

PERUNA A TONIC OF GREAT USEFULNESS.

HON. R. S. THARIN. Hon. R. S. Tharin, Attorney at Law and counsel for Anti-Trust League, writes from Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows: "Having used Peruna for catarrhal disorders, I am able to testify to its great remedial excellence and do not hesitate to give it my emphatic endorsement and earnest recommendation to all persons affected by that disorder. It is also a tonic of great usefulness."

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the solid medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Tax on Cats. It is really difficult to understand why the cats have escaped their share of public responsibility. Few thinkers will dispute the statement that such animals are entirely too numerous. The well-fed, well-groomed cat, that stays at home and attends to its knitting by the family hearth is not a menace to the public welfare, but who will defend the sad-eyed tomcat with the tragic voice that sings wild dirges at dreary midnight's cheerless hour? And his name is legion.

Use for Hammocks. Take an old hammock, and if worn through in places cut out the good part and make bags according to the size of the pieces. These bags are useful for rag bags, stocking bags, etc. These bags can be improved by making a fringe along the bottom from the cords of the hammock.

ASTONISHED THE DOCTOR. Old Lady Got Well With Change of Food. A great scientist has said we can put off "old age" if we can only nourish the body properly. To do this the right kind of food, of course, is necessary. The body manufactures poisons in the stomach and intestines from all kinds of food stuffs and unless sufficient of the right kind is used, the injurious elements overcome the good.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

No man is too dull to be a bore. The man who buys his friends hasn't any. All men may have equal rights, but only a few get them. It doesn't require nearly so much effort to run into debt as to crawl out. It is one thing to catch on, but quite another thing to know when to let go. It's a toss-up between the quitter and the fellow who never knows when he is licked. We seldom appreciate the good things of life until they have assumed the past tense. If a real man should make love like the hero of a play the girl would be scared to death. Most men would like to be rich enough to feel that they could afford to marry for love. It may be better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all, but it isn't so cheap. A woman can't be expected to know how to manage a husband until she has had at least three. If a woman is pleased with herself the opinion of the rest of the world is of secondary importance. It takes a man half his life to find out who his friends are, and the other half to locate his enemies. When a girl refuses a fellow and he threatens to blow his brains out, it merely proves that he hasn't any. Some people acquire the habit of looking for trouble to such an extent that they would be lonesome without it. There are people who always impress me as looking for the worst and being terribly disappointed if it doesn't happen.—From "The Gentle Cynic" in the New York Times.

THE CHILTERN HUNDREDS.

One of the Political Curiosities of Great Britain. This is a survival of the time when the people were very jealous of the crown and were constantly in fear that the throne would destroy the independence of the commons by corrupting members with offices, a use of patronage not entirely unknown in present day America. To prevent that, it was wisely required that a member must give his constituents an opportunity to approve or disapprove of his course by expressing their confidence by a re-election to parliament or showing their displeasure by defeating him. Of course, nowadays a seat in the cabinet is not at the disposal of the sovereign, but is solely the gift of the prime minister, the party chief, so that no question of bribery can enter into the acceptance of a place under the government. But the electorate still reserves to itself the right of approval, and the new minister, after he has accepted office, but before he can take his seat in the house of commons as a minister of the crown, must have the assent of his constituents. Curiously enough—and this is interesting as showing how the English people cling to tradition—there is no provision made for the resignation of a member of parliament and the only way in which he can resign is for him to accept an office of profit and trust under the government and decline re-election. There is a nominal and fictitious post known as the stewardship of the Chiltern Hundreds, a district in Buckinghamshire, whose steward centuries ago was charged with the duty of suppressing robbers and who was, of course, compensated for his services. A member who desires to retire or to seek re-election because he has entered the government, applies to the prime minister to be appointed steward of the Chiltern Hundreds, which vacates his seat. The appointment is duly published in the official gazette, and the vacancy in the house of commons is thus created. There is, of course, no limit to the number of persons who may be appointed stewards of the Chiltern Hundreds, although it is the unwritten law that the appointment must not be conferred twice on the same day. If there were a dozen men who wanted to resign at the same time, they would have to take their turn.—Maurice Low in Forum.

THE PUMPKIN.

For all general uses the pumpkin is dryer and sweeter baked. Cut in quarters or halves, remove all seeds and place in a large dripping pan. Bake, without adding water, for about one hour, or even less, according to size. The skin will then be soft and crispy and the flesh dry and mealy. Scrape out with a spoon, put into a colander and press through. It is then ready for pies, pancakes or croquettes. All the watery juice that exudes should be saved to make a loaf of delicious pumpkin juice brown bread. The seeds are appetizing and among the Italians take the place of our salted nuts. Wash free from the sticky shreds that surround them, then dry in the sun or a rather cool oven. When ready to salt, spread on a baking pan, salt liberally, then set in a hot oven, shaking and stirring often until crisp.—New York Telegram.

