Queen Has Auto Craze.

Queen Helena of Italy has taken the keenest interest in motoring ever since its earliest days. She and her husband possess five beautiful cars, and the Queen not only drives, but also has had lessons in the working of motor machinery, and could, at a pinch, effect repairs with her own very capable hands. — Indianapolis News.

Does Not Wear Aigrets.

Queen Alexandra has issued a public statement to the effect that she does not wear aigrets, and this, of course, is intended as a rebuke to a cruel and horrible practice. The official statement means something more even than that. It means that no lady can venture into the Queen's presence with these feathers upon her head, and it means that the aigret is stamped as unfashionable throughout every rank in society. Royalty has its undoubted disadvantages, but something may be written also upon the other side of the slate. The power to make cruelly unfashionable is one to be envied, and every country would be the better for an influence that is no less real because it has no coercive laws to back it. — Argonaut.

Inspiring and Otherwise.

"Isn't it an inspiring book?" exclaimed the enthusiastic woman.
"Oh, yes," admitted the other, wearily. "Many things are inspiring. When I see a good play or read of heroic characters, or the organist plays something from Beethoven's mass in D, I feel that life is grand. I am filled with zeal and eager for a chance to prove my noble, elevated point of view."
"Then I am called up on the telephone by some stranger who asks me if I will please go up to the top floor and ask Mrs. Blank to come to the telephone—Mrs. Blank being a person I do not know and to whom I am indebted for nothing—and the brotherhood of man suddenly takes on a pale, cold, blue tinge that doesn't interest me in the least. I wonder why it is?" — New York Press.

With and Without Curves.

"What's the use," exclaimed the tall, handsome woman, mournfully, "of having a fine figure like mine!"

Our Cut-out Recipe.

Pastry in your traps—
Doughnuts.—To four cups pastry flour (once sifted) add one and one-half teaspoons salt, one and three-fourths teaspoons soda, one and three-fourths teaspoons cream of tartar and one-half teaspoon grated nutmeg. Work in one-half tablespoon butter, using the tips of the fingers; then add one cup sugar, one cup sour milk and one egg well beaten. Mix thoroughly, and toss on a board thickly dredged with flour. Knead slightly, and roll to one-fourth inch in thickness. Shape with a doughnut cutter, fry in deep fat until browned on both sides; drain on brown paper; dust with powdered sugar.

"Backbone" Superfluous.

"The worst thing about having no backbone," said the woman who had been born without that supposedly indispensable member, "is trying to get one. It is a perfectly useless agony, too, because if nature hasn't given you a backbone, you can't get it by any other means. If you once recognize this fact and submit to your limitations you'll find that you can get on fairly well without a backbone, and when you realize how often the thing that passes for determination is a mere disregard for or inability to comprehend other people's rights and feelings, you can bear up under the contempt commonly meted out to the 'spineless.'"
"A backbone is not nearly so necessary as people imagine, and very often one gets on a great deal better without it. If you haven't any backbone, you won't be tempted to butt your head against irresistible forces. We are most of us helpless victims in the hands of fate, and ordinarily we might as well let ourselves drift as try to mold circumstances to our will. The drifting may be a mistake, to be sure, but pulling against the current may be a mistake equally, and the first is easier."
"If I can't decide, I do nothing, when that is possible, and let events shape themselves as they will, and if I must do something I do what I like best or dislike least, as the case may be. My own inclinations are the most reliable guides I have ever found, and I wish that I had earlier learned to rate them at their proper value. The powers that presided over my early education contrived to inoculate me with the idea that inclinations exist, as Herbert Spencer says, 'not for our guidance, but solely to mislead us,' and it took me a long time to learn

FRILLS FASHION

Bouillon lace is constantly employed by French dressmakers as a finishing touch.

The dealers are making no display of fans so far, and there are predictions that the fan is not to be stylish the coming fall season.

The high collar has come in again for fur coats and jackets, and is often made of a different fur from the garment on which it is used.

