Garfield Fell. Somebody has stolen from the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Washington, D. C., the small red tile which marked the spot where Presi-dent Garfield fell when he was shot by Charles J. Guiteau. The railroad officials have not re-ported the theft to the police. They think the thief was one of the souvenir-mad persons who make life a burden to the watchmen of Gov-ernment property. A number of re-quests have been made by souvenir tunters for permission to buy the tile, but they have always been re-fused.

At the Columbia Exposition the entire automobile output of the country, one car, was contained in country, one car, was contained in one small obscure corner of one building. Points on Eyesight. On a trip through Iceland the traveler sees thousands of mountains covered with eternal snow, rivaling the Alps in grandeur; great geysers and innumerable hot wells; water-falle, one of which—the Guilfoss—is second only to Niagara in size and beauty; crystal streams and lashing rivers; lava beds of fantastic figures, covered with moss that glis-tens in the sun like hoar frost, and, as a crowning glory, the atmosphere is so brilliant, that objects over 50 miles distant appear close at hand.— Springfield Republican.

As a rule, however, the re-duction in production is not great, and is taken rather as a measure of precaution than because of greatly di-minished orders. All New England points, including Bangor, Providence, Springfield, Lvnn, Worcester, Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport, report certain reductions in production, but do not indicate any serious crisis. On the contrary, the usual report is that in-dustrial conditions are fair and that it is only surplus help which is being weeded out. In all the New England cities the New England cities

How Indians Poison Arrows. An old Cherokee Indian recently gave away the secret how the In-dians of olden times used to poison their arrowheads for war purposes, or dians of olden times used to poison their arrowheads for war purposes, or for killing bears. They took a fresh deer liver, fastened it to a long pole and then went to certain aplaces where they knew they would and rattleshakes in abundance. About midday the rattlers are all out of their dens, colled up in the cooking sun. The bucks would poke the first rattler they foculd find with the long pole. A rattler, unlike common snakes, always, shows fight in pref-erence to escaping. The snake would thus repeatedly strike at the liver with its fangs until its poison was all used up, whereupon it would quit striking and try slowly to move on. The bucks would then hunt up another rattler and repeat the per-formance, keeping up with the work until the liver was well soaked with snake poison. Then the pole was carried home and fastened some-where in an upright position until the liver was then pounded to fino powder and placed in a buckskin bag, to be used as needed for their ar-rows. This powder would stick like glue to any moistened surface and was death to any creature which it entered on arrows.-Denver Field and Farm.

"Ever since the time I grew into man-hood I have been suffering from a dry erup-tion which at times appeared very exten-sively, and at other times, but to a limited degree, on my body.
