POPULAR impression blames the trusts for everything that goes wrong, and the trusts try to get even by blaming the President.

JULIUS CAESAR, they say, could dictate to 21 secretaries at the same time. But that was before the advent of the blonde typewriter.

WHILE it has been asserted that Mr. Rockefeller is good for twenty-five years more, he will need an angelic disposition to remain "good" during that time.

IT is now being pointed out that if the prosecution of the trusts continues, the poor will suffer with the rich. Still, that's a heap better than the poor suffering alone.

SINCE the Rev. Dr. Hillis has declared that there are over forty roads to hell, a good many men are probably wondering how many of them are fit for automobile travel.

NEW YORK barbers have decided that men who shave themselves must cut their own hair. Here's a splendid chance for a correspondence school to teach hair-cutting by mail.

HARRISMAN'S willingness to own all of the railways seems unselfish and courageous at this moment of eager endeavor to make an example of some monopolist by putting him in jail.

IT is reported that Gov. Odell recently had an operation performed on his jaw. With a national campaign approaching, other politicians will soon be getting their's in good working order.

"A St. Louis boodler recently released from the penitentiary has made his debut in vaudeville," says the Chicago Examiner. This thing may result in the next convicted boodler being sent up for life.

A SOUTH CAROLINA prisoner fainted when the judge sentenced him to thirty years in prison, and the kind-hearted judge immediately knocked off fifteen years. Crooks without the habit of fainting will now do their best to acquire it.

AN Atlanta policeman reports that he saw a red snake with a blue tail, and his whiskers tied in a bow knot under his chin. A few more tails like this, and the country will understand why Georgia made such a rush for the water wagon.

SPEAKING of the visit of that bear to Oyster Bay, the Philadelphia Record suggests that it may have been E. H. Harriman prowling around in disguise, but if Mr. Harriman is looking for trouble, he knows how to find it without making a noise like a bear.

THE FEAR OF PUBLICITY.

"I am here to receive sentence at your hands, and not to be humiliated by a lecture which the newspapers can repeat and print."

These words, used in the remarkable interruption of Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco, while standing up for sentence before Judge Dunne, point a moral if they do not adorn a tale.

The particular sore spot that made Schmitz flinch was the publicity of his punishment.

More than the penitentiary sentence he felt the humiliation that was coming to him through the newspapers.

If only he could be condemned in a corner and quietly put behind the prison doors—this he could bear with equanimity.

But to be pilloried in the press, to have his crime characterized in public with the reporters at their tables taking it all down ready to blazen his infamy to every quarter of the globe—this was the refinement of cruelty to this public man.

The moral of it, then?

The deterrent power of publicity.

More than all else the average man dreads the punishment that comes from publication. He instinctively draws back from standing in the full focus of the newspaper limelight.

And that dread keeps many a one from wrong-doing.

The newspapers do not always live up to their ideals, but every day they render a great service by standing as a mirror to reflect the doings, good and bad of all the people.

Schmitz did not care for the judge's lecture. He cared only because it was a "lecture which the newspapers can repeat and print."

A HUMANE APPEAL.

A humane citizen of Richmond, Ind., Mr. U. D. Williams, 107 West Main St., says: "I appeal to all persons with weak lungs to take Dr. King's New Discovery, the only remedy that has helped me and fully comes up to the proprietor's recommendation." It saves more lives than all other throat and lung remedies put together. Used as a cough and cold cure the world over. Cures asthma, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, hoarseness, and phthisis, stops hemorrhages of the lungs and builds them up. Guaranteed at E. E. Miller's drug store, 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free. 10-1

The Commercial is Mistaken.

While the editor was out looking up some matters, last week, C. W. Truxal, President of the Second National bank, came in, and finding no one at home, scribbled this on a bit of paper and displayed it on the table: "Editor on vacation for six months." That is sort of a slander upon our steady-going habits. Every one knows we have not had a vacation for twenty years. None of the county editors have had any, except "Pet" Livengood, of the Salisbury Star; how he does it, no one seems to know, and he won't tell—Meyersdale Commercial.

