A Great Engine and a Greater Man.

In our mention in last week's STAR of the two large traction engines recently turned out by our local engine works for a company in Mexico, we inadvertently omitted mention of the designer and inventor, the Rev. Gideon D. Miller, who, like his far-famed engine, is also a product of good old Elk Lick. Proud as we feel of the engines manufactured here, we feel far prouder of the fact that the inventor of the same is an old Elk Lick boy whom nature has endowed with rare inventive genius.

Gideon D. Miller is a son of Daniel J. Miller, and a grandson of the late Joel Miller, Sr. He is a self-made man, and need not be ashamed of the job. His father is a man of natural inventive and mechanical ability, as was also his grandfather, who in addition to his mechanical traits, was a geologist of no mean ability, and also knew something of astronomy. The father, grandfather and son all proved themselves useful men in the community, yet a more modest, unassuming trio would be hard to find. Especially is this the case with the inventor of the traction engines manufactured here. "Gid" Miller is not a man of words, but he is a man of useful and noble thoughts and deeds. But, as is usually the case with men of his worth, he is not always appreciated by those about him as he should be. He is of the class of men whose full value is never realized until after he is dead.

We sometimes doubt whether the possibilities of the engine Mr. Miller has invented is fully realized by the local capitalists who are engaged in its manufacture. Without wishing to give any offense, and by way of a mild criticism, we regret to say that the company has thus far seemed to take only a half-hearted interest in pushing the sale of the splendid engines it manufactures. Their engines have never been half advertised, and their sale has never been pushed half as it should. It is true that the local paper has from time to time given the Improved Traction Engine Company considerable free advertising as a matter of local pride, as well as for the good it might do an infant industry that ought to be encouraged, but we regret to note that the company has thus far done only an insignificant amount of advertising on its own account.

If it is true that God helps only those who help themselves, we fear that The Improved Traction Engine Company will not come in for much assistance from on high, unless it wakes up, gets busy and tries a little harder to build up a thriving industry for the manufacture of a product that contains all the essential qualities on which to build up a large and prosperous manufacturing establishment. In paying this well-earned tribute to the conscientious, modest and mild-mannered Menomonee preacher, the Rev. "Gid" Miller, whose blameless and useful life is in itself an eloquent sermon and worthy example for others to follow, we do so in the hope that it will inure to the well-merited increased sale of the engine he has invented; and we know that it will not turn his head or make him vain. Furthermore, this tribute is unsolicited and unexpected by Mr. Miller, whom we regard as a great man, because he is a useful man. Without usefulness, there can be no true greatness, and "Gid" Miller, as he is usually called, is useful to an enviable and admirable degree.

More power to "Old Gid"! He's full of useful knowledge. And has within him hid A gift not made at college.

A SURE-ENOUGH KNOCKER

J. C. Goodwin, of Kenosha, Wis., says: "Buckley's Arnica Salve is a sure-enough knocker for ulcers. A bad one came on my leg last summer but that wonderful salve knocked it out in a few rounds. Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns, etc. 25c. at E. H. Miller's drug store.

To Clean Furs.

Furs may be readily cleaned at home by rubbing them with bran. Light is more troublesome than a darker kind, but it is worth the trouble and costs so little. Buy a pound of bran at grocery or feed store. Divide it into two portions, placing one in the oven to heat. Spread the fur on table, put paper underneath, and rub it well with cold bran. Shake free of bran and brush with soft hat-brush. Then rub the hot bran quite evenly into the fur, going over it with infinite patience. Afterward brush, then hang in the air. If the lining be soiled, clean with a little gasoline, being careful not to dampen the fur.—New Idea Woman's Magazine for October.

New Postal Laws.

A newspaper publisher recently brought suit against 45 men who would not pay their subscriptions, obtaining judgment in each claim. Twenty-eight made affidavit that they owned no more than the law allowed, thus preventing attachment. Then, under the decision of the Supreme Court, they were arrested for petit larceny and bound over in the sum of $300 each. All but six gave bond, while six went to jail. The new postal law makes it larceny to take a paper and refuse to pay for it.—Berlin Record.

