by some of the miners, and as we have no means of knowing the truth in the matter, we will let our readers believe the story Mr. Phillips tells, or that which some of the miners tell, just as they please.

Mr. Phillips also informs us that the Fallon brothers were not trying to save the car when they met with their accident, which we are neither prepared to dispute or verify. Mr. Phillips is squealing before he is hurt, and denying at least one allegation that THE STAR never made.

An Interesting Swallow Story.

People who are close observers of birds, sometimes notice some very amusing, as well as very pathetic things in the lives of our little feathered friends.

Mr. Josiah Pile, of Middlecreek township, relates the following pathetic incident concerning two barn swallows: "Several years ago a pair of barn swallows came to my place and built their nest under the porch roof, above the door. They came the next year, and the next for some years. I presumed they were the same birds, and the sequel of their association and the tragedy that came into their subsequent life prove this to my mind conclusively. They were evidently the same pair. They came every spring in good time to repair their nest, about two weeks before laying time. I loved their company very much. They were early birds—always twittering and flying about in the morning before I got out of bed. One spring they came as usual and commenced building a second nest, close by the first. One evening, before the second nest was completed, there came a shower of rain. Both birds flew out and perched upon the wire clothes line, and sat there while the rain continued falling. After a while both birds darted to the ground to get some mud for their new house. Our cat was hiding behind the post to which the clothes line was fastened. The cat sprang forward and caught one of the birds—the female swallow—and killed it. I was sorry, indeed, but the mischief was done. The male bird cried bitterly that evening and all the next day, and then disappeared for several days. After some days absence the male bird returned with a new mate; but the new mate either did not like her new home, or she detested widowers. He would fly to his nest and call loudly, earnestly and anxiously for Mrs. Swallow No. 2, but she would not come. After several days of fruitless courtship, the new mate left for unknown parts; but Mr. Swallow, to show his independence, or perhaps his superior attachment for his old home, remained the rest of the summer in his nest, and led a lonely existence till fall, when he left never to return; dying, probably, of a broken heart."

Mr. Phillips Denies the Assertion. In our issue of last week, we made mention of an allegation that is quite current in this vicinity, namely, that the Fallon brothers, who were caught by a cave-in while working at the mines operated by J.
