Gabe Good and His Good Cider.

When the Gabriel of the heavenly hosts sounds his bugle, Gabriel Good of Somerset township will be there with a recommendation from his printer friends to be admitted within the pearly gates. For a number of years Gabe has set up the cider at this season of the year to the printers, and he made his annual visitation last Saturday. Gabe Good's cider is a safe tipple for the printers, and, besides, it is of the very best kind.—Somerset Standard

Any old thing is considered a safe tipple for the Somerset printers, for none of them ever die, and we know some of them that are almost continually from three sheets in the atmosphere to three-thirds drunk. But all the same we have an idea that good Gabriel Good's good cider is just about all right, and we're sorry that he lives too far away from THE STAR office to bring a milkpan or a strainer-bucketful of it around once in a while. Not necessarily to drink, but as a guarantee of good faith.

Brave Robin Hood,
And good Gabe Good,
We'll praise in song and story,
'Taint in the wood,
And no man could
Heap on them too much glory.
Brave Hood was great
For shooting straight—
Friend Gabe for apple cider.
Gabe's fame is great,
In this great state,
And yearly spreading wider.

Now, Gabriel, pass the cider jug this way, and we'll write you a poem that's worth while. There isn't much poetry in cold water. At any rate not for a printer.

Horrible Accident to Two Miners.

W. J. Baldwin and his brother, of Berlin, miners employed at the W. J. Miller mines, near that town, met with a peculiar accident, several days ago, and as a result are in a serious condition. Baldwin and his brother were riding into the mine in a car. They took with them a large can of powerful blasting powder. The can which contained the explosive had no top. The car, then moving at a rapid rate, struck a switch and was derailed. Baldwin's lamp was jolted from his cap and fell into the can of powder. A terrible explosion followed. The two men were thrown under the wrecked car, which took fire. Slate was jarred from the roof.

A party of fellow miners dug away the fallen slate and rescued the half roasted bodies of the two unfortunates. Both were frightfully burned, but it is stated that they will recover.

THIS IS WORTH REMEMBERING.

As no one is immune, every person should remember that Foley's Kidney Cure will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. Sold by All Druggists. 12-1

WEDDING INVITATIONS at THE STAR office. A nice new stock just received. tf

For genuine, disgusting, senseless, sickening, inexcusable and untruthful slobber and "tommyrot," the Somerset Herald's article, this week, on the putting in of the railroad crossings, last week, by the P. & M. Street Railway Company, is hard to beat. If the Herald had tried to see how far it could keep away from the truth in its account of the putting in of the aforesaid crossings, it could not have succeeded better than it did. According to the old Scull family organ, the farmers turned out en masse to aid the trolley people in a high crime, and according to the same authority (which, by the way, is no authority at all, on anything) a high crime was committed and the P. & O. Railroad Company's rights grossly violated, and hence grave danger that a big lot of Elk Lick farmers and miners are in danger of being heavily fined or imprisoned. The fact is, only about two farmers were present when the crossings were put in, and while numerous other people were there, comparatively few participated in the work. No crime was committed, and no more force was used than necessary to put in the crossings that the trolley people had a perfect right to put in. The men who did the good work only did their duty, and they have the moral support of this entire locality. We hardly think they are in any danger of punishment, and under no circumstances should the old Scull family organ and rot-dispenser be taken seriously.

An Old and Well Known Business House Closed.

The old company store on Ord street is now a thing of the past, as the last manager of the place, Austin Kennell, closed it and shipped the remaining portion of the stock to the Dull Mercantile Company's store in Meyersdale, last week.

The building was erected forty years or more ago, by the late William Smith, who was a prominent merchant and shoox manufacturer in Salisbury at that time. Mr. Smith failed in business some years later, and Levi Lichter was his successor at the old stand. He, too, failed during the panic times back in the "Seventies," and for a while the old building stood empty.

Later on a man named Dean conducted a small hardware store in the old building, but the business was not profitable, and was soon discontinued. About the year 1879, J. J. Hobbittell, who was then operating the old Flog Hill mine, opened a company store in the Smith building. After operating the store and mine for a year or two, Mr. Hobbittell retired from business, and Isaac Gonser conducted a hardware store in the old stand for a time, but was soon succeeded by J. D. Livengood & Co., dealers in general merchandise.

J. D. Livengood & Co. sold out to Ehlen & Rees, who also became the operators of Fairview, Flog Hill and Tub Mill mines. The store was conducted for them as a company store, by Stewart Smith, for about 14 or 15 years, when their coal interests were disposed of to the Somerset Coal Company, and the store to the Dull Mercantile Company.

Shortly after the transfer, Mr. Smith resigned as manager of the store, and was in turn succeeded by Messrs. Geo. C. Biser and Austin Kennell. The latter named gentleman was not in Salisbury very long, but like his predecessors, he soon had friends by the score here, and it is with much regret that we note his removal to Meyersdale, where he is clerking for the same company.

HE FOUGHT AT GETTYSBURG.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: "Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trouble, and paid out much money for medicine to little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have done for me." Grand tonic for the aged and for female weaknesses. Great alterative and body builder; best of all for lame back and weak kidneys. Guaranteed by E. H. Miller, druggist. 50c. 12-1

Somerset Coal Company's Principal Mine Caves in.

A serious cave-in of the pit mouth at Elk Lick No. 1 mine of the Somerset Coal Company, occurred recently, and a large force of men has since been at work removing the large quantity of earth that slid down. This is one of the most important openings of the Somerset Coal Company in this section, upwards of 400 men being employed in its workings, says a Meyersdale dispatch.