Little novelty stocks, often copied from French models, are one of the most striking features of the season. They are charmingly made up of ribbon-fox or almost any fur—even pointed fox and black lynx.

This is a day when bags, little or big, ostentatiously plain or elaborately decorated, are put to a hundred uses, from the shopping and automobile bags down to the delicate little wrist and vanity bags.

While no skirt at the present time can be called full, those designed for soft, thin materials are often made to fall in voluminous folds, but they have the top closely laid in tucks that produce the sheath fit.

The shortened waist and straight, clinging lines of the skirt are features that strongly influence the winter modes, characterizing evening gowns, dressy coat suits for afternoon and other affairs of ceremony.

In gowns having the high waistline, the top of the skirt is often tucked, but if the gown is of chiffon or anything of this nature the gathered top permits the soft folds of the material to cling to the figure and follow the outline becomingly.

Each one of the puffs arranged at the back of the Psyche knot is held in place by a large hairpin, and the pompadour is now held by a pin instead of a comb. Some girls, too, have gone so far as to add one to each side of the knot.

A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Subject: The Prerogatives and Responsibilities of Moral Freedom.

Baltimore, Md.—Sunday morning Cardinal Gibbons preached his regular monthly sermon to a large audience, at the cathedral. His subject was "The Prerogatives and Responsibilities of Moral Freedom." The text was from St. Luke 18:31-43. Jesus commanded the blind man to be brought to Him, and He asked him, saying: "What wilt thou that I do for thee? And he said: Lord, that I may receive my sight." The cardinal said:

Is not the stone blind who is entirely engrossed by the desire for earthly riches and shuts his eyes to the pearl of great price? Is not the blind who is wallowing in the mire of sin, who is leading a life of sensuality which leads to melancholy and despair? Is not the blind who is bending all his energies to the acquisition of honor and fame, and when he acquires it, it falls to satisfy the cravings of his heart? Is not the blind who looks up to heaven and contemplates the works of creation, but discerns not the existence of a Creator? Is not the blind who sees the hands moving on the clock-work of time, but fails to recognize the invisible Hand which keeps these works in motion? Is not the blind who counts the days of his years as they flow by, but does not consider the ocean of eternity that lies before him?

Now, Christ says to each of you what He said to the blind man: What is thy will? What wilt thou that I do for thee?

How sublime is the faculty of free will! It is a gift which distinguishes you from the brute creation; for man is the only creature on earth that enjoys moral freedom. It is a prerogative which you possess in common with the angels and which makes you like to God Himself. God and the angels and man are the only beings that have free will.

It is the exercise of the will that distinguishes the saint from the sinner, the martyr from the apostate, the hero from the coward, the temperate man from the drunkard, the benevolent ruler from the capricious tyrant. If we are destined to be of use to the world, we shall owe our salvation under God to the right use of our freedom. If we are to inherit the vengeance of heaven, it shall be due to the abuse of our liberty.

"Thy destruction is thine own, O Israel." In a word, our liberty is a weapon which, like Saul, we will inflict a deadly wound upon ourselves, or it is a sword with which, like Michael the archangel, we can conquer the infernal enemy and win our way to heaven.

Do not, therefore, let the Jews that knowledge and practice of His precepts would secure for them true freedom. The Jews were indignant that their freedom should be called in question: "We are the seed of Abraham," they exclaimed, and have never been slaves to any man." Our Lord replied that though children of Abraham, they were in bondage as long as they were in sin. "Amen, I say to you: Whosoever committeth sin is the slave of sin."

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JANUARY 10.

Subject: The Descent of the Holy Spirit, Acts 2:1-21—Golden Text, John 14:16, 17—Commit Verses 2-4—Exposition of Lesson.

TIME.—Sunday, May 28, A. D. 30, 9 a. m. PLACE.—An upper room in Jerusalem.