FINANCE AND TRADE REVIEW

WEEKLY TRADE SUMMARY

Usual Dullness Prevails, but There is Gratifying Decrease in Idle Machinery.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Ante-election lassitude is general in the commercial world, especially as to the placing of contracts for new undertakings, but there is a gratifying decrease in idle machinery at manufacturing plants, testifying to confidence in a good demand, when the present uncertainty is over. Lack of rain has been a serious setback, low water retarding mill work and river shipments, while winter wheat is getting a poor start and forest fires cause great damage. Collections improve in farming sections as the crops are sold, but are still only fair on the whole. Considering the amount of business in the iron and steel industry that is known to be held back until after election, this week's new orders are encouraging, although the sales of pig iron were at prices most favorable to the buyer.

Chinese Constitution.

China's proposed new constitution has been proclaimed to the people. While it is open to much criticism from the Western viewpoint it is such an enormous advance in China that its defects may be overlooked. In any event, it is only a beginning and it brought into successful operation it will be improved by the most patient people on earth. It is remarkable that the granting of this constitution is the voluntary act of the Chinese rulers. That nine years is given for its gradual introduction is characteristic of the Chinese Empire. A Nation that has endured for so many centuries as China need not be in haste to change its governmental forms. But of one thing we may be sure. The Constitution in China is the beginning of a new era, in which Occidental civilization shall have a larger part. The awakening has begun. We may not anticipate a duplication of Japanese developments, for the Chinese nature differs in important particulars, but we may expect a wonderful metamorphosis, with more faithfulness in copying the American model.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Rheumatism Prescription.

The increased use of whiskey for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following formula is effective: "To one-half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris Compound and one ounce of Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring." Toris Compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

Lemon Extract.

As this is the season of the year when lemons are plentiful, it is economical for housekeepers to make their own extract. This is the recipe: Cut the rinds of three lemons into one-half pint of alcohol. Let stand for six days, then pour into bottles and add one ounce of oil of lemon. A few drops will flavor a cake nicely.

Truth and Quality

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time. It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

Baby's Awful Itching Humor.

Nothing Would Help Him—Mother Almost in Despair—Owes Quick Cure to Cuticura. "Several months ago, my little boy began to break out with itching sores. I doctored him, but as soon as I got them healed up in one place they would break out in another. I was almost in despair. I could not get anything that would help him. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and after using them three times the sores commenced to heal. He is now well, and not a scar is left on his body. They have never returned nor left him with bad blood, as one would think. Cuticura Remedies are the best I have ever tried, and I shall highly recommend them to any one who is suffering likewise. Mrs. William Geeding, 102 Washington St., Attica, Ind., July 22, 1907."

Rural Free Delivery.

There is little doubt that the spread of the free delivery system has had a potent effect in carrying a greater degree of enlightenment among hosts of voters. The rural carriers now number approximately 40,000 or the strength of a full army corps; and their vehicles are in evidence in all the thickly populated States of the Union. The aggregate influence of the prompt dissemination of the news, which is made practicable through their agency, is bound to be lasting and important.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

To Wash Pongee.

To launder pongee silk and keep it from spotting, wash as follows: Make good suds with any good soap, wash gently with the hand, and then rinse in lukewarm water. Press, not wring, the water out; then, when nearly dry, iron with a moderately hot iron, and the silk will look new, while if dampened in the usual way after the silk has dried, it turns very spotted after being ironed.

Excavations at Olympia.

Excavations carried out in the sacred precincts of Olympia, Greece, near the great altar of Zeus, have resulted in the discovery of interesting remains of the neolithic period, including house vessels and implements. This is believed to be evidence that Olympia was a place of human habitation more than 2,000 years before Christ. Former Governor James K. Vardaman of Mississippi, has made a definite announcement that he will re-enter the field of journalism.

INVENTS YOUTH MACHINE

After Forty Years' Study Physician at Seventy-Six Restores Youth and Vigor.

Sir James Grant of Canada, who delivered the closing address at the meeting of the British association, is seventy-six years old, but has all the vigor of a man of fifty. It is a remarkable fact that Sir James, for many years the most famous of Canadian doctors, attributes his own recovery of youth to a simple and ingenious little machine which, after forty years of experiment, he discovered last year. He delivered a full account of it to the psychological section. The instrument, called a neurostator, for which the electrical force is provided by a dry cell, acts directly on the inactive centers, which become largely poisoned by noxious gases as people grow older. Clearing them out by electricity in consequence adds new vigor to the system, and greatly lengthens the span of life. In his own case Sir James said that he had been enabled to give up spectacles, which he had used for a generation, as well as to increase general activity by means of his instrument. The discovery is the first successful application of electricity to human digestion.

Baseball and Politics.

To speak of the general enthusiasm of the country over baseball would be mere repetition of what was said when the two leagues were having their final battles for the pennant last week. It is worth a moment's attention, however, to consider the fact that five games of baseball in a world's championship series, at grand opera prices for admission, played in two cities, have brought gross receipts in excess of $100,000. If money talks, it, too, declares the popularity of baseball. And now let us catch our breath and watch the curves of Mr. Taft of Ohio and Mr. Bryan of Nebraska.—Chicago Herald-Record.