The Commercial is somewhat mistaken, as is evidenced by the following from another of our county exchanges: Editors George and Robert Seull, G. E. Bishop and Peter L. Livengood are all taking a dip in the surf at Atlantic City, this week. But the appearance of that combination of Frosty Sons at the gay summer resort at one time can hardly be responsible for the cold wave passing over Pennsylvania. Editors get but few vacations, and no one will begrudge these editors the good time they ought to have on this trip.—Somerset Standard.

We can't speak for our editorial brethren who were on a vacation, but as for THE STAR man, he had a glorious time, and we presume Editors Seull and Bishop enjoyed their vacation equally as well. We feel sorry for Editor Smith, but if he does not understand how a country editor can afford to take a vacation, we will explain it to him in detail, if he will call at THE STAR office. We will say this much openly: A man who conducts a live, interesting paper like THE STAR, a paper which good people swear by and bad people swear at, can always easily raise the necessary wad of the "old long green" to take an occasional vacation and have a deuce of a good time.

A visit to THE STAR office would open Editor Smith's eyes to many facts he is totally ignorant of, and he would be surprised at the stacks and stacks of fine printing turned out here in Salisbury and shipped to all points of the compass, yea, even to Meyersdale, the once proud metropolis of Somerset county.

Does it Pay to Raise Boys?

Somebody has figured out that the average boy who is dependent upon his parents for a livelihood until he reaches the age of twenty-one years, costs them four thousand dollars. On this basis of calculation a brood, for instance, of six boys would represent an outlay of twenty-four thousand dollars by the time they get away from the home roost. The question arises, does it pay to raise boys, and are there no other crops that would prove more profitable? If a boy turns out to be a cigarette fiend with a breath like a turkey buzzard and a laugh that would make the untutored donkey feel perfectly at home in his society, and with an untrammelled and unconquerable desire to avoid work, it is safe to say that his parents might have invested their four thousand dollars at a much better advantage. But if the boy grows up to manhood with the lesson well learned that wealth and success grow only on bushes watered by the sweat of one's brow, the parents need not begrudge whatever they have spent on him, for he will be a source of increasing pride and joy to their hearts, and when they grow old and their hands tremble and their legs wobble and their step is slow and faltering, they have two strong arms to lean upon and help them over all rough places that lie in their twilight path.—Ex.

Courtesy Pays.

It was after five o'clock, the usual closing time for the various railroad offices on Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, but the representative of one of the Western transportation lines was still at his desk. A modest, unassuming sort of a man walked in and inquired about rates and arrangements for Seattle, Wash. The clerk very curtly informed him that the office was closed.

The conversation was overheard by the passenger agent of a competing line, who happened to be near by. A few minutes later the same inquirer stepped into the office of the other company, and questioned the passenger agent, who had immediately recognized the man, and answered him courteously.

"I want a first-class passage for a party of nine, including steamer tickets to Seattle," he said.

The agent showed him every possible attention, and within fifteen minutes had separated from him $1,085, incidentally earning for himself a handsome commission.—Exchange.

Editor Home Again.

Once more we are home again, after a pleasant vacation of two weeks, in company with our eldest daughter.

We visited Washington, D. C., Mt. Vernon, Va., Philadelphia, Pa., Atlantic City and Elizabeth, N. J., New York and Kingston, N. Y.

We had a most enjoyable trip, and the best of health and weather to enable us to enjoy it to the limit, but a great pile of work has accumulated at THE STAR office since the day of our departure. We hardly know where to begin on it, and we must confess that it goes hard to settle down to work again.

However, we will soon be warmed up to the task, and about next week we shall endeavor to give some of the particulars of our trip.

Confidence Not "Gone."

Mr. Rockefeller has become pessimistic and is predicting dire business disaster. A drop of a few dozen points in Standard Oil stock has darkened John D.'s vision. He says confidence is gone.

True, confidence in the ability of Standard Oil to defy the government has been shattered, but confidence in the ability of the government to maintain a square deal and enforce the laws is unshaken.

High violators will be brought to time and the country will move along with its accustomed prosperity. There is no weakening of confidence in the ability of the people for self government, nor in their power to enforce equal and exact justice for all before the law.—Uniontown News Standard.