EXPOSITION I. The Disciples Filled with the Holy Spirit, 1-4. The disciples had been bidden not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, the baptism with the Holy Spirit (ch. 1:4, 5). They had faithfully obeyed this command. After the ascension of Jesus they had returned at once to Jerusalem (1:12) to wait God's time and God's blessing. The following days had been spent largely in prayer (1:14). Those were not wasted days. More was accomplished in the illigible outcome than if they had spent those days preaching. Though "they continued steadfastly" in prayer (1:14, R. V.) the entire time was not spent in prayer (ch. 1:15-26; Luke 24:53). There was absolute unity in their prayer, it was "with one accord." Their minds were all united in one thing, "the promise of the Father," the baptism with the Holy Spirit (Lu. 11:13; Ac. 4:31; 8:15-17). They did not regard the possible promise of Christ (1:5) as relieving them from the necessity of prayer, but as an incentive to and a foundation for prayer. The women were there as well as the men (ch. 1:14). Ten days passed without an answer. The day of Pentecost, the day of "first fruits," the gathering of the church (Lev. 23:15-21) came at last. Not till that day could the Holy Spirit be given. Now that Pentecost has come no one needs wait ten days for the baptism with the Holy Spirit. There is no record of any waiting since Pentecost (see ch. 4:31; 8:14; 9:17-22; 10:44; 19:6). The baptism with the Spirit is every believer's birthright through the crucified, risen and ascended Christ (vs. 33, 39), and the moment the conditions are fulfilled this blessing will be ours. If we have to wait, the difficulty is with us, and not with God. It is because we have not met the conditions. The disciples seemed to have been expecting the promise that very day, they were "together in one accord" (v. 1). It was at or before 9 in the morning (v. 15). They were of one accord (cf. 1:13, 14; 2:46; 4:24, 32; 5:12). This unity doubtless had much to do with the bestowment of the gift, and the absence of this unity has much to do with the failure of many churches to-day to receive it. The blessing came "suddenly" at the last (cf. ch. 16:25, 26; Mal. 3:1; Luke 2:12). There was not a moment's warning. There was a roar as of a hurricane. Emphasis is laid on the fact that this sound came from heaven. It is wind "from heaven" we need. We have too much wind of another sort. On another occasion the place where they even gathered together was shaken (ch. 4:31). This sound "filled all the house." The disciples were "staring" not kneeling in prayer as they are so often represented. There was not only "wind" from heaven, but fire as well (cf. Matt. 3:11; Is. 4:4; Jer. 23:29). The fire was in the form of tongues, the tongues power was to manifest itself in a tongue of fire granted to them (7:4). The tongues parted asunder (R. V.) or portioned themselves out to "each one of them." Peter only is made prominent in the story that follows, but each one of them received a tongue of fire. The tongues of fire rested upon the women as well as upon the men (cf. vs. 17, 18). The blessing was not to the church as a body, but to "each one of them" as individuals. "They were all filled with the Spirit." This is a fulfillment of the promise. The expressions "filled with the Spirit" and "baptized with the Spirit" are practically synonymous. The expression used here brings out the thought that the Holy Spirit takes complete possession of the faculties. The immediate result was they "began to speak with other tongues" (cf. ch. 10:46; 19:6).

II. The Multitude Amazed, 5-11. The noise of the wind from heaven was heard by the multitudes without (v. 6, R. V.). They rushed together to find out what it meant. The multitudes always gather when the Spirit comes upon God's people. The disciples began to speak to them of the mighty works of God. Each one heard them speaking in his own language. The effects were startling and various. They were "confounded," "amazed," they "marveled" and "were perplexed." Some thought the disciples were drunk. Others "gladly received the word," and were baptized. The conversions were very numerous and very thorough (vs. 6, 7, 12, 13, 37, 41, 42, 44, 45). Similar and equally varied effects follow to-day when men and women are filled with the Holy Spirit and speak of the Spirit gives them utterance. Various. They were "confounded," "amazed," they "marveled" and "were perplexed." Some thought the disciples were drunk. Others "gladly received the word," and were baptized. The conversions were very numerous and very thorough (vs. 6, 7, 12, 13, 37, 41, 42, 44, 45).