PROUD RECORD OF GREAT PARTY

It Stands For Expansion, For Progress and Prosperity, is Constructive, It Organizes the National Will, is a Party of Statesmen, and With Taft and Sherman, As Its Standard Bearers is Bound to Be Successful at the Election to Be Held in November.

[Special Correspondence.]

New York, Sept. 8. In meeting the issue "Why the Republican party should be successful next November," the Republican congressional committee sought the brightest literary minds in the country to present the case in a brief and forcible manner, and from among 200 articles upon the subject submitted, that written by Frank Hendrick, of New York city, was awarded the first prize of $150.

This is what Mr. Hendrick wrote:

The Party of Expansion. "The Republican party was founded upon the principle that this government was established to protect for all times the rights and opportunities of every individual from abridgment. That principle it has successfully maintained. Through the Civil War it consecrated a reunited country to free and equal American citizenship. It has kept the channels of interstate commerce open for all, through the national banking system, the refunding of the national debt, resumption of specie payments, the gold standard and the emergency currency law, has sustained the life current of national integrity.

"As trustee of the national wealth, it has investigated mineral regions, surveyed soils, developed waterways, including the Panama canal, irrigated deserts, conserved watersheds, and husbanded the public lands. Protecting American labor by regulating immigration and by taxing at the custom house, to pay American taxes, foreign capital's advantage from low wages, it has preserved to American industries the home market of eighty millions of the world's greatest consumers and so laid the surest basis for American competition in foreign markets. Uniting capital and labor, thus, in a common prosperity and common source of increased reward, it has created opportunities, improved conditions of employment, brought about a high standard of living, and more widespread distribution of wealth and well-being, and made expansion moral as well as material.

"Intrusted with insular possessions, it has brought them peace and progress, and provided for the extension and protection of American trade, for the national defense, and for the honorable discharge of the responsibilities of world greatness. Maintaining peace at home, with foreign nations and among them, it has given American rights and American opportunities new meaning throughout the nation and throughout the world.

The Party of Progress and Prosperity. "Promising progress and prosperity, it has been politically sincere. It has never had a candidate of a section, prejudice, or class, nor a platform of negation, scheme of repudiation, program of scuttling or doctrine of despair. It has never lent itself to a demand for revolution, to be followed by reaction and retrogression. It has stood firm for evolution by constant, steady, unending progress. Finding true greatness-born, flourishing under supposed conflict of state and national law, the double prohibition of existence serving but to foster their development, it has never, in an attempt to destroy trusts, withdrawn, in state or nation, the protection of law from prosperity but has, through executive investigation and resort to the courts, resolved the conflict which had silenced law and given trusts existence.

"It has never proposed to advance American workingmen and American industries by banishing American industries and building up those of other lands, and scorned to insult labor with an illusory promise of immunity from law. Yet it passed the pure food law and the employers' liability law, secured equal accommodations on railroads, aided agriculture, created the civil service, reduced foreign postage, and increased pensions. Continuing naturally marked-out progress, it will keep its pledges of tariff readjustment, currency reform and development of the merchant marine, and make the United States the financial centre as it has made it the industrial centre of the world.

"In the evolution by which party government has become the extra-constitutional method of securing responsibility to the people, the Republican party has become their traditional representative and the Democratic party the organized aspiration of individuals for power without responsibility. Fairly tried, from 1893 to 1895, the two Democratic houses and the Democratic president were a 'wild team' and a helpless driver. Democracy agitates local differences, Republicanism organizes the national idea. In 1862 the people were committed to the cause of human liberty; the idea of 'Liberty and Union' expanded for the first time into the reality of the American nation.

"In 1870 money was committed to a specie basis; specie was at once, until 1893, no longer sought, and government bonds went to a premium at the reduced rate of interest. In 1896 business men were again committed to confidence; before a single statute was enacted prosperity set in and in ten years bank deposits almost tripled—a permanent gain which the recent panic, a state of mind now completely dispelled, scarcely touched. In 1906 business was committed to fair methods; without compulsion violations largely ceased.

"The Republican party, at each period, sounded the public conscience, felt the national pulse, framed its policies in response, and realized in law the dominant American idea. Its constructive past assures its constructive future. It is today as it always has been, 'The Party Fit to Govern.'

The Party of Statesmen. "The party of statesmanship, it has been the training school of statesmen. Its policies have been forged in the heat of public discussion, tempered in the deliberation and shaped in the conflict of many trained minds, and drawn and finally wrought for the country's welfare. Dominating its members through principles, it assures unity in government; its staunchest partisans have made the greatest contributions to national progress. The roster of its leaders is the national roll of honor of public service.

"Republicanism stands today for progressive policies in safe hands. By solving the constructive problems of world power in the last two administrations, William H. Taft taught the world our capacity and us his own. In all constructive legislation for twenty years James S. Sherman has been a leader. In the records of the Republican candidates as well as in the platform are written the story of the nation's progress and the reliance of the future.

"A Democratic president or a Democratic house would turn back those records; thereafter Bryanism would record 'Destruction.' This the Republican senate could not prevent. Under Taft and Sherman and a Republican congress the great progress of the past will be held and the greater progress of the future will be assured."

CLEVELAND'S LAST WORD TO PARTY

Praised Taft and Called For Elimination of Bryanism.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 8. Pennsylvania Bryanites are greatly exercised over the publication of Grover Cleveland's last political document, in which he forecasted the election of Judge Taft and recorded his opinion that the national Democracy will never regain its prestige until Bryanism shall be eliminated.

There is no doubt that these declarations have had far-reaching influence among the conservative elements of the Democracy of the Keystone State. The Cleveland article was the first of a series which the late ex-president intended to write, but which his death cut short. It was copyrighted by the New York Times after permission to print it had been obtained from Frederick S. Hastings, executor of Mr. Cleveland's estate.

In this article Mr. Cleveland among other things said: "With the other parties disorganized, redeveloping and procreating, the Republican party is certain, though with a considerably lessened strength, to move on to a safe victory sustained by the popular support of reforms which should not redound to its glory solely, those reforms having been the work of decent men of all parties."

"Personally and officially I have had the opportunity of knowing many things concerning Mr. Taft that were not a matter of general knowledge, and with a keen interest I have watched his large share in the conduct of our national affairs in very recent years. His excellence as a federal judge in Cincinnati is something not to be underestimated or overemphasized, for should he come to the presidential chair the qualities which made him a judge of high ability, which I know him to have been, will be the most useful to him as president of the United States. His high ideals of honesty and of relative justice, his great capacity for severe labor and his humorous wisdom in the face of the serious problem are attributes equally valuable and commendatory to a people, seeking him in whom they may repose the trust of their collective interests while they turn their increased attention to their pressing individual demands.

"After discussing problems resulting from national expansion, continuing:

Has Important Qualifications.

"These questions are fruitful of trouble and perturbation, and the primary requisite of the man or men who must deal with them is an abundant knowledge of the people of the outlying domain. That Mr. Taft is possessed of this knowledge as is no other man in the country is hardly to be denied; granted that he has had extraordinary opportunities, he has shown himself able to improve those opportunities in a manner which is not extravagant to say will be his broadest claim so far as enduring fame when the acute visual distortion of the present and opportune shall have given place to the inexorable perspective of history in which the relative values of public deeds to public duties are completely clarified and announced to posterity."

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneeze stage—they break, or head off these early colds. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics. Preventics are Little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, nighting day. Heroin probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in 5c boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 48 Preventics. Insist on your druggist giving you
